Weather Grounds Aircraft

SAIGON (UPI)—Bad weather closed in on the big U.S.-South Vietnamese operation in northwestern South Vietnam today, grounding fixed wing aircraft at the Khe Sanh airport. Some U.S. helicopters flying through fog and low clouds apparently strayed into Laos.

In Vietiane, a Laotian military spokesman denied any South Vietnamese troops had entered Laos, but he reported a Communist offensive had rolled south from the Plain of Jars and is menacing Long Cheng, nerve center for U.S. Central Intelligence Agency operations in Laos.

UPI Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer Toshio Sakai reported from Khe Sanh that he saw U.S. and South Vietnamese CH47 Chinook and UH1 Huey helicopters flying westward toward Laos from the airstrips at Khe Sanh, which is about five miles from the border of Laos.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said a U.S. Air Force Wild Weasel jet fired two Shrike missiles Thursday at a missile site in North Vietnam—the eighth strike this year against North Vietnam, but he, too, had no word on the expected South Vietnam incursion into Laos.

South Vietnamese troops reported their biggest victory of the year in their drive into Cambodia — 69 Communists killed in a battle 18 miles east of Kompong Cham and 15 miles inside the Fishhook Sector of Cambodia.

A force of 20,000 South Vietnamese, backed by 9,000 U.S. combat troops, remained poised on the Laotian border in the northwestern corner of South Vietnam while U.S. planes and B52 heavy bombers worked over the Ho Chi Minh Trail in the nonstop raids that have gone on for four months. The South Vietnamese presumably would send patrols into Laos as protective measures, but there was no word even on this.

In Vientiane, Cambodian government sources said the Communist Laotian commander for southern Laos has been killed, possibly by North Vietnamese.

The sources said Communist defectors had two stories of the reported death of Pathet Lao Gen. Phomma Duangmala.

One version said the general was wounded in a battle with government forces and died later in a hospital when North Vietnamese doctors refused to treat him.

The other version was that North Vietnamese officers killed the popular general when he refused to obey an order raising taxes on the local population by 50 per cent. The North Vietnamese raised the taxes after killing Phomma, the defector said.

Meanwhile, former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy has charged recent allied troop buildups along the border of South Vietnam indicate the Nixon administration seeks a military victory which it hopes to turn into a political victory in 1972.

McCarthy, an antiwar candidate for President in 1968, made the charge Thursday as opponents of the administration's Indochina policy continued to assail a six-day blackout of news of a 29,000-man allied operation on the border of Laos.

"It is apparent that the administration is leaning toward a military victory out of which a political victory would develop," McCarthy told students at the University of Pennsylvania.

PRECARIOUS PERCH — Hank, a 16-year-old cat, had long occupied this stool at Harry's Mart in Fairfax until his presence in the store was threatened recently by a county health inspector. More than 400 customers have rallied round him, signing a petition asking the officials to disregard rules about cats in food stores.

Astronauts Land, Take Moon Walk

Shepard Picks Bullseye Site

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Alan B. Shepard and Edgar D. Mitchell outsmarted a balky computer for a bullseye landing today and then bounded across the dusty moon, unfurling Old Glory on the first color telecast back to Earth.

"It's been a long way, but we're here," said Shepard, America's first man in space a decade ago, as he stepped off a ladder from the Apollo 14 landing craft and became the fifth man on the moon.

Mitchell jumped to the rough, crater-pocked surface of Fra Mauro Valley five minutes later. "It's great to be coming down," he said.

Ground controllers radioed to the moonwalkers the congratulations of President Nixon. Like millions of people all over the world, he said, he is an astronaut watcher today.

"I wish the entire Apollo team well . . . Godspeed," Nixon said, and invited the astronauts and their families to the White House for dinner upon their return and to Camp David for a weekend.

Shepard, the old pro of U.S. astronauts —grounded for six years by ear trouble—walked with a slow, cautious gait at first.

But soon Shepard and Mitchell were hopping over the surface "like kangaroos" on man's first excursion into the hilly uplands that scientists believe may hold the key to the secrets of the moon's creation.

They were deploying a $25 million, atomic-powered scientific observatory on the gentle slope near the Antares after planting the Stars and Stripes. They had to move the flag several times so it would show better on the vivid color telecast.

Shepard, 47, and Mitchell, 40, the third team of American astronauts to reach the moon, bounded around taking each other's pictures during the flag-raising ceremony.

The third member of the Apollo 14 crew, Stuart A. Roosa, 37, orbited the moon alone in the command ship Kitty Hawk during the moonwalk. He maneuvered his ship to a position where he could see the Fra Mauro area and the shadow cast by the lunar lander.

The successful landing erased the stigma of Apollo 13, which had been headed for the same site when an oxygen-tank explosion in space forced the astronauts to return home last April.

Shepard flew Antares to a near-perfect landing between two rugged ridges, setting down in a cloud of dust only 130 feet from the target —the most precise landing yet of the Apollo missions.

The accurate landing —payoff of the trouble-plagued $400 million mission —was made with a makeshift computer control procedure radioed to the astronauts at the last moment. Shepard and Mitchell discovered a faulty abort switch two hours before landing.

They took manual control of Antares shortly after the firing of its big descent engine to avoid an "electronic spook" in the computer abort switch.

Without the emergency technique the computer would have shot the moon lander back into a safe orbit instead of dropping it down to the lunar surface.

Shepard, oldest American astronaut, cooly touched down at "the flattest point around" after hovering at 170 feet for several long moments looking for the best site.

"We're on the surface," exclaimed Mitchell, a rookie spaceman.

"We made a good landing," said Shepard.

Israelis Study Cairo Truce Pact

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

With the Suez Canal guns stilled for another 30 days, Israeli Premier Golda Meir met with her inner cabinet today in Tel Aviv to consider what she called the "too short" Egyptian extension of the truce and an Egyptian offer to reopen the canal if Israel pulls back.

The well-informed newspaper Maariv said the chances of Israel beginning a withdrawal from the canal as proposed by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat were "zero." But Mrs. Meir called in her inner cabinet to discuss political implications of the canal proposal.

With her were Defense Minister Moshe Dayan—who once proposed a 19-mile pullback by both sides—deputy Prime Minister Yigal Allon and Foreign Minister Abba Eban. Political sources said they were anxious to dispel any positive impression Sadat may have made in Europe, which faces an oil crisis and would like the canal open.

In the background of the Israeli political moves was a warning from Lt. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev, the Israeli chief of staff, that any Egyptian amphibious attack across the Suez Canal was doomed to failure and a suggestion that Israel might be compelled to cross the canal if hostilities resume.

Bar-Lev's comments came in an interview with the newspaper Lamerchav in Tel Aviv. He warned the Egyptians that Israel "is too tough a nut to crack" and that eventually they will have no alternative but to reach a political settlement.

He said if the Egyptians resume the fighting when the new truce expires March 7

CHRONIC COMPLAINER

SHEPARD'S WIFE:

'He's Found His Promised Land'

HOUSTON (UPI)—The moon hung over Harris County, Tex. like a lopsided cantaloupe. Inside the brightly-lighted River Oaks mansion of astronaut Alan B. Shepard, a girl screamed "Whoopee."

"Good...good, they're down safe," exulted Mrs. Louise Shepard, the blonde wife of the nation's first man in space.

"They can't call him 'Ole Mose' anymore," she said. "He's found his promised land."

When Shepard stepped on the moon, his wife leaped to her feet in the VIP viewing room at Mission Control and applauded. She was so happy she was laughing and clapping.

Minutes before the landing, Sehpard's voice had crackled through 238,000 miles of radio beams:

"It's a beautiful day in the land of Fra Mauro."

Louis Mitchell, wife of Shepard's moon companion, Edgar A. Mitchell, said she was surprised there wasn't more jubilation among the gathering of friends and family, including a couple of astronauts, who were watching at her home near the Manned Spacecraft Center.

"I'm very relieved and very happy everything went so well," said the chic brunette.

Kitty Hawk pilot Stuart A. Roosa's four children burst into excited cheers and clapped their hands. Then the telephone rang. It was Mrs. Shepard.

"Your husbands do good work," Joan Roosa told her. That is the ultimate compliment among military families.

Only a close circle of friends and family had watched the landing at Shepard's $150,000 home. Mrs. Shepard appeared calm, but a friend said, "I imagine she's a little uptight."

Shepard's two daughters, Julia, 19, and Mrs. Laura Snyder, 23, were at the home.

One of them shouted "Whoopee" so loudly it could be heard through the closed windows. Minutes later the lights went out as Mrs. Shepard retired to take a nap before going to Mission Control to watch the walk on the moon.

Mrs. Shepard's comment "they can't call him Old Mose anymore" refers to recent speculation that Shepard is past his peak because of his age, 47, and physical condition.

Astronauts Jerry Carr and Paul Weitz were at the Mitchell home with Mrs. Mitchell and her two daughters, Karlyn, 17, and Elizabeth, 11.

An expectant hush had fallen over the Roosa home as the Antares descended to the moon.

"It was the most simultaneous outburst I've ever seen," said a family friend who was there. "The kids just jumped up and down and clapped and cheered."

Roosa has four children — Christopher, 11; John, 10; Stuart Jr., 8; and Rosemary, 7.

780,000 To Jobless Roll In January

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Unemployment in the nation rose in January by 780,000 but the government said the 6 per cent jobless rate was an improvement over December and could signal a steady drop.

The December rate previously had been reported at 6 per cent but the Labor Department said that it was raised to 6.2 per cent after adjustments for just-completed 1970 trends. That meant the January rate was 0.2 per cent below December—the first drop in seven months.

While the figures reported by the Labor Department showed a rise of 780,000 unemployed persons to a total of 5.4 million —and a drop of 1.3 million in the number of persons holding jobs — the Nixon administration said the over-all rate of decline was significant.

As the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics was announcing the new figures, a high Labor official told reporters at a separate news conference arranged by the White House that the January report marked "a change in trends—a change in direction" — and could be the start of a steady decline in the unemployment rate.

The official, who declined to allow use of his name, said seasonally adjusted figures showed improvement in January in total employment, total unemployment, average work week, claims for unemployment compensation and joblessness among adult men.

Regardless of the statistical basis for computing the jobless rate, unemployment in January continued to hover at the highest level since late 1961. It was 6 per cent in December, 6.1 per cent in November and 6.7 per cent in October of that year.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said unemployment normal-

Hank Won't Move From His Throne

A big black and white cat named Hank who has spent most of his 16 years curled up on a stool in a Fairfax neighborhood market won't lose his comfortable post if more than 400 customers have their way.

As long as anyone can remember, Hank has reigned unthreatened at Harry's Mart, the kind of store where anything from meat to plumbing supplies to fishing equipment can be purchased.

The peace ended a few months ago, according to Ethel Fong, who runs the store along with her husband, Harry.

"All the other health inspectors — they never paid any attention to Hank," Mrs. Fong said. "Then a new one came — and he said the cat had to go," she added.

The Fongs complied with the ruling of James J. Jurik and found the cat what is commonly known as a "good home."

Hank had other ideas, however, and promptly returned to the market. He and Jurik had another run-in, and the Fongs were threatened with court action if they didn't keep Hank outside, Mrs. Fong said.

Longtime customers at the mart, saddened by seeing Hank out in the cold, started a petition to beg county officials to allow the cat back into the store.

Led by Mrs. Jean Mahoney, more than 400 people today had signed the petition asking the county to overlook regulations against cats in food stores. "After all, he doesn't have much longer to live," Mrs. Fong concluded. The neighbors agree with her Hank should be allowed to spend his declining years in his favorite spot.

As for Jurik, he was not available today to comment on Hank's plight.

Bales Thinks Pot Move Is Unnecessary

New efforts to ease California's marijuana possession and sale penalties were called unnecessary today by Marin County Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales.

He pointed out that he and the California District Attorneys Association last year successfully supported law changes that gave judges and prosecutors relatively wide latitude in handling "self-user" marijuana offenses.

But he told the Independent-Journal that young pot smokers should be "more aware" that fines or light jail sentences they may receive on first convictions still will be followed by mandatory prison terms for a second conviction.

Bale's comments were in reference to a United Press International report that the district attorneys association had been asked to help persuade the state Legislature to ease penalties for marijuana possession.

Sheldon Portman of Santa Clara County, head of the California Public Defenders Association, made the request in a letter to the district attorneys group. Portman argued that pot possession penalties are unjustifiably heavy "on the basis of

Judge Selected For Angela Case

A retired Inyo County Superior Court judge was assigned today by Chief Justice Donald R. Wright to try the Angela Y. Davis case.

Judge John P. McMurray, who retired the first of the year, is expected in Marin March 9 for a hearing set to hear motions to quash Miss Davis's indictment for conspiracy, kidnapping and murder in connection with the fatal Aug. 7 shoot-out at Marin County Hall of Justice.

Other proceedings tentatively set today by Justice Wright for March 9 involve Miss Davis's request for bail and to act as her own attorney.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Lucerne Fire

LUCERNE, Switzerland (UPI)—Fire destroyed most of Lucerne's main railway station today, toppling the historic dome that has been the gateway to the Alps for millions of tourists.

Police said no one was killed in the fire. Injuries were limited to several cases of smoke poisoning among the 400 firemen fighting the flames.

The first curls of smoke were spotted at 8:20 a.m. among the wooden roof beams erected when the station was built between 1893 and 1897, railway officials said.

Attack In Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Roman Catholics attacked British troops with gasoline and gelignite bombs early today in a series of hit and run sorties that kept the city's trouble spots aflame.

Twenty-seven persons were arrested during the evening by army "snatch squads," specially-trained groups used to ferret out riot ringleaders. There were no reports of serious injury. One gasoline bomber apprehended said he was 8 years old.

An army spokesman described the city as "uneasy, but relatively calm." He praised priests in the area for their help in dispersing crowds.

To Testify

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mayor Joseph Alioto will testify next week in Seattle before a federal grand jury investigating his sharing of a $2.3 million legal fee with two former Washington state officials.

The mayor announced Thursday night he had received a letter from U.S. Attorney Stan Pitkin of Seattle offering him a chance to appear in person at the investigation. He also said his office records pertaining to the case have been subpoenaed.

The federal panel will begin reviewing Alioto's anti-trust work for several Washington utility districts on Wednesday.

Otto's Son

LONDON (UPI)—Film producer Otto Preminger broke a 26-year silence today and said he fathered the late Gypsy Rose Lee's son, Erik Kirkland, during an affair with the striptease queen in California in 1944.

Preminger, reached at London's Dorchester Hotel, confirmed a statement released in the United States by the 26-year-old Kirkland that Preminger is his father.

"Eric is my natural son," Preminger told newsmen. "I have discussed the legal side of the adoption with him."

Preminger, 64, one of the last great Hollywood film moguls, said "Years ago I had an affair with a woman in California. On the 11th of December, 1944, I heard that she was in a hospital in New York. I flew there. She told me that she was having a child.

Hughes' View

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa, regarded as a possible 1972 Democratic presidential candidate, says the United States should reopen the doors to China with a new era of forgiveness and reconciliation.

"We must deal with the government in Peking as an established entity, a current adversary on the international scene, but also a potential participant in efforts to halt the arms race and ease international tensions," Hughes said.

He made the remarks Thursday at the opening session of a congressional conference on U.S.-China policy.

Marry, Or Be Jailed

CARACAS (UPI)—Police who broke up a hippie commune Thursday gave some of its residents a choice—marriage or jail.

Police said 11 of the 43 persons arrested were minor girls—and most of them were pregnant. If they want to avoid prosecution, police said, they will have to get married.

Twisters Claim Eight In Dixie

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Heavy snow swept the upper plains, steady rain, fog and freezing drizzle peppered the Midwest, tornadoes claimed eight lives in Mississippi and Alabama and ice storms were expected today in the Middle Atlantic states.

Seven persons were killed Thursday night when twisting winds demolished their house trailer at Gore Spring near Grenada, Miss. Another woman died when a twister raked her home three miles west of Bear Creek, Ala.

Six other persons were reported injured when a tornado hit a portable classroom at Bear Creek.

Fog and steady rain forced Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to cancel two flights into the Midwest Thursday. Agnew's flight to Springfield, Ill., was scrubbed completely. A later flight was off the ground en route to Indianapolis, Ind., before heavy fog at the Indiana capitol forced the craft to return to Washington.

Up to nine inches of snow and winds gusting to 40 miles an hour turned Kansas highways into skating rinks. Dozens of schools were closed as the storm blitzed Iowa with freezing rain and snowfalls expected to reach a half-foot.

Heavy snow warnings were in effect early today from Kansas northeastward through upper Michigan.

Ahead and south of the storm, rain and heavy, dense fog snarled expressways and backed up airports. Chicago's O'Hare airport said the work load there had dropped by 30 to 40 per cent because of flight cancellations.

All planes were diverted from Eppley Airport in Omaha, Neb. Highways in the Chicago area backed up as lowered visibility shrouded the evening rush hour.

Further east, the Indiana-Pittsburgh American Basketball Association game scheduled at Louisville was canceled when a plane carrying the Pacers from Utah was unable to make connections in Chicago.

The rain brought its own problems. Streets in cities throughout southeastern Michigan were flooded and lined with stalled cars after as much as an inch of rain fell on top of a snow base. Flash flooding was reported near small streams from central Missouri into southern Illinois.

Freezing rain warnings were in effect this morning across parts of New York State and Pennsylvania and ice storm and travelers warnings were posted in parts of West Virginia.

Sharing Plan Would Mean State Audit

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Enactment of President Nixon's $5 billion-a-year revenue sharing bill would subject the entire budget of most states and cities to an audit by the federal government to guard against embezzlement or misuse.

The measure also would give the federal government a new weapon to prevent the use of state or local tax money for programs which discriminate on the basis of race, creed or national origin.

Administration officials said the bill, scheduled to be submitted to Congress next week, will require recipient state and local governments to file financial statements showing the money is spent honestly. They also would be required to certify that there was no racial discrimination in programs financed "in whole or in part" by federal money.

Murray L. Weidenbaum, an assistant Treasury secretary who is the administration's chief architect of revenue sharing, told newsmen at the White House Thursday that if a state or city placed federal money into its general treasury — as most are expected to do — all programs would be subject to the audit and civil rights re-

Weidenbaum said the restrictions would apply to money raised by state and local taxes as well as the federal money if the funds are mixed together in the state or local treasury.

In some areas, the bill would provide the first independent audit of local tax money.

ACTOR DIES — Veteran character actor Jay C. Flippen (in a 1954 photo) died yesterday at the age of 70 at a Los Angeles hospital. He had performed in vaudeville, on Broadway and in such films as "Ballad of Cat Ballou," "Hellfighters," and "Brute Force."

Hijacked Plane Back In Miami

MIAMI (UPI)—It was hard to determine who was the cooler on Delta Airlines' Flight 379 Thursday—the hijacker or the hijacked.

When stewardesses handed Capt. Charles Blizzard a note from a bearded black passenger which said he would blow up the DC9 with nitroglycerine taped to his body unless it went to Cuba, Blizzard turned over the note, scribbled "We are on our way," and handed it back.

When the plane with its 23 passengers and crew of four landed at Havana, the hijacker walked to the door, turned to the passengers and said:

"Right on, baby. Freedom or free people. Sorry to inconvenience you but this will give you a chance to see Cuba."

One of those who got to see Cuba on a flight from CHICAGO TO Nashville was recording star Bobby Goldsboro, 30, accompanied by his musicians.

The mod-attired Goldsboro was one of the first passengers checked through customs after the plane landed here.

Medi-Cal Cut Suit Rejected

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The 3rd District Court of Appeal has refused to consider a suit to block the Reagan Administration's 10 per cent cutback in Medi-Cal services and nursing home fees. Without comment, the court Thursday rejected the suit filed by Sacramento County which argued that Dr. Earl Brian, state Medi -Cal Administrator, made the cuts illegally.

But Sacramento County counsel John Heinrich, who filed the suit, said he plans to file a Superior Court action Monday which is similar to the California Medical Association's suit challenging the reductions. He said the county and CMA suits will be argued at a Sacramento hearing Feb. 19 before Superior Court Judge William M. Gallagher.

The administration contends the reduction in certain services to Medi -Cal recipients along with the cuts in provider fees paid to nursing homes, doctors, dentists and pharmacists —among others — were needed to head off a threatened $140 million deficit.

The cuts, which prompted a bitter protest from local officials, health care providers and some lawmakers, took effect Dec. 15.

Heinrich said the cutback actually would require Sacramento County to pay an extra $344,000 during the next six months because the state's share of financing would fall to the counties.

He also said there was insufficient evidence to show that the medical health care program for the poor faced a fiscal crisis.

'Hatchet Job' Denied On Legal Assistance

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Reagan Administration denied today it set out to perform a "hatchet job" on the California Rural Legal Assistance Program in order to cancel its federal funding.

Cruz Reynoso, CRLA director, told the Sacramento Press Club Thursday that the administration sent out a "prejudicial" questionnaire to attorneys seeking their judgment of the organization.

Reynoso said the questions were written in such a fashion and follow up action by the administration was designed to perform "a hatchet job on CRLA."

Edwin Gray, Reagan's associate press secretary who attended the Press Club session, denied that the administration sought to force the organization out of business in such a manner.

"Mr. Reynoso knows very well this charge is untrue," Gray told a reporter.

Reynoso also predicted CRLA would continue providing legal services to the poor whether or not its support comes from federal funds.

"We feel we have to fight this battle on the basis that the poor are entitled to the best legal representation," he said.

Gov. Ronald Reagan vetoed the group's $1.8 million grant for the current year. The federal Office of Economic Opportunity last week approved a six-month, $600,0000 continuance amount, but upheld the veto.

"It will be interesting to see how the CRLA uses its time, energy and resources during the next six months," Gray said. "whether in fact they represent the true legal civil needs of the poor or use the money to mount a huge public relations campaign to justify their activities."

Asked if CRLA would continue to provide the legal services for poor Californians, even if OEO in Washington fails to furnish further funding, Reynoso replied:

"Frankly, I'm confident we'll be around after six months even without public funds."

Reagan vetoed the money on grounds CRLA violated federal antipoverty regulations and failed to give civil legal services to all poor who asked for it.

Rolls-Royce Autos To Live Despite Firm's Collapse

LONDON (UPI)—Rolls-Royce automobiles, the byword of luxury, will live on despite the company's financial collapse, government sources said today.

In all likelihood, the sources said, the government will sell to private enterprise the profitable automobile division of the world-famous firm manufacturing. The government hoped the private buyer will be British but sale to an American or other foreign firm cannot be ruled out, the sources said.

Newspapers speculated that the General Motors or Ford Motor Co. would be highly interested in acquiring the Rolls-Royce automobile division.

News Thursday that the most famous name in British industry was without money was met with shock and disbelief. Editorial writers said it were as if the crown jewels had been pawned, or the Bank of England had collapsed.

Prime Minister Edward Heath conferred with President Nixon for 15 minutes by telephone Wednesday night as part of a last ditch effort to help save the company, government sources said. They said Nixon offered sympathy but not much else.

Rolls said it went broke because of skyrocketing costs in building jet engines for Lockheed Aircraft Corp., an American firm saved from the same fate only through action of the U.S. government.

Rolls said it had insufficient funds to cover its liabilities and was going into receivership.

The government, in the first nationalization by conservatives in more than 30 years, said it would take over the company's defense and foreign aviation operations.

The Rolls-Royce automobile division has been successful. Last year alone it earned $16.8 million in foreign currency.

The division, currently producing the popular Silver Shadow Rolls-Royce and Bentley-T series, is having a hard time keeping up with orders. At present there is an 18-month waiting period for delivery.

Downgrading Of Officer Not Ordered

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Former supervisors of dismissed Petaluma policeman Robert C. Blagborne testified yesterday they had no orders to downgrade the officer because of his part in labor negotiations.

In the second day of the reinstatement hearing in Sonoma County Superior Court, Blagborne's attorney Paul Neuer questioned the former supervisors, Sgt. Jimmie Matthews, Inspector William C. Reed, Lt. Karl P. Kohl and Capt. Henry Eslick.

All testified that Blagborne had received performance ratings of competent until last fall when the department came near a strike as wage negotiations with City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer became deadlocked.

Sgt. Matthews, who said he had supervised Blagborne the longest, said his work in the field had been competent, but that he had developed a persecution complex after the labor-problems.

Matthews said Blagborne felt the supervisors were under pressure to downgrade him and get him fired. "He felt the City of Petaluma was out to get him," Matthews said, denying he had been given orders to lower his performance ratings.

Matthews said he had previously recommended Blagborne be given permanent status after his one year probationary period, but that he changed his mind when Blagborne's attitude changed and he began lowering the morale of other officers by speaking of his job insecurity.

Capt. Eslick, who had been serving as acting chief, said he decided to extend Blagborne's probation period by three months because of temperamental problems and a bad attitude. Under questioning, Eslick said he did not know if he had the authority to extend probation.

City Mgr. Meyer took the stand to say he had been consulted about Blagborne's problems, but had simply gone along with the department head's request, as is the custom.

The hearing was to continue today with two former police officers scheduled to testify.

Man Injured As Car Leaves Road

A 31-year-old San Rafael man was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for a scraped and cut eye suffered when his car went off Panoramic Highway a mile west of Pan Toll Ranger Station, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Officers, who had no details of the mishap, said Gary Lee Corvello, of 277 Union Street, was eastbound on the highway when the accident occurred about 9 p.m.

FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

11:34 a.m., Fairfax — Fire caused by carburetor backfire did minor damage to auto of Donald J. Yerion of 15 Morelos Avenue, Forest Knolls, while car was at 1824 Sir Francis Drake Avenue.

12:35 p.m., Sausalito — Smoke check at Lincoln Drive and Nevada Street resulted from smoking tar pot of roofing company.

2:46 p.m., Sausalito — Grass fire along Highway 101 south of the Waldo Tunnel burned 100 square feet; possibly caused by discarded cigarette.

5:38 p.m., Tomales — False report of car fire on Carrie Street. Marin County Fire Department responded.

SOUTHERN SONOMA

No fire calls.

Nod To Rock Event Under Faculty Eye

An old-fashioned ingredient will be added to the first public rock concert to be held at the College of Marin since a disastrous one in August 1969.

Although the word "chaperone" was never mentioned at last night's meeting of the Marin Junior College District board, trustees agreed to okay a proposed concert only if a certain number of faculty agree to be present.

The trustees first by a 4-3 vote turned down a plea from Bryan Gaddy, student head of the Marin Peace Coalition, that his group be allowed to have a fund-raising rock affair in the college gym sometime this month.

Board members Elizabeth M. Deedy, Harry J. Moore, Theodore C. Wellman and Robert E. Rogers voted against the concert even though Gaddy agreed to have the proceeds from ticket sales impounded until any damage could be assessed.

The matter seemed taken care of and most of the students interested left the meeting when Trustee Donald K. Felt musingly said he wanted to talk about the concert again.

He proposed an amendment requiring assurance that most of the 18 faculty members who had signed a letter approving such a concert will attend. His amendment brought yes votes from all the trustees except Moore and Mrs. Deedy.

They undoubtedly were still shuddering over a rock concert held in the gym in 1969 where young people did $800 damage and the county grand jury blasted the college for allowing the affair.

Young Gaddy, who sports a Fu Manchu type of beard, said he expects from 1,400 to 1,600 people at the concert which will probably be held Feb. 21 and will feature such groups as Clover, A B Sky and O Feiden Den.

The peace coalition group has announced plans to use proceeds for a prison reform project.

Budget Pinch May Delay Junior College Library

The Marin Junior College District board learned last night that the Governor's proposed budget does not include expected money needed for a new College of Marin library and other construction projects.

John A. Grasham, superintendent-president, told the board that a drastic slash in the budget provides funds for only about one-fourth of the statewide college projects approved earlier by the Board of Governors of the California Community Colleges.

The projects earlier approved for Marin will apparently not be high enough in a priority list to gain financial support, the trustees were told.

Grasham said that if there is a year's delay in getting the money, the local junior college will probably lose a $500,000 grant from the federal government. The state had been expected to provide matching funds.

The trustees fired off a letter to the governor last night protesting the budget slash, but they also went ahead with preliminary plans for the library, approving working drawings.

The board also approved going ahead with having specifications drawn up for tearing down existing buildings on the site of the proposed library.

The Marin Junior College District board also:

SABBATICAL - Approved one-year sabbatical leaves for Hazel Torres, Joseph Morel, Maryjane Dunstan and Nancy Kenealy and semester leaves for Jerome York, Paul Miller and Russell Ridge.

STUDENT — Authorized a contract with Sonoma State College for Mrs. Elizabeth Esmerian to student teach at College of Marin during the spring semester.

CATALOG - Accepted a low bid of $6,890 from Pacific Printing Arts for 7,500 college catalogs for 1971-72.

BOOKS - Authorized sale of rare and out-of-date books not usable by the college which were given by Newton K. Gregg.

TUTORING - Decided to apply for state funds for a Center for Independent Study, a tutoring service for students.

NORTH COLLEGE - Okayed spending $6,745 for additional topographical surveys at the proposed north college site.

PLANTS - Agreed to replant areas along the flood control channel damaged by erosion and construction.

Complaints Filed In Drug Raid

Complaints were filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against four persons arrested in a $56,000 narcotics raid Wednesday in San Anselmo.

No charge was filed against John Raymond Burke, 21, of Portales, N.M., and Sheryl Lynn Ledina, 19, of 122 Sycamore Avenue, San Anselmo, who also were arrested in the raid.

Rick John Lauzon, 20, of 122 Sycamore avenue, was charged with possession of LSD for sale and possession of marijuana for sale; David Login, 21, of 63 Redwood Road, San Anselmo, was charged with possession of both LSD and marijuana for sale and attempted sale of both drugs: Larry Munroe Moore, 21, of Oroville, Butte County, was charged with possession of marijuana for sale and possession of another person's driver's license, and Frederick Charles Griswold, 25, of Atlanta, Ga., was charged with possession of marijuana for sale.

They will be arraigned next Thursday.

The six were arrested when San Anselmo police, state and county drug agents raided Login's residence with a search warrant.

Officers said 20,000 suspected LSDtablets,75 kilos of suspected marijuana and 17 pounds of suspected hashish were confiscated.

Help Wanted

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—There is reportedly a shortage of school teachers in Southern California. The Los Angeles Board of Education is having to turn outside the state for new instructors.

Expert Sees High Rise For Novato

A surve of residential growth that could bring high rise buildings to Novato was envisioned yesterday by a Bank of America executive.

Richard M. Oddie, head of the bank's area development services, San Francisco, told the Novato Chamber of Commerce that growth was inevitable.

There probably will be more multiple family and townhouse construction and eventually high rise buildings, Oddie said.

The North bay, most attractive sector in the Bay Area, with more open land and less population, inevitably will become "a place of refuge for a lot of people," he contended.

He warned of the dangers of uncontrolled growth, citing East Petaluma as an example, and called for communities to set goals and objectives in the face of growth.

"Unless we have objectives, we're in trouble, because growth will roll over us and we'll have very little to say about it."

Rapid growth has transformed San Jose into "a junior Los Angeles," leaving that area "paved over and smogbound," he said.

Novato has reached "a sort of late teen-age maturity" in its years of growth, and stands a strategic point in the North Bay, at the junction of highways 101 and 37, Oddie commented.

Commenting on the city's proposed plan for a regional shopping center, north of downtown Novato, Oddie said the experts claim a regional center requires a population of 150,000 to serve.

As for industrial development, Oddie contended: "I think there are better uses for the land. Industry thrives in an industrial atmosphere." Such industrial areas exist from Richmond to Milpitas, he said.

Oddie said extensive growth elsewhere in the state should make North Bay residents pause "before rushing off in pursuit of sheer growth."

If sheer growth continued "we'd end up paving our most desirable parts of the state," he said. "The circumstances call for a second look at environment and ecology."

Two Teen-Agers In Burglary Case

The cases of Russell Fred Meils, 19, and Robert John Perinoni, 18, both of San Rafael, has been referred to the probation department for a report Feb. 17 in Marin Municipal Court on whether they are acceptable to juvenile court.

The two are charged with possessing stolen property and auto burglary.

They were arrested Monday after a motorist told the California Highway Patrol he had run out of gas on Highway 37 and his car was broken into while he went to a service station.

Steen's Strike

MOAB, Utah (UPI)—Charles Steen was living on beans and potatoes with his wife and two sons when he made a uranium discovery near here in 1953 that netted him several million dollars.

$3 Million LSD Raid Trial Reset

I-J Special Report

UKIAH — Trial of four Marin County residents arrested last June in a $3 million LSD raid in Fort Bragg has been rescheduled for Feb. 17 in Mendocino County Superior Court.

The trial originally was to have begun Monday, but both Mendocino County's two superior court judges and a visiting judge were disqualified, according to Judge Arthur B. Broaddus's secretary. Yet another visiting judge must be assigned before the jury trial can begin.

A total of six men and a girl face trial on a variety of felony counts arising from the LSD raid. Marinites charged are Craig Burns Champie, 20, of Fairfax; John Rene Rodigou, 23, and Michael B. Aylwin, 23, both of San Rafael, and Wayne Butler, 23, of Forest Knolls.

The court has ordered both prosecution and defense attorneys to withhold all comment on the case, but jail records indicate the defendants are still in jail, in lieu of $50,000 cash or $100,000 bail bonds.

Reagan Assured No Base Closings In Near Future

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Ronald Reagan said yesterday officials of the U.S. Department of Defense have informed him no military bases will be closed in the state in the near future.

Reagan's statement followed widespread rumors that Hamilton Air Force Base and Two Rock Station in Petaluma face shutdowns.

The governor said he has been assured that prior to any "significant reductions in defense base employment" in California, he will be given an opportunity to discuss them with defense officials.

The federal pledge, Reagan said, "will contribute to the continued stability of California's employment picture during the year ahead."

Reagan's statement echoed in part statements by Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, and an Air Force public information officer in Washington.

They said the Defense Department plans to keep Hamilton open barring drastic cuts in defense spending.

Crusade May Reinstate Club

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The United Bay Area Crusade may reinstate the Fremont Boys Club as an agency for which the Crusade will provide funds.

Laurence D. Bolling, general budget committee chairman, said Thursday the reinstatement would be recommended next Tuesday at a Crusade board meeting.

The club was cut two months ago because of a "lack of services provided for Spanish speaking residents and a lack of financial support from the local community."

Mod Minuteman Missile Launched

VANDENBERG AFB (UPI)—A modernized Minuteman missile was launched down the Western Test Range Thursday night.

An Air Force spokesman said the Minuteman II was launched from a modernized Minuteman I silo at this space and missile center at 9:20 p.m. The launch was directed by a Strategic Air Command Missile Combat Crew from Malstrom AFB, Mont.

Petaluman Booked For Marijuana

Kevin Wilkerson, 16, of 1102 F street, Petaluma, was arrested Wednesday on suspicion of possession of marijuana and marijuana for sale.

Police said they stopped Wilkerson and two other youths for possible truancy violations and found five bags of a substance believed to be marijuana in his possession. He was booked into Sonoma County juvenile hall.

Behr Appoints Napa Woman

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, yesterday appointed Astrid Edington as his Napa County representative.

A reporter for the Napa Register for 13 years, she is the wife of Lowell Edington, president of the Golden Gate Bridge District.

Mrs. Edington is secretary of the advisory board of Big Brothers of Napa County and a member of the Upper Napa Valley Republican Women and the Upper Napa Valley Associates. The Edingtons reside in Rutherford.

Mohave County Fastest Growing

KINGMAN, Arizona (UPI) — Mohave County in Arizona, home of Grand Canyon National Monument, is the fastest growing county in the United States, according to a survey by the First National Bank of Arizona.

Three huge lakes, Mead, Havasu and Mohave, formed by dams on the Colorado River, have created leisure-oriented communities and tourist attractions which brought a 224.6 per cent increase in population during the 1960s, the report indicated.

Blood Donors Busy In Singapore

SINGAPORE (UPI) —About 35,000 persons donated blood to the Blood Bank of Singapore in 1970. Only about 1 per cent of the donors were relatives of patients who had received blood transfusions.

Some of the donors had given blood as many as 30, 40, 50 or more times. Those who donated 50 or more times were awarded gold medals; 40 times, siler, and 30 times, bronze.

Fossils Are Stolen From Home

A College of Marin biologist — whose large collection of fossils, some 500 million years old, and scientific books were stolen from his San Anselmo home today — issued a plea to the thief to return the treasures.

Dr. Gordon L. Chan said that he returned to his home at 11 Morningside Drive last week after a trip to Mexico to discover that his "life's work" had been taken, as well as various personal possessions.

Missing, he said, are 250 pounds of marine fossils, "some fairly rare," and whale bone and clam fossils needed for a research project on the Duxbury Reef.

After the recent oil spill, Dr. Chan said, he is eager to start the project at Duxbury Reef but needs his fossils and books.

He appealed to the thief, who must have had a truck to carry away the stuff, to bring back the scientific articles and leave them "anywhere on the College of Marin campus."

Kennedy Lashes Idea Of Volunteer Army

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., says he made a survey of young men in his state but could find few who would volunteer to join an all-volunteer Army. He attacked the idea as one that would lure "poor men's sons to fight rich men's wars."

Kennedy's attack on President Nixon's volunteer Army proposal came Thursday in an appearance before the Senate Armed Services Committee. The administration has asked for more money and a two-year extension of the draft in hopes of converting to an all-volunteer force by mid-1973.

Third Moon Landing To Find The Secret

On the ground, the astronauts' families and ground controllers whooped with delight as Shepard and Mitchell reported touchdown.

"Good . . . good, they're down safe," cried Mrs. Louise Shepard at her Houston home. "They can't call him 'Old Mose' anymore. He's found his promised land."

Later, when Shepard stepped onto the moon, Louise jumped up and clapped her hands in Mission Control.

The astronauts spent almost five hours between the landing and moonwalk getting the Antares shipshape, eating lunch and donning their bulky white moon suits. They were 55 minutes late getting out of the lander because of trouble with their backpack communications.

"I think they put champagne instead of iodine in the LM (lunar module) water this time," Mitchell said as the astronauts struggled into their bulky garb.

Shepard's descent to the gray, dusty surface was telecast by a camera mounted on the lander. He then put a cover over its lens to avoid the sun damage that ruined Apollo 12's telecasts 15 months ago and moved it to a tripod 50 feet away.

Shepard aimed the camera at the silver and gold spacecraft then bounded back into the picture to help jab the flag into the ground.

"Mobility is very great under this crushing one-sixth G (gravity)", Mitchell told ground control.

Mitchell scooped a small sample of rocks and soil from the rim of a small crater 25 feet from Antares. This contingency sample was stowed away in case the astronauts were forced to leave the moon ahead of schedule.

When the astronauts panned the television camera around the spacecraft, viewers saw a gray lunar surface heavily pocked with small craters.

In May, 1961, Shepard launched America's era of space exploration with a 15-minute, 300 mile trip from Cape Canaveral (now Cape Kennedy) in the tiny Friendship 7 space capsule. His moon landing a decade later fulfilled a dream that drove him back into the space program after years behind a desk.

"We are in fact in a low area," Shepard said. "There seems to be a general swell, a wide valley, between Triple and Doublet (craters).

"It's a very uneven landing area here. And it's pock-marked by a tremendous amount of craters."

After planting the flag, Shepard and Mitchell gingerly unloaded the plutonium 238 nuclear fuel which will power the automated observatory for years. They carefully handled the graphite-encased cask on the end of the rod because of radiation heating.

"All this beautiful white paint is sure going to get filthy out here," said Mitchell.

They removed a rickshaw-like cart they will haul up to the rim of Cone Crater during their second moonwalk Saturday.

Cone Crater is the key to the whole expedition. Scientists believe rocks on its rim may provide clues to the "birth pangs" of the moon more than 4.5 million years ago.

Dr. Paul W. Gast, chief of lunar science at the Manned Spacecraft Center, said the landing area appeared "very soft." He said the rocks were few and unevenly distributed, and that some were of "truck size" around the rim of Cone Crater.

In this setting the astronauts hunted for "football-sized" rock somewhere close around Antares for geologists, who need bigger stones than those brought back by Apollos 11 and 12.

The trouble with the balky computer switch was the last in a series of problems which plagued Apollo 14's 238,000 mile voyage to the moon.

The mission began with a 40-minute launching delay at Cape Kennedy because of storm clouds. Three hours after blastoff, the docking mechanism which links the command capsule and moon lander failed to work until the astronauts' sixth try.

One of two batteries in the takeoff portion of the moonship showed a low reading during a midflight inspection, but ground experts decided it was strong enough to get Shepard and Mitchell off the moon.

There were also troubles with a landing craft radio antenna and the backpack radio communications difficulties. All were overcome.

They lift off from the moon Saturday afternoon after 33 1-2 hours on the surface —two hours longer than the Apollo 12 crew —to link up with the orbiting Kitty Hawk. Apollo 14 is scheduled to splash down in the Pacific Tuesday afternoon, 902 miles off American Samoa.

NEW COLLEGE BOSS

McGrath Promises Frankness, Honesty

Sonoma State College's new president, Thomas H. McGrath, said today that frankness and honesty will be his main tools in improving relations between the campus and outside communities.

In his third day on campus as president, McGrath told a press conference he hopes to speak to many civic organizations and promote better communications between students and residents in the communities.

He also said he hopes organizations like Rotary and Kiwanis clubs will, in turn, invite students to their meetings. "We have superior students here and we want to get people as enthusiastic about them as we are," he said.

He also said he hopes to expand both the liberal arts and the para-medical and business administration fields.

McGrath said he also plans new educational programs that would be complementary to the lower division courses offered at area junior colleges.

McGrath said he believes in tuition at state colleges. "Funds are running out for public education," he said. "Those who can afford to pay an increased share of the burden ought to do it," he said.

He said tuition would help maintain or increase the accessibility of higher education for everyone.

McGrath said he plans to deal frankly and meet as frequently as possible with students.

"I want to have a feel for how they feel," he said.

To deal with campus militancy, he said his office will try to be sensitive to pressures, to keep the lines of communication open and to involve students in campus decisions to inspire a sense of responsibility.

He said that if militancy develops despite these efforts, the college won't be shut down or damaged physically or psychologically "if I can help it."

He said he felt the closing of classes last spring after the Cambodian and Kent State University crises wasa mistake. "We have a personal contract with each student to keep classes open," he said.

McGrath was appointed as president last month by the state college board of trustees to replace acting president Earl W. Jones.

Youth Guilty Of Firebombing

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI)—A jury has found an 18-year-old former Fresno State College student guilty of starting a fire which destroyed a million-dollar computer and touched off four days of violence at the campus.

Virgil Lewis was convicted Thursday of two counts of arson, possession of combustible materizl and conspiracy to commit arson in connection with the incident last May 19.

Lewis was arrested near the computer center by a campus policeman moments after a firebomb was tossed through a window in the center.

State Workers Hit New Budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — About 1,000 state employees have told Gov. Ronald Reagan that his failure to provide state workers with a cost-of-living pay raise in his proposed 1971-72 budget was "grossly unfair and discriminatory."

The workers signed a letter delivered to the governor's office Thursday by Hal Crowden, a Division of Highways employee and president of the California State Employees Association's Golden State Chapter 146.

Youth Job Goes To Rex Hime

Rex S. Hime of Terra Linda has been appointed one of Gov. Ronald Reagan's two advisers on students.

The 22-year-old law student at the University of California at Davis was appointed Jan. 29 to arrange meetings between the governor and students, according to his mother, Mrs. Rex W. Hime of 239 Orange Blossom Lane.

She said her son was a leader of conservative students at Davis and helped found a conservative student paper there in 1969.

She said his work on the paper brought him to the attention of the Republican administration in Sacramento.

Hime, now in his second year of law school, graduated from Davis in 1969 with a bachelor's degree in political science. He graduated from Terra Linda High School in 1965.

The other appointee, Mrs. Hime said, was Timothy Comstock, 24, a third year law student at Davis.

Each will work part-time on the governor's staff, she said.

BALES

scientific evidence concerning the dangers" of pot.

The public defender also said the heavy penalties clog police and court files because the defendants refuse to enter guilty pleas.

Bales pointed out that the district attorneys recent legislative changes gave judges the discretion to reduce felony marijuana possession cases to misdemeanor offenses. Bales also noted that another law allows district attorneys to file misdemeanor charges in felony cases "where the sentence is alternative — prison or jail." Such a procedure is rarely used in Marin, Bales said, "but I want to check with other counties to see if they're trying it."

Bales stressed his personal opinion that first-time marijuana offenders are inadequately warned by the court that they face mandatory prison if convicted as repeaters.

"I think it's unfair to the young people" not to make them understand the risk. "The kids look on (marijuana possession arrests) like parking meter violations. They need warning," Bales said.

Bales added that he recommends 10 days in jail as part of the sentence for every convicted first offender in "self-user" possession cases. He said, however, that the courts have not obliged.

JOBS

ly shows a big increase in January — larger than the 780,000 by which joblessness grew last month. Therefore it said that after seasonal adjustments, the unemployment figure showed a drop of 110,000 from December.

The actual number of employed persons declined by 1.3 million, but the bureau said that this was fewer than normal for January, and that the seasonally adjusted employment total registered an increase of 400,000.

The bureau said that the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate among adult men declined from 4.6 to 4.3 per cent, after rising steadily for most of 1970. The rates for adult women at 5.7 per cent and teenagers at 17.6 per cent were essentially unchanged.

The average work week for rank and file production workers increased 0.2 hours to 37.1 hours, and average weekly earnings went up 11 cents to $122.21.

Semorile Files In School Race

One more candidate filed his papers yesterday for the April 20 election to the San Rafael Board of Education, City Clerk Marion A. Grady reported.

John L. Semorile Jr., communications technician, of 11 Constance Drive, filed for one of the three posts on the Board of Education.

Filings close at noon, Feb. 11.

Firemen Complete Training Program

Seven new firemen hired by the city of San Rafael Jan. 4 have completed five weeks of training and will go to work next week, Fire Chief Vance Trivett said today.

They are James R. Coffeey, Don R. Thompson, Anthony R. Ginnocchio, Brent Marshall, John Williams, Terry Butler and James Zell.

OBITUARIES

CLAIRE STIMSON

Word has been received in Marin of the death of Claire Stimson, former speech teacher in the Mill Valley School District. She died Jan. 24 in Germany.

Miss Stimson died following surgery at the United States Air Force Hospital in Wiesbaden.

At the time of her death she was a speech teacher in the American School at Mainz, Germany. She previously taught in a similar school at Orleans, France.

Miss Stimson left Marin about 10 years ago.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Ella Stimson, of Hollywood, and two sisters.

AXEL PETERSON

Funeral was held today for Axel C. Peterson, a retired Almonte bartender. Peterson, of 170 Lavender Lane, died Wednesday in a local hospital after a long illness. He was 77.

Born in Moshon, Norway, Peterson came to Marin County 30 years ago. He was a member of the Bartender's Union, Local 41 of San Francisco. His last job was at the post office bar in San Francisco.

Survivors include a son, Morgan A. Peterson of Mill Valley; three brothars, Ralph of Paradise, Butte County, and Egil and Ingvald, both of Canton, South Dakota; a sister, Mrs. Dagny Lien of Canton, and two grandchildren.

Burial was at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

LUELLA WORDEN

Funeral for Luella Worden, 85, of 1186 Simmons Lane, Novato, a longtime resident of Marin, was held today in Novato.

Mrs. Worden, widow of Burton Worden, died at her home Monday after suffering a heart attack. She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Novato.

Surviving are a daughter, Bertha Gleason of Philadelphia, N.Y., three sons, Louis and Archie of Novato and Charles Worden of Sandy Creek, N.Y.; a sister, Edith O'Conner of Toronto, Canada; a brother, Freeman Brown of Vancouver, British Columbia; 23 grandchildren, 65 great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren.

Burial was at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

Council Delays Zink Action

By PAT ANGLE

The Sausalito City Council has postponed action on a state hearing officer's decision that a fired Sausalito police sergeant be reinstated and demoted to patrolman, Mayor Alexander R. Imlay reported yesterday.

The mayor said the council, after meeting in closed session for more than three hours Wednesday night to consider the case of Sgt. Thomas H. Zink, decided to ask for summaries of the evidence from attorneys on both sides before deciding the police officer's fate.

The city council's postponement drew prompt and bitter fire from Zink's attorney, James Leech, who accused the council of "using delaying tactics" and being "willing to go to any lengths" to keep Zink from returning to the Sausalito police.

He noted that the city had spent several thousand dollars for Paul A. Winton's services and expressed astonishment that the hearing officer's recommendation was not accepted.

"We did not feel the findings the hearing officer presented in his report supported his recommendations," Imlay explained. But the mayor refused to say which part of the decision the council did not feel the findings warranted, the reinstatement or the demotion.

Imlay said the council has given Leech and City Attorney Leland H. Jordan 15 days to prepare detailed summaries of the evidence presented to hearing officer Winton after eight days of hearings in November and December.

According to the mayor, such summaries will contain more detailed information than Winton's report, but less than a complete transcript of testimony, which he said would take about a year to prepare because the state office which prepares such documents has a large backlog of work.

The mayor said, "We will ask the hearing officer to take the attorneys' summaries and prepare one impartial, complete summary of the evidence which we will use to make our final decision."

Imlay stressed the council is not asking Winton to make another recommendation on whether Zink should be reinstated. "The council will decide that," he said. "No new evidence will be included in the summaries," he added.

Leech said he feels the council, in rejecting the hearing officers' findings and decision, has already made up its mind. "The new report isn't going to change anything."

The mayor firmly denied the attorney's allegations. "We are just as interested as Mr. Zink is in getting the matter concluded in a way that is fair to the city, and particularly to Mr. Zink," he said. "If we had already decided what to do, we wouldn't be asking for more facts. We are simply using the procedures prescribed by law."

The 33-year-old Zink was fired from the Sausalito department in May after 11 years on the force. At that time the city leveled a variety of charges against him, including "emotional instability," "inability to maintain a satisfactory relationship with subordinate officers," "use of a stimulant while on duty" and appearing for work late, out of uniform with the odor of alcohol on his breath.

In the lengthy report released last month, the hearing officer said he found no evidence to support charges of emotional instability and inability to relate satisfactorily to subordinate officers.

Winton also noted the stimulant Zink used while on duty had been prescribed by a physician and said the officer was not addicted to it, used it sparingly only when he needed to be alert. The drug did not impair his functions as a police officer, the hearing officer ruled.

Winton concluded that Zink had been late for work on several occasions, was seen not wearing a tie and came to work with the odor of alcohol on his breath several times, but said the alcohol did not affect his ability to perform his duties.

Although the hearing officer admitted the sergeant had been guilty of "inexcusable neglect" in the performance of his duties as a police officer, he said he did not feel Zink's actions warranted his dismissal.

Leech said he felt his client would eventually have to take the case to court.

Marin City Panel Invites Merger

Marin City Council members last night suggested a merger with the Marin City Tenants Union if the union is willing.

On a motion by Frank Phillips and a second by Melvin Atkins, the council invited the tenants union representatives to attend the next meeting of the council and become a part of the council "if they choose to do so."

Rev. Samuel W. Banks, chairman of the Marin City Council, said the next meeting will be held at 8 p.m. next Thursday at the Manzanita Center in Marin City. Mary Brooks heads the tenants union.

Several members of the audience also suggested that vulgar language used at some of the public meetings in Marin City are a disgrace and should be cleaned up.

"We're supposed to be civilized and decent people here, but the language used at some of the meetings is a disgrace," declared Rogers Jones, a retired cook who lives at 49 Cole Drive. Several members in the audience nodded agreement.

Last night's meeting, with Reverend Banks presiding, was quiet and peaceful.

Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of both the Marin Housing Authority and the Marin Redevelopment agency, had been invited to listen to complaints on conditions in Marin City's 300 public housing units.

Shepherd was there early last night, but when the meeting started at 8:20 p.m., the council members outnumbered the audience 5 to 2. The audience finally grew to 10, but most of the questioning came from Council member Atkins.

Atkins complained that the housing is poorly constructed, ventilation is lacking, some overhead pipes are not covered, and 40-foot high buildings lack fire escapes. He said the average family in Marin City has an income of $300 or less per month to support a family of four or five, which leaves barely enough for food and bill payments.

"Sometimes, things back up on you until you have to say the hell with rent."

Shepherd replied that rent paid by the tenants, averaging about $50 or $60 per unit, is not enough to cover maintenance cost. He said government subsidy is making up the difference.

"I can take you anywhere in the Bay Area and you won't find a public housing project this well designed and with these amenities at these prices."

Rogers Jones agreed. "I've been to various places," said Jones. "These high rise buildings are not shacks. There is no place else in the country where you can get buildings like this for these prices. As far as the buildings are concerned, I don't think we have any beef."

Shepherd said the rents paid in Marin City's public housing range anywhere from zero to $140 per month. The rent cannot exceed one fourth of the family income, and those who have no income get free rent, with the government paying the difference.

He assured residents he is trying to get funds to improve ventilation. He said the redevelopment agency plans to spend $25,000 to $30,000 to improve children's play area and $43,000 to improve the drainage system. He said the agency had just completed a new lighting system for $40,000.

Several women complained that the lights are too bright and shine into their bedrooms, and the electrical wiring will not accommodate clothes driers.

Shepherd said he will look into those problems and invited residents to bring in their complaints. At the same time, he asked the residents to do their share to help maintain their homes.

Since he took over as executive director six months ago, Shepherd said, six or seven truckloads of debris have been carted out of Marin City. "We have trimmed hedges and pruned trees. I defy you to pick any home here now and find anything wrong with it structurally. I have that much faith in my crews."

Oil Pipeline To Be Safe, Builder Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Construction problems involved in building an 800-mile pipeline in Alaska can be solved without upsetting the environment, the president of the firm that will build the pipeline said Thursday.

Edward Patton of Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. said there were "no unsolvable technical problems" preventing building the pipeline from Alaska's north slope to the port of Valdez.

Patton said tests still being conducted indicated there would be no adverse effects that cannot be corrected. He said a process has been developed to restore tundra torn up during construction and that the pipeline will be built in such a manner it will not block migration routes or disrupt breeding of caribou and other wildlife.

The wilderness society and several other environmental groups have filed suit seeking to prevent the federal government from issuing a permit for the project, arguing the pipeline would upset the fragile environment of the far north. U.S. District Judge George Hart in Washington has issued a preliminary injunction requiring the interior secretary to give the groups 14 days notice before issuing a permit.

The judge also has issued a preliminary injunction banning work on the pipeline until the case of residents of fiveAlaskan villages who are trying to keep the pipeline from being placed across their traditional lands is settled.

Patton said his company will not proceed with construction until all legal questions are cleared up. He said the construction project is expected to take at least three years.

Hawks, Doves On Wiretap Proposal

CHICAGO (UPI) — A special committee of the American Bar Association is asking the group's policy-making body to condone, under certain conditions, electronic surveillance obtained without a prior court order.

Another branch of the 150,000-member ABA condemns the practice, contending that such surveillance should not be allowed as evidence in a trial.

The opposing views will be presented to the policy-making House of Delegates Monday and Tuesday along with other questions relating to wiretap. The ABA is holding its annual mid-year meeting here through Tuesday.

Delegates may adopt either view as official ABA policy, or put the question off for future consideration. Adoption by the ABA does not, however, make a proposal a local, state or federal law.

Last week a U.S. district court judge in Detroit ruled the government could not conduct wiretaps in domestic security cases without court permission. The government is appealing the decision and is expected to go to the U.S. Supreme Court if it is turned down at the appellate level.

The ABA committee which condones surveillance without a prior court order does so only in special circumstances—if the wiretap were ordered by the President, protected the country against subversion, or were authorized by police when "conspiratorial activities" threaten national security or are "characteristic of organized crime."

The group espousing surveillance without a court order is the Special Committee on Standards for the Administration of Criminal Justice, which drafted proposals covering the field of wiretap and electronic surveillance for the ABA's consideration.

Another group within the ABA, the Criminal Law Council, helped draft the proposals, but objected to six sections of the committee's recommendations and offered its own proposals opposing wiretaps obtained without court orders.

A tentative draft of the recommendations was published in 1968, but the commission decided to revise its standards to more closely conform to the 1968 Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act.

No More Book Burns At Vatican

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Vatican once had a reputation for burning books and even authors, but it now plans gentler tactics for writers who smack of "heresy."

It announced Thursday that books and writings accused of being damaging to the Roman Catholic faith will be "examined" at a weekly meeting in the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith.

The congregation descends from the old Holy Office, the department that once burned books —and the occasional heretic—through the Inquisition.

Actually, the word heresy has been replaced in Vatican parlance by the gentler "doctrinal error," an official of the congregation, Msgr. Josef Tomko, told a news conference.

Tomko outlined the milder measures that will be adopted against allegedly errant Catholic authors.

"I can assure you we do not have an electric chair, nor a gas chamber," he joked.

Now authors will be informed of any Vatican investigation against them and will be given the opportunity to explain their works to their bishops or to the congregation before any action is taken against them.

The most that could happen to recalcitrant authors who refuse to correct or retract "errors" is that the Vatican would issue a condemnation of their work and remove them from church employment, Tomko said.

They would also run the risk of excommunicating themselves by denying church doctrine, he added, but the Vatican no longer would issue a formal edict of excommunication against them.

Watson To Face Trial For Murder

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles (Tex) Watson, who last October was reported to be "turning into a vegetable," has regained his mental capacity and will be tried for the Tate-Labianca murders for which Charles Manson and three young women already have been convicted.

District Attorney Joseph Busch announced Thursday that doctors at a state mental hospital in Atascadero had found the 24-year-old Watson "restored to legal capacity. Busch said he would be arraigned in Los Angeles in the next few days.

Watson's long fight against extradition from McKinney, Tex., excluded him from prosecution with Manson and the three female codefendants. The jury in that case is now hearing evidence to determine a sentence of life or death for the four.

Four other female members of Manson's nomadic "family" have testified about the love that Manson generated through the past week and two more are waiting to take the stand to describe how he treated them like a father.

Witnesses testified at the trial that the six-foot, two-inch Watson actually led the bloody forays into the home of actress Sharon Tate and Leno Labianca in August, 1969.

When Watson, along with Manson, Susan Atkins, Patricia Krenwinkel and Leslie Van Houten, were indicted by a grand jury in December, 1969, he was at his home in McKinney, Tex., and he managed to resist extradition until Sept. 12, 1970. The other went to trial June 15.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—The Roswell Park Memorial Institute reports lung cancer continued to increase in frequency in 1970 while cancer of the cervix is becoming rarer.

Contract For Pump Plant Let

San Rafael Sanitation District directors have awarded a $496,800 contract to the Clearwater Hydromech Corporation of Burlingame for the sanitary pumping station on Francisco Boulevard.

Norris W. Rawles, district administrator, said that before the contract is signed the contractor must submit a list of similar jobs to the board to obtain their final qualifications approval.

The proposed pumping station will replace another station displaced by work on Highway 101, Virginia Congdon, board secretary reported.

The board also awarded a $62,530 contract to the Coast PUMP Company of Berkeley for the equipment needed in the new pumping station, she said.

In other action, the board awarded a $27,844 contract to San Rafael contractor Joseph E. Redmond for the construction of the new employee building at the district's main plant on Irene Street near the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge, Mrs. Congdon said. The new building would contain offices for the administrative employees and a water-testing laboratory.

Hearing Set For Man On Grand Theft

Solomon Marquez Jr., 31, of San Francisco, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of grand theft. Preliminary hearing was set for Feb. 16.

Marquez is accused of attempting to steal from Sausalito City Hall $400 in coins collected from parking meters.

Union Pickets School Bus Firm

OAKLAND (UPI) —Picketing by Teamsters Union members of a school bus firm resulted in some tardy students Thursday in Berkeley, Oakland and Castro Valley.

Thomas Emery, who heads the Bay Cities Bus Line, said his firm has contracts with union drivers here and that the picketing was part of a Teamsters organizing drive at a sister company in Long Beach.

Spare drivers filled in for the 16 of 74 drivers who refused to cross picket lines in Oakland.

Some buses were up to an hour late getting to schools.

NATURAL TO CONCRETE — Preliminary plans by the Army Corps of Engineers for flood control in Novato call for leaving Novato Creek in its natural state for most of its length, but Warner Creek, (above), would be a concrete channel, 32-feet wide, from near Simmons Lane to its juncture with Novato Creek. The rectangular channel, 10 foot deep, would go through the area, above, south of South Novato Boulevard.

(Independent-Journal photos by Bob Hax)

Novato Flood Control: One Creek May Succumb

The Novato Creek Committee has been successful thus far in its campaign to avoid having Novato Creek transformed into a concrete flood control channel in downtown Novato.

But salvation of most Novato Creek may come at the cost of having 1.3 miles of Warner Creek, its companion stream through central Novato, in a concrete channel 31-feet wide and 10 feet deep.

The Army Corps of Engineers has proposed what it calls an economically feasible plan for Novato Creek flood waters to be diverted at Simmons Lane into a concrete channel south to Warner Creek, about 200 yards away.

From that point Warner Creek would be in a concrete channel eastward and downstream to where it joins Novato Creek below South Novato Boulevard, a stretch of 1.3 miles.

From the point where the two creeks join to Highway 101, Novato Creek would flow in a concrete channel, but east of the highway it would be in open channle to San Pablo Bay.

The corps plan has been presented to the Novato Creek Committee which will set a public hearing to get community reaction and forward its recommendations to the army corps of engineers.

LeRoy M. Gerner, cochairman of the creek committee, has said the alternative, a trapezoidal earth channel on Warner Creek would have to be wider and would take out more trees and more land.

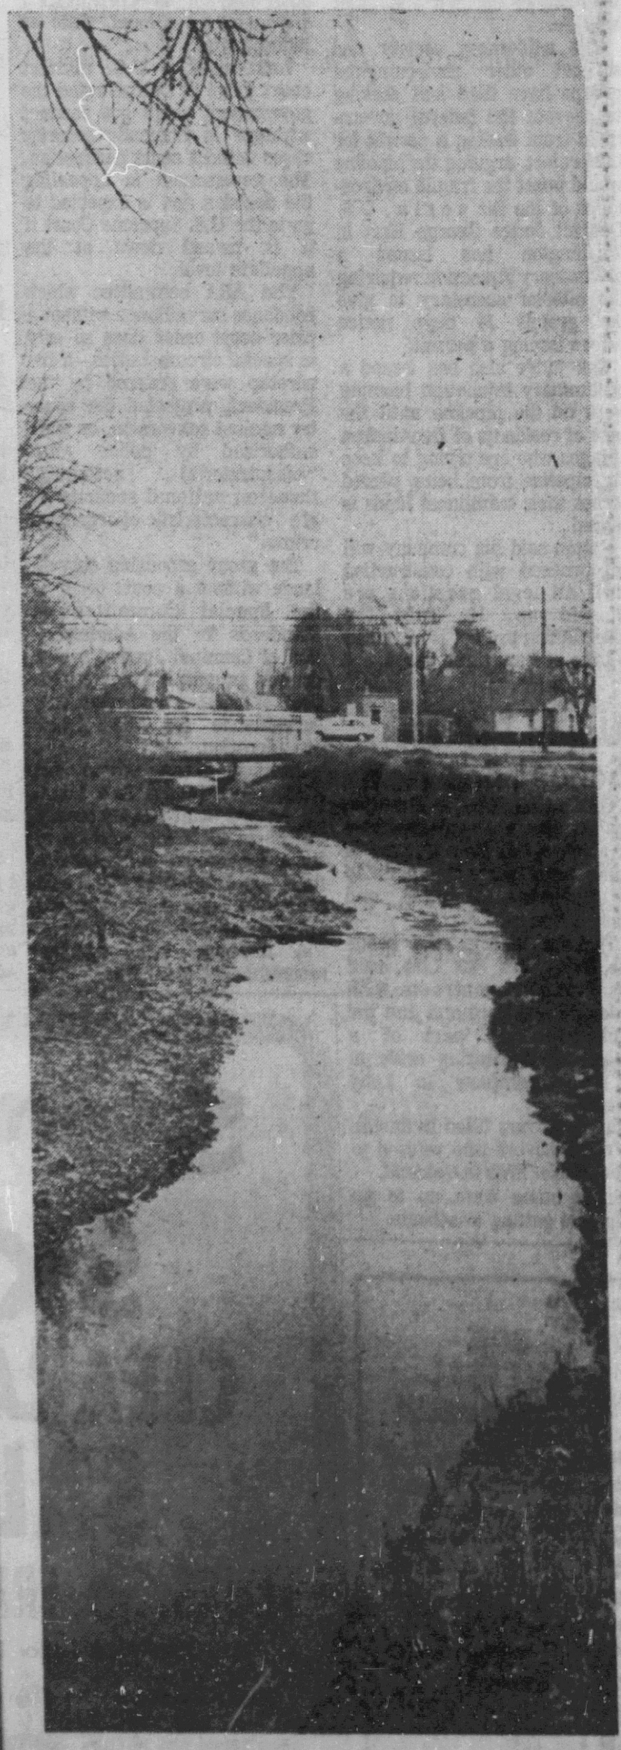
Under the plan for a rectangular channel most of the trees would be saved, and "very few homes would be involved," Gerner said. There is "a lot of open area" along Warner Creek, he explained.

Gerner said there were erosion problems along the creek that threatened property, and felt these homeowners would welcome a project that would prevent their yards "from going into the creek."

Committee members will study the concrete channel plan with a view toward possible recreational developments and landscaping and have a public hearing "within a month or so," he said.

JOINING OF THE CREEK — Warner Creek (left) joins Novato Creek, (right) which will be left in its natural state to this juncture, east of South Novato Boulevard. At this point, water from the two creeks would be channeled into a 38-foot wide rectangular concrete channel, which would run to Highway 101 near Lamont Avenue.

NARROW STREAM — A northward view from Tamalpais Avenue shows Warner Creek as a narrow stream cutting a path at the rear of homes along Novato Boulevard.



FLOOD CHANNEL — Under preliminary plans a concrete channel would be constructed along a stretch of Warner Creek, including the channel shown above, looking east toward South Novato Boulevard.

THERE OUGHT TO BE A LAW

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"I'm not jotting down all the cute things the children say and do. So far I've only had time to fill half a page."

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, Feb. 5, the 36th day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn. Those born on this day are under the sign of Aquarius.

On this day in history:

In 1631 British clergyman Roger Williams arrived in Salem, Mass., seeking religious freedom. He founded the colony of Rhode Island.

In 1904 Russia and Japan broke diplomatic relations in a dispute over Korea and Manchuria.

In 1945 the U.S. Army broke through Nazi Germany's Siegfried Line.

In 1969 the Federal Communications Commission made a start toward banning the advertising of cigarettes on radio and television.

A thought for today: American historian Henry Brooks said, "He too serves a certain purpose who only standards and cheers."

Decides Again Changing Bust

BOURNEMOUTH, England (UPI)—Barmaid Jane Tornianinen has given up her plans to undergo plastic surgery to reduce her 38-1-2-inch bust.

Miss Tornianinen, fed up with men's remarks about her ample attributes, said a note from a group of 200 British servicemen in Germany asking her to be their official pinup girl was the clincher that changed her mind.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Red Suits Key To Defeat And It Takes Honest Player

"It never occurs to the average criminal that other people are reasonably honest," Sherlock Holmes remarked to Dr. Watson as he hustled the good doctor out of the Baker Street Bridge Club. As usual, the great detective's friend tried to connect the remark with the bridge hand they had just witnessed. There just didn't seem to be a connection.

CLUB ACTION

West led the four of clubs, and East won with the jack. East continued with the ace of clubs, and South ruffed.

Declarer took a spade finesse, losing to the queen, and East returned the jack of diamonds up to dummy's queen. Declarer drew three rounds of trumps, led another spade to force out the ace, and then showed his hand. He could reach dummy with the ace of diamonds to discard two diamonds on the good spades.

Dr. Watson reviewed the play in his mind and finally gave up. "Who was the criminal, and what did you mean?" he asked. You surely have both answers.

SHOULD FIND OUT

When South drops the nine of clubs at the first trick, East cannot tell whether or not this is the truth. If South has another club, East can hope to get two clubs and two spades; but if South has the singleton nine of clubs, East can expect only three tricks in the black suits.

East should find out about the diamonds by returning the four of diamonds at the second trick. If West cannot produce the king of diamonds, East will have to hope for two clubs and two spades.

HOW TO DEFEAT

As the cards lie, however, West does produce the king of diamonds at the second trick, forcing out dummy's ace. Now East can play for a diamond trick in addition to three tricks in the black suits.

East gets in with the queen of spades to return the jack of diamonds; and again with the ace of spades to cash the ten of diamonds. This defeats the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one club, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- 6 4 3 2
♥- 5
♦- K 5 3
♣- 10 8 7 4 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs.

You may count three points in high cards, three points for the singleton and one point for extra length in partner's suit. This is enough for a raise. You would raise one diamond to two diamonds and one spade to two spades, but you would pass if partner opened with one heart.

Cycle Flips, Rider Injured

A 27-year-old San Francisco man was injured Wednesday when his motorcycle overturned on Panoramic Highway, according to the California Highway Patrol.

George Rains was treated at Marin General Hospital for a broken collarbone.

The highway patrol could give no details of the accident.

Judy Brown Loves Teaching.

(more important, she loves to see kids succeed)

Judy Brown is director of the new Marin County Sullivan Reading Center. She's taught in Marin County for several years, and for the past two summers she helped establish reading clinics. Judy Brown knows kids. She understands their learning problems.

"There are lots of reasons children can't read. Once we recognize the problem, we can tackle it. For the most part, the children just need more individualized instruction and they lack confidence in themselves. Well, the Sullivan Reading Program builds confidence as it improves their reading skills."

Why Johnny and Ginny and Judy and Jimmy Can Read. The Sullivan Reading Program has been improving children's reading skills for years. In fact, more than five million school children have used nationally acclaimed Sullivan Reading materials to supplement their reading courses in school. Now, Sullivan Reading Centers are being established to expand learning opportunities for children at all levels.

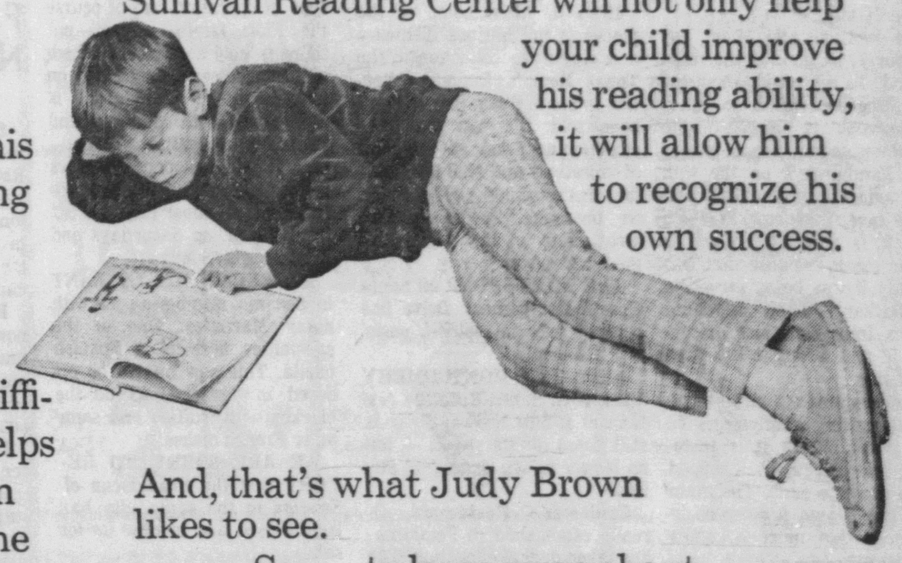
The new Marin County Sullivan Reading Center, fourth to be opened in the Bay Area over the past year, offers personalized reading instruction and self-paced small group instruction for each student. Classes are small — maximum of five students in each class and they are supervised by highly trained reading specialists selected for their genuine concern for each student's personal progress. The step by step Sullivan teaching program is built on this highly personalized relationship between student and teacher.

The child builds on his own success. Students with individual reading needs first undergo a series of tests to determine their levels of ability and to provide bench marks for measuring continued progress. Each student works at his own pace, experiencing success and strong reinforcement as his reading improves.

If certain word-sounds are easy for him, he works and progresses through the books rapidly. If he finds a difficult word-sound, his reading specialist helps him immediately. Each page of text is an upward step in his learning process. As he gets answer after answer right, he will learn to read simple words quickly and easily — and with confidence in his own ability.

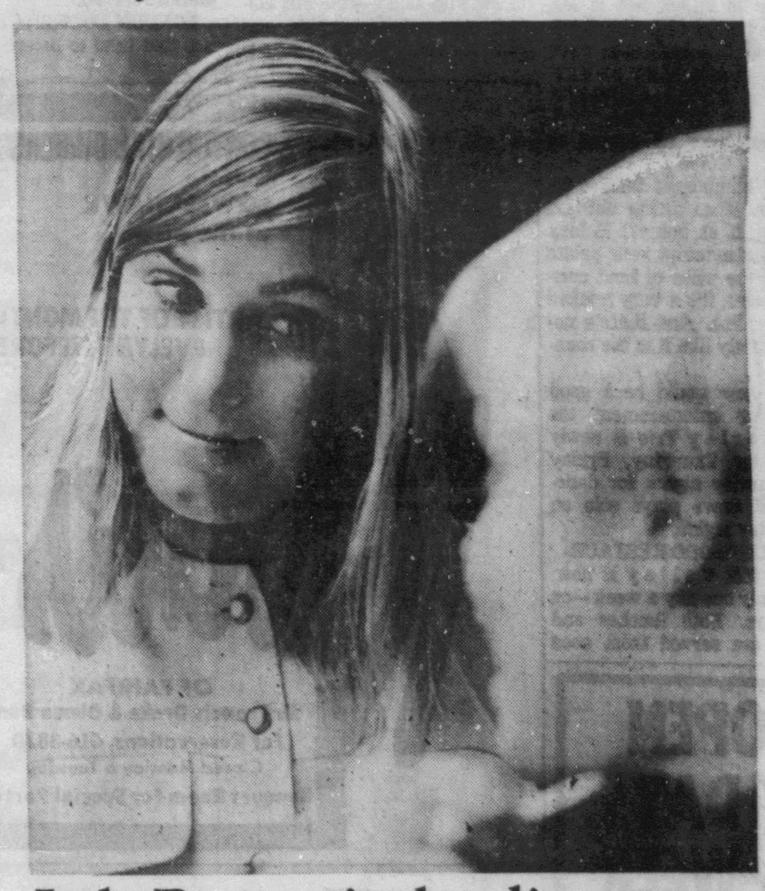
Convenient times for Mother and Child. The New Marin County Sullivan Reading Center is open from 10:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m. weekdays and from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. on Saturdays. Each student enrolls for a four-week session and attends the Center one hour a day. If he needs additional time during the course to make sufficient progress, he is given the extra time at no additional cost. Initial testing and all materials used by students are also included in the $60 fee for the four-week course.

More than a reading program, the Sullivan Reading Center will not only help your child improve his reading ability, it will allow him to recognize his own success.



And, that's what Judy Brown likes to see.

So . . . to learn more about the Marin County Sullivan Reading Center, just call 479-5318; oh, and ask for Judy Brown.



Judy Brown is the director of the new Marin Sullivan Reading Center.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Many Marin Dineries Boast The Best Hamburger In Town

Take the humble hamburger.

By any other name (chopped sirloin, Salisbury steak, ground round, Frenchburger, beefburger) it's still just a hamburger — and probably the country's most popular entree. Not just because it is usually one of the lowest priced items on the menu, but because it's genuinely enjoyed as a lunch or dinner staple. Men especially like it and some prefer it over dishes that are far more expensive and time consuming in their preparation.

There are at least 10 or 15 restaurants that boast they serve "the best hamburger in Marin County."

The fact is, just about any hamburger is good if the meat is good. To my mind, about the only thing you can do to ruin it is overcook it. But as with steaks, some people prefer their hamburgers on the well done side, some medium and others rare. Even raw, in which form it is generally billed as Tartar steak, because that was the way it was being served in the Balkans, when merchant traders from Hamburg discovered it and brought the idea back home.

Fine restaurants aren't averse to putting hamburgers on their menu, where it is customarily described as chopped sirloin or some such. The main difference is that it's served in a manner that more becomes its true worth.

You'll find it on the menu in the Alta Loma Room at Holiday Inn. There it's down as "broiled chopped steak —freshly ground steer beef served on charred plank, duchess potato bordure."

It's so eye-catching that when I saw it in all its bed of legumes and tubers my mouth watered and I almost sent back my filet of sole Marguery poached in wine. I am assured it tastes just as delicious as it looks and have no reason to doubt it.

But if hamburger fails to inspire you when dining out (too much of it at home?) Holday Inn can also tempt your palate with all the wiles of haut cuisine. Besides, it's a very relaxed place to dine. And there's nothing exactly like it in the county.

Right now would be a good time. For entertainment the Steve Corley Trio is newly booked for Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights for dancing. And Steve plays solo on Wednesday nights.

THE REDWOOD RESTAURANT in Mill Valley is now closed only one day a week —on Thursdays. Both lunches and dinners are served from noon — lunches until 5 p.m. and dinners until 9 p.m.

Owners Joeen Arnone, Bob Dean and Leon Alvey plan on adding some South American dishes to their menu this year, in addition to the regular Mexican carte.

TIBURON LODGE has gone into a regular steak dinner menu Wednesdays through Sundays, featuring steaks, steak and lobster combination and several seafood items. Price range is from $3.95 to $6.95.

The $3.75 buffet dinner (including wine) is now being served only on Mondays and Tuesdays.

IF YOU MISS some of the pieces in the antique dishware and glassware collection in the Topaz Room's famous collection in Santa Rosa, they haven't been sold. it's just that construction next door sets up a lot of vibrations and Neil Blumenthal isn't taking any chances on breakage, so he's stored away many of the items until the work is over.

THE HILLTOPPER on Santa Rosa's Montgomery Drive has covered over its outdoor patio. It is also heated.

AND IN MONTGOMERY VILLAGE, Santa Rosa the restaurant at 2400 Midway Drive is still noted for its steaks — but no longer as the Saddle 'n' Sirloin.

Cattleman's Restaurant, already established in Petaluma, has taken over the location. The operation will closely follow that in Petaluma, but in Santa Rosa lunches are also being served.

Hours are from 11:30 a.m. Mondays through Fridays. Prices range from $1.50 to $2.75, with salad, wine and coffee. Also cheeseburgers and hamburgers.

ANOTHER NEW OPENING is in Petaluma at 208 Petaluma Boulevard North, where Uncle Lou's used to be, and before that — Diamond Lil's.

It's now called the Velvet Plume, operated by Gus Kotsaris, who also has two coffee shops in Petaluma — Henny Penny and The Showers. The former is an all-night restaurant.

The Velvet Plume serves lunches Mondays through Saturdays —turkey, beef and French dip sandwiches and barbecued ribs. Dinners are in the $3.25 — $5.75 range, for eastern prime rib, Saratoga lamb chops, prawns, rib and top sirloin steaks and 12-ounce hamburgers.

There is entertainment nightly, except on Sundays and Mondays.

Chef here is none other than Lowman Whittenburg, who used to operate the Plate 'n' Platter in the Bel Aire Shopping Center, Tiburon.

ABOUT A YEAR AGO, Fiori's Italian Restaurant at Occidental was sold to Robert and Marilou Ranch and Tony and Irene Bonaccorso.

They have kept up the same type of operation and of course the Fiori family name —but there is now a different schedule. Lunches are served only on Saturdays. The restaurant is now closed both Mondays and Tuesdays until after Easter — then it will be open Tuesdays through Sundays. Dinners are from 4 p.m. most days — but from 2 p.m. on Saturdays and from noon on Sundays.

AU RELAIS RESTAURANT in Sonoma is popular with many Marinites. One of the specialties here is a Spanish paella. This now has to be ordered in advance, as do the chicken with truffles and some other French dishes.

WE ARE SORRY TO REPORT that the Franciscan of Sonoma in the same city has been closed and is now up for sale.

ONE OF THE SPECIALTIES at the Swiss Hotel in Sonoma besides Italian dishes is Chinese food on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights. Chinese family dinners are $3.75-$4.25. A la carte dishes are also served.

LONDON LODGE in Glen Ellen, that used to be open seven days a week, is now closed Wednesdays.

AND DON'T BE SURPRISED if one day you hear that Juanita Musson, who serves those huge meals at her place on Sonoma Highway at Fetters Hot Springs, opens up another place in Marin County again.

THE LION'S SHARE in San Anselmo will have Tim Buckley and Quintet (including Bunk and Buzz Gardner) as entertainment tonight through Sunday. Also scheduled are other performers.

Flournoy Again Names Bagley

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, today was designated again by State Controller Houston I. Flournoy to succeed him in event he is unable to serve because of war or enemy-caused calamity.

Bagley headed a list of seven nominees by Flournoy who must be confirmed by the Senate. The same men were selected by Flournoy in 1967 at the outset of his first term in office.

Each state constitutional officer is required to designate emergency successors. The purpose of the law is to minimize the danger of a total paralysis of state government in event of an enemy-caused disaster.

Nudes Cavorting In Outdoor Film Snarls Traffic

CHICAGO (UPI)—An increase in auto accidents along U.S. 12 north of suburban Palatine was apparently explained by the attraction at the friendly neighborhood outdoor movie theater — "Naked Island."

Police said the X-rated film, which is visible from the highway, features nude men and women romping across the giant screen. They apparently understood how a motorist might lose his composure but said there was nothing they could do.

The theater management said it was troubled by "gapers blocks" caused by drivers who slow down for a better look. But the theater spokesman said "Naked Island's" traffic jams really aren't that bad.

"You should have been here last summer when we were showing "I Am Curious (Yellow)," he said.

Sharp Quake

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—The University of California seismographic station reported a sharp earthquake Thursday night, centered off the coast of British Columbia.

A spokesman for the station said it struck at 11:37 p.m. PST (2:37 a.m. Friday EST) and recorded 5.25 on the Richter scale.

Ancient Sierra Glaciers Yielding Valuable Data

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK (UPI)—A cluster of small glaciers nestled on the crest of the Sierra Nevada range east of here is providing government scientists with valuable information about natural water storage.

Glacier experts for the U.S. Geological Survey, Yosemite National Park and Inyo National Forest are all conducting independent studies but are sharing the knowledge they gain.

Gary Balding, of the U.S. Geological Survey, heads a survey team which has been analyzing the Maclure glacier at the base of Mt. Maclure since 1966.

In May of each year, Balding leads a two-man team into the rugged country where the quarter-of-a-square-mile glacier is located. They set up 16-foot stakes to measure the snowmelt and dig a "snow pit" to measure the water content of the snow.

They return again in July to measure the exposure on the stakes and find out how much snow has melted. They then repeat the "snow pit" test. The same tests are repeated again in October.

The scientists also maintain instruments that measure runoff from the glacier, wind velocity and air temperature.

The other five glaciers, ranging in size from 30 acres to 10 acres, are located on Mt. Lyell, Mt. Conness, Mt. Dana and Mt. Kuna. Both Yosemite and Inyo study teams are studying the entire six glaciers in the group.

Rocky Rockwell, a U.S. Forest Service representative from Inyo, estimates the age of the small glaciers at about 5,000 years.

He says they are descendents of the monster glaciers which ground out many of the mountain valleys 30,000 years ago during the ice age.

Rockwell theorized the tremendous glacier which moved mountains to form the majestic Yosemite Valley was probably two to three miles thick and 15 or 20 miles long.

However, he said there was a dry period in the Sierra between the age of the giant glaciers and the present when there were no glaciers at all.

Photographic records of the big ice chunks go back to 1883 when I. C. Russell filmed the Dana glacier under the direction of famed naturalist Major John Wesley Powell.

Data from all three government agencies show the small glaciers are slowly shrinking although the record winter snows of 1968-69 temporarily reversed the trend.

"Without the glaciers to slow the runoff," said Balding, "many of the mountain streams would run dry in early summer."

He said fish populations in the higher streams and lakes probably would disappear if it weren't for the glaciers.

'Birth Of A Nation' Slated Tuesday

D. W. Griffith's classic 1916 film, "Birth of a Nation," will be shown at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the San Rafael High School Little Theater.

The film, the first major full-length dramatic feature produced in Hollywood, is based on the novel "Ku Klux Klan" and deals with the period from the Civil War through Reconstruction.

Behr Home Is Sold: $87,500

State Sen. Peter H. Behr and his wife, Sally, have sold their Mill Valley home to Edward T. and Phyllis M. Faber for about $87,500.

The Behr home, located at 212 Del Casa Drive, Mill Valley, is appraised by the county assessor's office at $60,000.

The sale was recorded on Tuesday in the office of County Recorder Noel T. Giacomini.

The deed granting the property to new owners bears a property transfer tax stamp of $96.25. Since the transfer tax is $1.10 per $1,000, the price would be $87,500.

Marcuse Pays Visit To Angela

Angela Y. Davis yesterday was visited in the Marin County Jail by her university mentor, New Left philosopher Herbert Marcuse.

Upon emerging from the Hall of Justice, Marcuse spoke of Miss Davis's "warmth, courage and sensitivity as a human being." He added, "I only hope that she can keep it up until this ordeal is over and she is free."

Miss Davis, charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in connection with the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Hall of Justice, is herself an avowed Communist.

She studied under Marcuse while she was working for a doctorate at the University of California at San Diego.

Marcuse, now retired, spoke to a group of students at Berkeley Wednesday night, telling them "to leave it to the power structure to destroy" institutions of higher learning.

He was driven to Marin County yesterday by Bettina Aptheker, a Communist who was radical student leader at the University of California at Berkeley during the "Free Speech" movement days.

Valentine Riot Sentence Delay

I-J Special Report

VALLEJO — Sentencing of six men arrested during last-year's Valentine's Day riot outside the Independent-Journal, originally set for today, has been delayed to next Thursday.

Vallejo Municipal Court Judge William E. Jensen will read probation reports and pronounce sentence on the six men. Jensen presided over a 13-weeks jury trial in Solano Superior Court in Fairfield, in which a total of seven defendants were involved.

The jury acquitted one man, but found the six guilty of a total of 18 felony and misdemeanor offenses on Jan. 8.

East German Ploy Rebuffed

BERLIN (UPI)—West Berlin officials dismissed today as an election tactic an East German offer to open the wall for West Berliners in return for cutting the city's political ties to West Germany.

They said they greatly doubted any large number of West Berliners would be willing to pay such a price for the right to visit East Berlin.

They said they believed East German Premier Willi Stoph made the offer to help the West Berlin Communist party in the West Berlin March 14 municipal elections.

Antidrug Telecast Discussion Planned

A group of Marin County residents will take part in a telecast discussion of an antidrug film series, "Turned On Crisis" at 8:30 p.m. Monday over Channel 9, TV Station KQED.

The telecast is the result of an unusual group viewing program linked to the eight-part series scheduled throughout February at 7:30 p.m. each Monday and Wednesday on KQED.

The Marin Chapter headquarters of the American Red Cross opened its doors to group viewing of the series this week. A TV set and a cable hook-up donated by Tele-Vue Systems of Marin were used. According to Mrs. H. J. Pertle, Red Cross coordinator of volunteers, 18 persons watched the first show Monday, and then talked over its contents for two hours.

That group was invited to watch the third show of the series in the KQED studios and then to discuss it on the air Monday.

Many of the same persons returned to the Red Cross offices Wednesday to watch the second show of the series. Mrs. Pertle said the group will meet only on Wednesdays through the rest of February.

Similar discussion groups have been formed throughout the Bay Area, as part of a nationwide community effort to meet the drug crisis, KQED officials explained.

In Marin County, coordinator Mike Herbert of Tele-Vue Systems has announced that his firm and other cable companies will provide free hook-ups for public group viewing of the series. Requests should be made to his office at 148 Mitchell Boulevard, San Rafael.

Damage Estimate

OAKLAND (UPI) —Damage has been estimated at $20,000 from the bomb blast at the Oakland Induction Center which shattered the still Oakland night early Thursday.

Claim Filed In Injuries To Student

The father of a San Rafael High School co-ed who was struck and injured in a rest room at the school last Dec. 1 has filed a claim with the San Rafael City Schools office which appears to be preliminary to a damage suit.

Valentino G. Sabuco of 189 Ridgewood Drive, owner of Zip's King Henry VIII drive-in cafe, filed the claim through the law firm of Bagley, Bianchi and Sheeks. It asks only $70.70 for out-of-pocket ambulance and hospital expenses but concludes: "In the event that the claim for $70.70 actual out-of-pocket expenses is denied, claimants will also seek general damages for pain, suffering and mental anguish in the additional amount of $25,000."

Sabuco said, however, that his purpose was less to collect damages than to call attention to what he considers lack of effective supervision at the high school.

His daughter, Laura, was struck from behind as she was in a girls' washroom in the high school administration building. She made her way to the school nurse's office, but fainted and was taken by ambulance to Marin General Hospital.

Sabuco's claim relates when he daughter returned to school three days later, she found a note in her locker saying:

"Remember Laura — We're watching your every move. We're sorry but we have to make them see we have to do this in order that something be accomplished between us and them. Try to understand Laura, we don't want to hurt you but if we have to — we will."

The suit says that "the original of said note is now in possession of the school authorities, who, as far as is known, have taken no action whatever in this matter."

Principal Alan W. Ellsberg, said he knew of no such note, but Sgt. Lewis E. Foster of San Rafael police, who investigated the case, said he had seen such a note in possession of "one of the deans" at the school.

Principal Ellsberg today said he traced the note, and found it had been given by the attack to Florence Abraham, dean of students.

Both Ellsberg and Foster said they knew of no subsequent occurrence at the school which might be linked to the "we and they" conflict hinted in the note.

Architect Fee System Makes Public The Loser

A San Rafael architect's complaint that the County of Marin lets nearly all its architectural contracts to outsiders serves to remind us of something else that's wrong with the hiring of architects for public projects.

Robert W. F. Severin complained to chairman Louis H. Baar of the county board of supervisors that only 2.2 per cent of current architectural contracts by the county have gone to Marin firms. Severin, of course, would like to have some of the business.

Since this county is well supplied with architects (58 of them resident in Marin are listed in the yellow pages of the current telephone directory), Severin's complaint would seem to have merit.

THERE IS, HOWEVER, a greater inequity in the manner of hiring and paying architects for public projects — by the county, cities, school districts and other districts.

It is the bill-paying public which suffers from the greater inequity — that caused by what amount to cost-plus contracts.

When county, city or district erects a building, the construction contract is let by public bidding, and goes to the low bidder.

But when the project is in the design stage, there is no bidding. Architects do not bid against each other. They say it is against their ethics as professionals and members of the American Institute of Architects (an organization, incidentally, which has pretended to copyright control over the common dictionary word, "architect").

The architects uniformly demand a fee of eight per cent of the construction cost.

THIS MEANS THAT, if the price of steel beams goes up, the architect's fee goes up along with it. If the wages of labor go up, the architect's fee goes up with them. And the same with everything else that goes into the building.

What can happen is well illustrated in the case of Taliesen Associates, which has received the great bulk of architectural fees paid by the County of Marin in the past decade. Its fees for Civic Center administration building, Hall of Justice, and Veterans Memorial Auditorium now total $1,691,205, according to County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell.

When the late Frank Lloyd Wright presented his Civic Center plans in August, 1958, he estimated total construction cost — including the fairgrounds building, which is not yet even started — at $9 million. Already, nearly a fifth of that amount has been paid to Wright and his successors in architect fees alone. (Incidentally, Taliesen Associates gets a 10 per cent fee instead of the usual eight per cent.)

This escalation reflects two things: bad estimating by Wright in the first place, and rampant inflation. But, with a cost-plus contract, both work to the benefit of the architect.

WITH SUCH A SYSTEM, an architect scarcely can be expected to do his utmost to keep building costs down. To do so is to take money out of his own pocket.

There is nothing to prevent a local jurisdiction from letting architect contracts on a fixed-fee basis, instead of a cost-plus arrangement.

And there is nothing to prevent its advertising for bids. If Marin architects really want the work, maybe they will swallow their "ethics" in the interest of fairness to the public that pays the bills — and of jobs for themselves.

Horseshoe, Anyone?

For those of our readers who have grown up since television became a common necessity, horseshoes are odd artifacts of the pre-automotive era. But some of us older fellows grew up pitching horseshoes. During the depression, it was a favorite pastime of small-town America — a poor man's golf. Heaving horseshoes was healthful exercise.

We imagine only a few people pitch horseshoes these days. But sometimes we feel a little nostalgia for the simple days when a ringer meant you'd won.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Reagan Banking On Recovery — But What If Wrong Guess?

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO - (CNS) — Apparently, the Reagan administration banks heavily on a return to prosperity to keep the 1971-72 budget in balance and work out of the financial mess Governor Reagan says the state is in.

Part of the action pre-supposes the removal of droves of people from welfare and Medi-Cal into gainful employment.

It also would seem that California is counting on the federal government to bail it out of the red through President Nixon's deficit budget. The Nixon plan contemplates extensive sharing of the wealth with the states.

THE CURIOUS question is how the politicians figure there's any wealth to share.

The increase in gross national product is primarily — but not wholly, of course — created by inflation.

More taxes are generated as the result of inflation. The federal government runs on a theoretical deficit to give more money back to the states.

Thus engendered is a multi-billion dollar game of ring-a-round-the-rosy. It's still played the same despite the fact it's out of the kid class, and is now played for keeps.

IT IS TO BE hoped that the Reagan administration's economists, prognosticators, astrologers and whatever additional miracle men they might use to predict the future, come up with the right answers, for there not only is a few billion dollars riding on the right guess, but also the well-being of many millions of taxpayers.

When the administration went after chiseling on welfare, there was some hope for a measure of recovery through reduction. For some four years, the state government has been trying to reduce through setting individuals from welfare to gainful employment.

It may be heresy to point out now that their primary efforts, through various poverty programs and other methods, have been a miserable flop. The flop has not been confined to the Reagan administration, but goes farther back than that into the previous Democratic administration and into the Republican administration before that.

The unemployment rate is higher at the moment than it has been for some time, yet the old-time propanganda that "prosperity is just around the corner", and that it can be used to avert financial disaster, is still being used to lull the taxpayers.

THOSE OF US who can remember away back when, recall these old cliches, like "two chickens in every pot" and remember shortly afterward the long soup lines, the brown paper bags used to dispense flour, baking powder and salt for the people to make hot-cakes, and the birth of the new era of government giveaway.

That was all more than 40 years ago, and government is yet trying to be all things to all people. Unfortunately, nobody has yet devised a method of living off the government while keeping it going.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

New Ethics: Killing No Longer Murder

On Jan. 26 I went to the first meeting of a discussion group at Kaiser Hospital in Terra Linda. The overall subject of these meetings is "Ethical Issues in Medicine" and "Abortion" was the first item for consideration.

I learned many things that I think should be shared with those who weren't there to hear first-hand some of the latest conclusions of informed medicine.

It turned out that none of the doctors knew what they meant by "ethical," but a representative of Planned Parenthood saved the day with a nice etymological analysis of "ethos" and "mores" and decided that good ethics means "good manners". The general consensus was that progress is wonderful and cultural relativity has replaced the old Judeo-Christian morality. In fact cultural relativity is really individual relativity or "how I feel about something". We were given the fit of reason just so we can work out in our own minds what is best. And we know so much more about everything these days.

But the really new information came from a doctor who presided over our section of the discussion group. I learned from him that "There isn't any difference between a fertilized chicken egg and a 'potential' human being". This immediately put me in mind of Swift's "A Modest Proposal" and I won't say what nasty conclusions can be drawn from this if it's worked out to its logical conclusion. Still, this much is reasonable: if murder of an unborn child is no longer murder, by the same token cannibalism may no longer be cannibalism. And if ethics is manners, and manners change, then there's no drawing of lines.

It was also pretty much agreed that there shouldn't be any unwanted ("accidental") children. The greatest evil in their hierarchy of values is not being loved as a child. The implicit conclusion is that such a child could not have a meaningful existence. So it is both reasonable and merciful to kill it.

From the grossest self-interest I balk at this — merciful or not. I balk because this opinion has already taken the form of a proposed bill in the Florida State Legislature. This bill (HB 68) enables anyone to "die with dignity". This means not having one's life "prolonged beyond the point of a meaningful existence". It provides that if a person is unable to exercise his right to die with dignity because of mental or physical deficiency (which may simply mean he is in coma) then a relative can decide for him. In lieu of a relative "death with dignity may be granted if in the opinion of three physicians the prolongation of life is meaningless". To my mind, the analogy between the voiceless unborn and the voiceless born — both judged worthy of death by doctors or relatives who are full of mercy but without an ethical measuring stick save their own "feeling" is abundantly clear.

Is anyone alarmed but me?

The next meeting is on Feb. 16 in Day Room B of the Kaiser Hospital.

SARAH HOFFMAN
Mill Valley.

No Such Thing As 'Clean' Recall

It is my hope, those individuals who saw fit to initiate a recall movement against an elected official of our school district last week, did so with full knowledge of the seriousness of their act. There is no such thing as a "clean" recall. For this type of action invariably splits a community, matching group against group, neighbor against neighbor, but of far more consequence, character assassinates an individual and his family. Those who remember my own campaign when running for the school board back in 1969, might recall my emphasis on these important issues:

1. A promise to return fiscal accountability to the Reed Union School District.

2. A pledge to halt innovative educational programs which may have been created simply for innovation's sake, and an honest attempt to measure the educational effectiveness of programs already in existence.

3. A promise to restore educational responsibility to the district.

Aside from the unjustified accusations now being levied against Mr. Gordon C. Wright, I feel, it is over these very same issues Mr. Wright now finds himself the victim of a recall movement. If the diligent working to achieve fiscal accountability and educational responsibility for the taxpayers of our community is a crime, punishable as is now the case, through character assassination, then I see little hope for the future in obtaining qualified individuals from our community who would be willing to give their time, effort and talent to this district in the capacity of trustee.

Accent On Sex Called Unhealthy

Congratulations on another fine I-J editorial! Your article calling for less "family life education" and more stress on moral instruction in our schools is excellent. The information that sex instruction is being given unlawfully without parental consent, as required by the law, is shocking.

The heavy accent on sex in the "family life" and other, even English, classes is considered unhealthy by many psychiatrists, who feel this raw, clinical approach is likely to lead to sexual and even psychological maladjustment in adult life.

Our Motorede Committee is working to bring these dangers to the attention of parents and others, so we particularly appreciate the I-J's logic on the subject.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Feb. 5, 1961

The nude body of a man in his late 30s, shot through the head, was found beneath a few inches of loose dirt and leaves on the west slope of Mount Tamalpais near Devil's Gulch.

Ernest R. Vogel, who was unofficial "mayor of Novato" for years before the city's incorporation, died in a hospital at age 75.

20 YEARS AGO

Feb. 5, 1951

The Truman administration asked Congress to add 4 per cent to federal income taxes, double the tax on gasoline, and sharply hike other levies to raise $10 billion additional revenue.

The biggest Allied tank force in the Korean War drove into Red territory in hit-run raids.

Resolution Needed To Clear Controversy Over War Powers

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — Congress should act soon to recapture its consitutional authority to decide where and whether the United States shall go to war.

There is a murky area of uncertainty which urgently needs to be clarified.

This uncertainty arises from the fact that the Constitution gives Congress the power to declare war and gives the President the power to conduct war as commander-in-chief.

In recent years each has been impinging on the other and now is the time to draw the line.

CONGRESS HAS valid complaints that presidents have gone too far in using their constitutional authority as commander-in-chief to put U.S. troops into combat abroad.

President Truman did not ask the approval of Congress to commit the United States to war in Korea.

Presidents Kennedy and Johnson did not ask the approval of Congress before they committed U.S. forces in Vietnam. Later in 1964 L.B.J. did go to Congress with the Southeast Asia Resolution which explicitly authorized every military action he subsequently took, but this resolution was in part approval after the event. That's no way to go to war.

BUT THE PRESIDENT has also valid complaints that Congress has been stretching its authority to interfere with the powers of the commander-in-chief.

President Nixon is committed to steady withdrawal from Vietnam. But Congress has been seeking to tell the commander-in-chief how he should carry out the military process of withdrawal and protect American troops while doing so.

In the Cooper-Church Amendment, Congress instructed the commander-in-chief not to use ground combat troops or advisers in Cambodia under any circumstances. But when the use of somewhat more air power seems needed in a given situation, the Senate's extreme doves want Congress to substitute its tactical military judgment for that of the commander-in-chief and his military advisers.

How could anyone, including Congress, know what military exigency may develop during the process of withdrawal from Vietnam? Is it wise for Congress to try to impose a blueprint of tactics upon the commander-in-chief when tactical flexibility within the goal of withdrawal may prove very necessary? Does Congress want to take the responsibility for the consequences of supplanting the President as commander-in-chief? Hardly — and this is why the Cooper-Church Amendment was never passed as originally proposed.

THE NEED is for Congress to quit trying to absorb the war-conducting powers of the commander-in-chief and for the President to give evidence that he will not try to circumvent the war-making powers of Congress.

There is certainly a way to reaffirm and strengthen the war-making decision power of Congress.

It can be said with knowledge that Mr. Nixon has no intention of circumventing Congress as Truman did wholly and as Kennedy and Johnson did partly, and no intention of putting the United States into combat anywhere in the world without approval of Congress.

If this is true — and I am sure it is — then there is no reason Mr. Nixon shouldn't give open support to a resolution urged by Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois which would make this commitment explicit. The Percy Resolution provides that it be the sense of Congress:

"THAT THE PRESIDENT should not utilize the armed forces of the United States in intervention abroad for any combat activities without the express consent of the Congress except where use of such forces is necessary pending congressional approval to respond to clear and direct attack on the United States, its territorial possessions or upon forces of the United States that are lawfully deplyed pursuant to a treaty or other specific congressional authorizations."

This would certainly put Congress into the decision-making process.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Muskie And Who? Game Of Ticket-Picking Begins

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — The Louis Harris Survey showing Sen. Edmund Muskie still three points out front of President Nixon in a trial heat anticipating the 1972 election merely puts into figures what the politicians here have been saying to each other for weeks: Muskie is so strong so early that nobody can deny him the Democratic nomination next year.

Whether he can get it and go on to beat Mr. Nixon in the fall is iffier than that. The polls fluctuate, affected by every turn in the economic graphs and in the Southeast Asian war. But unless his short temper or his stubborn refusal to move farther left on the issues somehow trips him up, Muskie goes into the competition for the nomination leading by a wider margin than any aspirant from the out party has held at this stage of a campaign in recent history.

THUS, THE GAME in Washington now is matching up potential No. 2 nominees with Muskie, using the old geographical, religious, ideological and personality criteria which always have played a more important role in ticket-making than such crass considerations as how competent and experienced a politician might be.

Muskie pairs smoothly with every one of those mentioned except Sen. Edward Kennedy, who anyhow is making yet another protestation of his non-candidacy in the wake of the upset defeat handed him in the Senate by Sen. Robert Byrd.

Two New England Catholics still do not a ticket make, even though Ted's brother John shattered forever the tradition that no Catholic could become President.

But Muskie and Sen. George McGovern, the only announced candidate so far, meet the old-fashioned specifications. McGovern is a farm-state Methodist; and if Muskie divines next year that he needs to pacify the leftward wing of his party, he would be a logical choice — especially if McGovern has managed to give him a serious challenge in the primaries. For Muskie, picking McGovern would be reminiscent of John Kennedy taking Lyndon Johnson as running mate in 1960.

Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa would fill nearly the same need for Muskie. Another Methodist, he will by next year have become better known, and his bass rhetoric and muscular good looks will give him that kind of edge over the sincere but unflashy McGovern.

SHOULD MUSKIE think by convention time that he needs instead to move right in his vice presidential choice, to help hold the South, he would think first of Sen. Henry Jackson. Jackson's base is almost as far as you can get from Dixie, but Washington State has in common with Georgia and other southern states a special interest in military and aviation activity by the government.

Another alternative, if Muskie's right flank were unprotected, would be for him to revert to the classic Democratic pattern and choose not merely a man acceptable to the South but a real southerner. The one most consistently brought up is South Carolina's Ernest (Fritz) Hollings, nationally the least known of the lot but a tall, handsome, Lutheran, 49-year-old moderate by today's southern standards.

GEOGRAPHICALLY, any of the candidates mentioned makes an attractive balance with Muskie. But none gives him special entree into the swing area most critical to Democratic success in the general election — the big industrial states of the Midwest. And there are two strong possibilities for him in that part of the country.

They are Sen. Birch Bayh, an Indiana Methodist whose flirtation with a presidential candidacy declaration is interpreted by many to be a thinly disguised move for the No. 2 position, and Sen. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, whose very name puts him into contention although only weeks ago his highest public office was that of state treasurer.

Bayh's fiery speech at the California Democratic Convention last month won enthusiastic approval among the newly victory-oriented party leaders there.

As for Stevenson, he is merely the best vote-getter anybody can remember in Illinois, and Illinois is merely the biggest repository of electoral votes in the American heartland.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Defection From The Newspaper: Mill Valley Office Cat Vanishes

Has anyone seen Bob?

Robert David Marioni, who used to spend part of each day sleeping in a copy basket at the Mill Valley office of the Independent-Journal, has been missing for a week. No one knows where he is.

Bob is 10 inches tall, 16 inches long, and has black, white and gray hair and a gentle disposition.

Bob is a cat.

For months the first I-J staff member to arrive at work each day would find Bob waiting to be let in. His first duty of the day would be to leap onto each desk, sometimes scattering papers and books, and sniff around.

His rounds over, Bob usually retired to his accustomed position, in a copy basket, where he would spend most of the day sleeping.

Only when the last circulation department employee locked the office at 7 p.m. would Bob go next door to the Marioni house, where he lived.

SINCE JOINING the staff, Bob has become quite a local celebrity in Mill Valley. Regular customers usually found time to scratch Bob's head after they finished placing their ads or buying back issues of the paper.

Although there was no way to tell, we always felt Bob was just as renowned as Flower Bower Gower Champion, the Mill Valley library cat. And, we thought, twice as loveable.

In an office of cat lovers, Bob found his heaven. Besides being cooed over, bragged about and constantly admired (he had a fine coat of fluffy fur), Bob could expect each day to bring a new tempting morsel of food, from slivers of chicken to slices of liver. Some days, though, he got plain dry cat food.

Bob's love life was taken care of, too, when a reporter took him home to romance her cat. It now appears he'll soon be a father.

Fresh catnip, planted in an office flower pot, had just sprouted last week when the unexpected happened — Bob failed to show up one morning.

All day long, people walked into the office, looked at the empty copy basket with its hand-letter sign, "the cat is in," and asked, "Where is Bob?" All day long we had to tell them we didn't know.

The Marioni family is just as puzzled as we are. A customer reported sighting Bob on Monday, a few doors down Miller Avenue, but that's the last time he's been seen.

So if anyone has any information on Robert David Marioni, let us know. The office isn't the same without him.

THE BIBLE tells us what to expect about houses built on rock and sand, and now Mill Valley officials know what happens when a recreation center is built on garbage — it sinks.

When the community recreation center was built on top of a former garbage dump two years ago, engineers expected it ot settle a little.

Now comes the word that folk dancers using the building are ending each dance in the left rear corner because the floor slopes that way.

Engineering studies have determined that the four-inch drop-off could be corrected by jacking up the building — at a cost of $3,000. But engineers have recommended that the city take a wait-and-see attitude.

Since the building probably will be moved to a new site within three years, they feel, it may be better to put up with the problem for that long.

Four Arraigned On Drug Charge

Four men were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing heroin and marijuana and a misdemeanor count of possessing a hypodermic needle.

Morris Charles Tombler, 27, and David Wesley Hansen, 25, both of Larkspur, and Peter Donald Tibbitts, 18, and Donald Paul Cleary, 24, both of Kentfield, will plead to the charges next Wednesday.

A fifth man, Randolph Tichenor Guerin, 24, of Larkspur, will plead to the same charges tomorrow.

The five were arrested last Thursday when police broke up a beer party at a Larkspur lumber yard.

Three teen-age girls with the men were booked into Marin Juvenile Hall on suspicion of trespassing and possession of alcohol.

Man Is Guilty In Chase Case

David John Avansino, 27, of San Francisco, has been found guilty in Marin Superior Court of four felony charges and a misdemeanor.

Two misdemeanor charges of battery on police officers were dismissed by Judge Thomas F. Keating at the request of the district attorney's office.

Avansino was convicted of two counts of assault and two of assault with a deadly weapon, as well as misdemeanor reckless driving, stemming from a high-speed chase last Aug. 17 through West Marin during which Avansino rammed two California Highway Patrol cars with his vehicle.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Some Recollections Of Campaign To 'Save The Civic Center'

Here is more of the story on the temporary stop order at the Civic Center, just prior to Jan. 12, 1961. You will recall that this was a serious and concerned effort to find a solution or remedy for the callcus handling of the helpless indigent sick out at the Lucas Valley hospital.

You will also remember that some 300 angry Marinites organized a mass meeting to save the Frank Lloyd Wright Civic Center. (Not Marin Civic Center. They met at the Marin Junior College one evening and a committee was formed to recall me. This committee dwindled down to 17 persons.

They met at the home of a young attorney, who had just been admitted to the bar, located in Winship Park next to the San Anselmo line. After a few meetings they decided, I was told by one of those present "that if they were able to get a recall election going and then should fail in the attempt that Fusselman would be stronger than ever." Thus ended the attempt.

HOWEVER, TO VENT their spleen, teams were formed to keep up an harassment program. They worked almost around the clock on the telephone. One would call us and then be followed by another. They would keep this up until midnight. The worst part of it all was that Billie became ill from the tension. We had to put the phone in a carton and pile pillows on it so that we couldn't hear the bell. I tried making a tape recording, "if you have a message for Mr. Fusselman, please mail or take it to the county clerk's office."

If we had the telephone out of the carton and it would ring, I would hold it up in front of the speaker of the recorder. At times Billie would answer in the evening when she would be expecting a call. Men would tear into her and give her a bad time. . . It was a bitter mess for several weeks. Not much different from things we hear about now. No personal restraint.

That same year, a while after this, we were discussing bomb shelters at a board of supervisors meeting and the question was raised as to how they could be financed. I casually remarked that this could probably be done with a county-wide improvement bond issue. Bang! When I returned from lunch, there was a protest march going on around the courthouse grounds — well printed placards on staffs, "Fusselman is going to tax us to build bomb shelters." The parade was headed by the then wife of the then chairman of the planning commission. Boy oh boy, didn't they have fun?

THE OTHER DAY I was wondering just what the maintenance of Brasilia was costing so I did some investigating. Hang on tight now. Don't fall. These figures are just about as accurate as I could work out with the adding machine.

From the time we moved out there and including this fiscal year, the tab is: $5,897,750. This year alone, with both buildings, is in excess of $1,000,000 for janitorial, lights, water, telephone and grounds . . That's only part of what the boosters of 1961 "gave" us.

Guilty Plea To Pot Charge

Bruce Edward Jackson, 19, of Novato, has pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor charge of possessing marijuana and a misdemeanor charge of petty theft.

He earlier had pleaded innocent to felony possession of pot as well as to the petty theft charge.

Judge Peter Allen Smith referred the case to the probation department for a report Feb. 17 on whether Jackson is acceptable to juvenile court. He was previously turned down by juvenile court.

Jackson was arrested Dec. 18 at the Emporium at Northgate where he attempted to steal a book. A search revealed a plastic bag of marijuana in his possession.

Apartment Plan Due Hearing

The Larkspur Planning Commission, meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. at city hall, will consider revised plans for an apartment building once proposed to stretch across three lots near Corte Madera Creek.

The plan, submitted by developer Niels J. Schultz Jr., calls for two buildings — one 100 feet long and the other 90 — in place of a single three-story building proposed earlier.

The first proposal submitted was longer than the 140-foot length maximum established last week, so Schultz has split the building, creating two buildings each within the length limit.

The commission will also consider a 132-apartment unit complex proposed for Larkspur Plaza.

Alioto Uses Police To Halt Protesters

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Mayor Joseph Alioto called in additional police Thursday to hold back shouting minority group members who attempted to storm his private office in City Hall.

There was no immediate arrest and no apparent injury in the scuffle with some 30 members of the Minority Affirmative Action Coalition, which seeks more construction industry for non-whites.

Shoving and pushing stopped with the arrival of four uniformed patrolmen to help the five men, including three policemen, who were guarding the mayor's door.

Trouble started when some members of a 30-person delegation from the Minority Affirmative Action Coalition refused to believe their appointment with Alioto was set for today, not Thursday.

Revels Cayton, the mayor's Negro deputy for social programs, was shouted down as the delegation shoved its way past plain clothes officer Gary Wommack into an inner office.

Two more plain clothes officer and John A. DeLuca, the mayor's executive secretary, joined Cayton and Wommack there in a stand outside Alioto's door until uniformed police arrived.

Coalition members assert San Francisco construction unions are racist and refuse to negotiate on bringing more persons from minority groups into the building trades.

During the shoving they refused to be appeased by Cayton's disclosure that a meeting had been set for next Wednesday among unions, building contractors and the coalition.

Alioto ordered an investigation of the scuffle and left open the possibility of charges being filed.

Rachel Perez Arce, the coalition's interim chairwoman, declared: "We had an appointment. We didn't come down here to start something."

Dellums In Attack On 'Atrocities'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Freshman Rep. Ron Dellums of California, charging the government with ignoring "war atrocities," has introduced legislation calling for a congressional investigation of alleged U.S. war crimes in Southeast Asia.

"The military and their friends within the Nixon administration are doing all they can to ignore and mitigate any and all responsibility for war atrocities," the East Bay Democrat said Thursday.

"If the administration refuses to act, the Congress must —not in the interest of meting out punitive measures but rather in the interest of exposing the insane, immoral and illegal reality of our nation's adventurism in Southeast Asia."

Dellums has been providing a group of antiwar Vietnam veterans with office space for the past week. The group is seeking support from other congressmen for an investigation along the lines that Dellums proposes.

Dellums said he was in agreement with Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., who has criticized the Army for dropping charges against Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Koster, who was accused of covering up the alleged My Lai massacre.

"It's obvious that the Defense Department will never willingly investigate war crimes and war crimes responsibility," Dellums said.

Day Set Aside To Give Air A Rest

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI)—The city council of this coastal community has passed a resolution asking residents to refrain from using their cars on the 22nd of each month.

Councilman Donald Q. Miller, a bicycle enthusiast, proposed the resolution "to give the air a rest." It passed on a 3-2 vote.

He said he selected the 22nd because April 22 last year was Earth day. The city has no public transportation other than taxis.

No Interest Conflict For Mrs. Aaron

No conflict of interest exists in having a county employee serve on the Marin County Personnel Commission, County Administrator Alan Bruce declared yesterday.

Conflict of interest was one of the charges leveled at attorney Bella H. Aaron, a county personnel commissioner who is drawing pay as project director of the Police-Community Relations Program. Her feud with the Human Rights Department and commission led to the resignation last week of human rights director, Donald Curtis Moody.

The county adminstrator said there is nothing in state laws or in county ordinances that would prohibit her from serving on the personnel commission.

The pay for the project director of police-community relations is $12.50 per hour. Mrs. Aaron, an attorney, is getting one-half of that, or $6.25 per hour, treating the balance as her contribution. She drew a little over $700 for the month of January and $1,754 for the two previous months.

Since she became coordinator for the Police-Community Relations Program last June, she said she donated $6,266 worth of time to the program. "Eighty per cent of my time is non-paid" said Mrs. Aaron.

The $142,000 Police-Community Relations Program is a one-year project to train police cadets and improve relations between law enforcement agencies and the public. The program is financed by $70,000 in state and federal grants, $33,000 from the San Francisco Foundation, and the rest in services rendered by Marin officials such as Mrs. Aaron and law enforcement agencies.

No Tax Hike, Reagan Says

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has assured Californians their property taxes won't increase, provided the legislature and county supervisors do things his way.

Reagan Thursday charged Democrats had "fuzzed up" interpretation of his $6.7 billion state budget with warnings it would trigger higher local property levies. He criticized as "inaccurate" forecasts of A. Alan Post of property tax hikes.

At his weekly news conference, the governor offered Californians "every assurance in the world" that local property taxes wouldn't increase if the lawmakers approve his budget along with proposals to revise welfare and medi-Cal.

Wallace Tells Drug Agents To 'Slap Heads'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) —Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace told a group of law enforcement officers Thursday if it takes a "good slap on the head" to make an arrest to go ahead and do it.

Wallace addressed a narcotics seminar sponsored by the state Department of Public Safety. He said he did not want his "head slapping" remark misinterpreted by the news media.

"We are going to keep on educating and rehabilitating, but what I want to see is strong law enforcement," said Wallace.

Volunteer Scouts Decorate Offices

Two San Anselmo Girl Scout troops decorate the bulletin boards and stock the toys in the play area of the Marin County Department of Public Social Services two waiting rooms at the Civic Center.

Twice a month Troops 890 and 1992 send four or five girls who have dreamed up the decorating ideas for the bulletin to make the changes. Decisions on the theme and the actual art work is a project shared by the entire group. The girls also scrub the tables and toys in the waiting rooms, repair or discard broken toys and straighten the shelves. Between bulletin board changes they collect toys.

The decoration project was originated by Mrs. Mary Boden, DPSS volunteer coordinator. Mrs. Ralph Shape, volunteer driver for the department and leader of Troop 1992, heard about Mrs. Boden's idea and presented it to the girls who decided they wanted to join the growing volunteer program at the department.

Troop 890 is led by Mrs. Ronald Murrey. The Girl Scouts who are participating in the program are Katie Shauer, Eleanor Soloski, Cheri Bell, Linda Murray, Andrea Rosenberg, Marissa Dardi, Roxanne Johnson, Tracy Craig and Lori Shape.

"The girls work with youthful enthusiasm and inspiration and are doing a job that once required public money and the time of paid staff members," says Elizabeth Coyle, assistant director of DPSS.

Mrs. Boden, who has guided the program since its inception a year ago, says, "Our youngest volunteers are doing a wonderful job and are a shining example of a successful volunteer project." J. L.

If You See A Tooth Walk By. .

Members of the Marin County Dental Auxiliary will dress up like teeth and toothbrushes and appear at three Marin shopping centers Feb. 12 and 13 to promote dental health during Children's Dental Health Weed, beginning Sunday.

Wives of dentists, dental assistants and dental hygienists will show shoppers how to brush teeth properly and offer balloons and pencils from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Northgate Shopping Center in front of the former H. Liebes store, Bon Air Shopping Center in front of Petrini's market and Strawberry Town and Country Village in front of Safeway.

Wednesday the San Rafael Junior Women's Club is sponsoring a public program for parents of the Dixie School District to emphasize the importance of dental care at home. Newest dental care techniques for use in the home will be explained by preventative dentistry specialists from the U.S. Public Health Hospital in San Francisco in the multi-purpose room at Santa Margarita School in Terra Linda at 8 p.m.

The toy dental unit used by the dental auxiliary members to acquaint pre-school age children with a dental office will be shown on the "Romper Room" television program Monday at 8:30 a.m. on Channel 2.

The toy unit, built by Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert V. Oliver of San Rafael, is brought to nursery care centers, where children play act as the dentist, dental assistant or parents of the patient. The patient, a doll, sits in the dentist chair smiling as the child becomes acquainted with dental procedure, personnel and equipment.

In Southern Sonoma a puppet production, "The Magic Words," will be shown on Channel 6 in Santa Rosa tomorrow at 9 p.m. and Wednesday at 4 p.m.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Redwood Empire Dental Society has been presenting the puppet shows to kindergarten through sixth grade students in schools throughout Petaluma, Sonoma and Santa Rosa for the past seven years.

Dental wives in Marin also volunteer their time giving puppet shows on dental care. Dental assistant trainees from College of Marin and the auxiliary members go into the classrooms with puppets to teach children how to take care of their teeth. They also supply books, films and dental health materials to the schools. — J. L.

DENNY SITS in the dentist chair smiling as the dentist (Tonia White) works on his teeth. Holding his head in place is the nurse (Veronia McDonald), and his mother (Dawn Marrero) stands by ready to comfort him if necessary. Overseeing the play acting at the Manzanita School in Marin City is Mrs. Julian Lifschiz, a member of the Marin County Dental Auxiliary, who takes the toy dental unit to pre-school age children to acquaint them with procedure, personnel and equipment in dentists' offices. The unit, made by Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert V. Oliver of San Rafael, will be shown on the "Romper Room" television program Monday at 8:30 a.m. to promote Children's Dental Health Week, Feb. 7 through 13. Gloria Hassler Will Be Wed To John Tolar

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene James Hassler of San Anselmo are announcing the engagement of their daughter Gloria Jean to John Thomas Tolar Jr. of Santa Rosa.

Gloria was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and attended College of Marin and Hansell's Secretarial College in San Rafael. She is a former member of International Order of Rainbow For Girls, Tamalpais Assembly 191 and is employed with Pacific Telephone Co.

John is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. John Thomas Tolar of Santa Rosa and is the brother of Danny Roy Tolar. He was graduated from West Covina High School and attended California State Polytechnic College in Pomona. He is serving in the Navy stationed at Treasure Island.

The engagement was announced at a party at the First Baptist Church in San Rafael. A June 5 wedding is planned by the couple.

GLORIA HASSLER

Shorts Are Radical Change

By JANE ROGERS
London Express Service

Well it looks as though Paris has set the seal on it. Instead of last year's mini dress, 1971 will be the year we wear shorts, playfully showing our legs again but this time with a look that harks back to the thirties, to Ginger Rogers-Fred Astaire films and all the glamour that went with them.

Like them or not, there's no doubt that shorts are going to make a radical difference to fashion next season; not just as far as clothes, and the length of your hemline are concerned, but with beauty and hair too. There will be a thirties slant to our looks, with longer page-boy hairstyles coming in just as fast as the model girls can grow their curly locks, and a new painted-doll air about make-up with darker glossier lipsticks and less emphasis on the eyes (the signs are there, already, with the thinning and blanking out of eyebrows that's going on).

Who's going to wear shorts? Most of us, by the time the season is out. Though not necessarily in the brief playgirl fashion. Slightly longer, cuffed versions are flattering to all sorts of figures and for the woman who's a little nervous of being seen out in something her schoolboy son might wear there'll be well-cut skirts slit at the side to show matching shorts underneath.

The brace-and-bib top is important too. It may have come straight out of the nursery but it does at least give us a new dimension in dressing. Before long you'll find a lot of slacks and long trousers around with bib tops too. Some of the more avant garde shops already have them in stock.

What are we going to wear with our new-found fashion friends? Nothing the least bit bulky —that's important. Skinny little sweaters chopped off at the waist. Here's your chance to use up anything that has shrunk in the wash. Mean-cut blouses with shirt collars would be useful too. The way fashion is working out at the moment, they're wearing jackets over the shorts that finish just an inch or so above them. Expect to see a rash of Safari suits around with belted bush jackets over matching shorts — a fashion idea that will suit the older age-group, too, if they add a skirt over the top. One thing is certain, this new way that design is going will almost inevitably bring in a swing to more tailored clothes, for shorts made up in jersey have, in the main, a rather baggy look, as though they were school knickers.

How's this going to affect holiday clothes? Expect to see a lot of pretty little tops and shorts with wrap-around skirts to go with them. The shorts in some cases will be Bermuda length and for the older woman they're the ideal solution — provided that she's skinny enough.

Legs matter more than ever now. You can't get away with hiding flabby bulgy thighs under trousers this length. If you're slightly overweight and all the will-power in the world is not going to make you diet, there's a lot that you can do, now, before the shorts mania comes, to firm your legs up into an attractive shape, even if they're larger than they should be. What matters more than actual inches is a firm attractive look to your thighs. It'll help, too, if you're not wearing stockings (though do put on tights if you can, they make your legs look neater and less flabby) to use an overnight tanning preparation to make them look less pallid and white.

SLACKS with bibs and cuffs left, will be a part of the new fashion scene along with shorts cut the same way. Under them skinny sweaters and tops go best. For those too modest for shorts, wrap around skirts will do the trick. Bermudas as well as short-shorts will make radical changes in hair styles and make up.

Causes And Cures For Bad Breath

Television commercials and magazine ads say one of the greatest deterrents to success in business or social life is halitosis (bad breath). However, the products they recommend seldom do more than camouflage unpleasant odor. To eliminate the affliction, it is necessary to locate the cause. The California Medical Association suggests:

1) the odor of garlic, onions, tobacco and alcohol will disappear of themselves, given sufficient time.

2) inadequate fluid intake is sometimes a cause of bad breath. Drinking more water is a simple cure for this type of halitosis.

3) regular tooth-brushing and visits to the dentist will take care of unpleasant breath caused by neglect of mouth cleanliness and infected teeth or gums.

4) a foul breath may be warning of disease (indigestion, lung cancer, diabetes) or it may reveal an infection (chronic or temporary) in the nose, throat, lungs, sinuses, or stomach. Only a physician can help correct or better these conditions.

Once these causes of bad breath have been ruled out, almost all other cases of halitosis can be attributed to nervous tension. Unfortunately, the very fact that an occasion is important results in heightened tension, cessation of the flow of saliva and an accompanying effect of dryness of mouth and throat.

One of the functions of saliva is a constant bathing and lubricating of the mouth and throat. In a person under tension, this cleansing action ceases, the saliva actually stagnates and foul breath is the consequence.

Baseball players have known from-way-back-when an effective way to relieve tension. While chewing a cud of tobacco won't do a thing for the breath, it will relax one and start the normal flow of saliva.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Why Don't Manufacturers Do Their Part For Clean Environment?

DEAR READERS:

I seldom give one letter the whole column, but this one is too good to cut. Don't you agree?

DEAR HELEN:

I'm getting a little weary hearing all these instructions about what the common man and uncommon housewife should do to fight pollution. Why must the burden be all on us?

For example, a recent article tells individuals how to deal with ecology problems. Let's break it down and fight back:

1. Avoid water softeners as well as enzymes and purchase only low phosphate detergents.

Why doesn't government tell manufacturers: Stop producing pollution causers? Why must we try to decipher the fine print to see which detergent is most enzyme and phosphate-free? We probably couldn't understand it anyway.

At least, why doesn't government publish a public list of high and low pollutants. Is it afraid of industry? I know such lists are made — but they're not easily available.

2. Buy products that are packaged with as little material as necessary.

Now tell me, if a woman's family doesn't like oatmeal, which comes in a single pasteboard container, but likes some other well-wrapped and wax papered cereal, would she switch to oatmaal just because it had less wrapping?

And if oatmeal can get by with simple cardboard, why not the others?

3. Use plastic ice cream contains for storage of perishable goods.

After discarding all the paper, foil and plastic the goods are wrapped in when they come from the store, I presume.

4. Return egg cartons to the grocery store.

A good idea, but does the grocer want them? Doubtless some lobby representing the egg carton industry would object.

5. Bundle newspapers, separate and flatten aluminum cans, separate and break useless glass containers, and take this material to salvage shops.

How many towns have such salvage centers? How many people are going to maintain three garbage cans, do all that flattening and breaking, then tootle all over the city, delivering junk to places that may have suddenly decided they no longer want it?

6. Insist on white paper.

As long as colored stationery, kitchen towels, toilet tissue, etc., is available, what woman will settle for uninteresting white?

7. Use unleaded gas.

I've read that the olefins and aromatic compounds which must be added to unleaded gas to achieve an acceptable octane, cause more air pollution than leaded gas. They also cause serious eye irritation.

Also, long ago, the gas companies told us leaded gas was more expensive "because they had to add lead." Then they remove the lead — and it gets more expensive yet. Who to believe?

It seems to me that if any real progress is to be made in the throwaway problem, changes must be made at the source. It does no good to put the "problem" items on the shelves and then tell people not to buy them. Manufacturers, packing experts, food processors should find some way to satisfy consumers without adding unnecessarily to the waste.

If cars are the major source of air pollution, then "get the lead out" should be more than an advertising slogan —it must be a command.

Why put Boy Scouts to work dredging cans and bottles out of rivers when industry pours wastes by the ton into our waterways? We forego backyard burning, only to see smoke belching from company smokestacks.

Let's teach ourselves and our children ecology — fine. But we also need laws, applicable from the top to the bottom, not merely suggestions and guidelines. With babies, the best way to enforce a "No, no" is to remove it from reach. Adults too. — MRS. H. S., TEXAS

ANOTHER PANTSUIT

This version of the pantsuit features a tunic top with flared lines. The pants are straight legged. Chunky shoes finish the look. The outfit is made of easy care polyester doubleknit. (UPI telephoto)

Don't Pollute Inside Of Home

NEW YORK (UPI)—When planning to re-do your home, avoid interior environment pollutants. Magdalene Pfister, University of Nebraska Extension home furnishings specialist, lists such pollutants as follows: Poor ventilation, lack of natural light, lack of noise level control, ineffective traffic patterns, crowded claustrophobic conditions, disregard for color and its effects on individuals, and awkward and uncomfortable furnishings.

Parisian Shoes Parade Out Of The 1940s Era

By LUCY KRAUS

PARIS (UPI)—Parisian shoe designers have been seized by a wave of nostalgia.

Is it 1971 or 1941? It's hard to tell while reviewing the wedgies, platform soles, ankle-straps and open toes that make up the spring-summer collections of shoes.

One of the few notes in the Paris shoe parade is the brightly colored cotton cloth boots which designers have adopted unanimously to pull the "hot-pants look" together.

Roger Vivier shows ankle knee and above knee-length boots in rough cotton cloth, zipped right up the front of the leg. The heels on his boots are mostly wooden, chunky and low. The colors are neutral, or very bright tones combined to form a patch-work mosaic. For evening Vivier shows boots in bright colored satin or flowery quilted satin.

Vivier's collection of ankle-strapped sandals, platform shoes and wedgies is straight out of the late 38s and '40s. They come in suede and cotton cloth for day and metallized leather, shiny sequins and colored satin for evening. Heels are a high three and a quarter inches (the standard height this season).

Leather Appears In New Forms

New looking in the leather furniture field are desks and Parsons tables, not merely leather-inlaid but completely covered in leather.

Leather upholstery combines with woods or metals for distinctive sofas and couches. Then there are wood or metal benches, leather-cushioned.

Upholstery leathers this spring include cowhide, calf, suede, embossed and printed textures, patents and others, in a wide variety of colors.

Platform soles are about 3-4 of an inch thick. Red patent leather is making its comeback and Vivier uses it for his square-toed, platform-soled pumps.

Dior limited his collection to a minimum this season, showing a sparse number of ankle and T-strap suede pumps and wide-banded, ankle-strapped sandals with platform soles and open toes. Heel heights at Dior range from two and a quarter to three and a quarter inches.

JUDY JO WETJEN

Miss Wetjen Is Engaged To Be Wed

Judy Jo Wetjen's engagement to Ronald Lee Morgan is announced by her parents Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wetjen.

Judy is the sister of William, Mark, Gary and Harold Wetjen.

The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer L. Morgan and the brother of Mrs. Patrick Yount, Mrs. James Wall, Mrs. Seppo Elo, John, Wayne and Penny Morgan.

Both the bride-elect and her fiance are seniors at Petaluma High School and employed by T. G. & Y. in Petaluma.

More Marriages

Approximately 415,000 couples exchanged marriage vows in the first six months of this year alone that's about 25,000 more than in 1969.

SAUSALITO PRESBYTERIAN Church was the setting for the wedding of Linda Marie Johnston and James William Reents. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Johnston of Novato, and James is the son of William Reents of Edgerton, Wis., and Mrs. Leo Horn of Cornland, Ill.

Ecology Series Starts Thursday Evening At The College Of Marin

"Spaceship Love It Or Leave It," a lecture series sponsored by the College of Marin community services department, Planned Parenthood of Marin, Zero Population Growth of Marin, the Marin Ecology Center and the Marin Conservation League will begin Thursday at 8 p.m. at Olney Hall of the College.

"Contraception for Teenagers," the first lecture will be given by Dr. Harvey Kaplan, director of the Planned Parenthood teen clinic in Alameda County and Dr. Kathryn Kirkman, director of the Marin teen clinic.

The second lecture Feb. 25, at 8:30 p.m. in Olney Hall, "Population and Politics" will be given by Rep. Paul ''Pete'' McCloskey (R-San Mateo), who will focus on the government's role in population planning.

"An Ecology Center and the Community" will be presented March 11 at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall. The Marin Ecology Center will present a series of short films and discussions, including "Recycling" with David Stebbins and Benjamin Blades; "Alternative Life Styles" with Bruce Benedetti and Jerry Kresy; "The Baldwin Channel — Our Very Own Crisis" with Pat Heffernan.

"A Total Environment — A Total Involvement: Who Can Do, How Can Do, What Can Do"? is scheduled March 25th at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall. Harold Gregg, executive director of the Marin Conservation League, and spokesman for conservation in Marin is the lecturer of the evening.

A SYMPOSIUM on "the Abortion Issue" will be held Wednesday from 4 to 9 p.m. at Guzman Hall of Dominican College. Charles Carroll, chaplain for faculty and students at the University of California Medical Center and executive director of the Center for Human Values in the Health Sciences, will lead a panel and small group discussions.

The evening will include a dinner break at 6 p.m. and other speakers on legal, medical and psychological aspects of abortion.

THE MARIN Chapter of Clipped Wings will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m., at the San Marin home of Mrs. Jon Anderson, 49 Las Tardes Ct., Novato. They will see a film about the 747 jet and some home movies taken at Clipped Wings social events in the past three years.

RAYMOND J. HEBEL, Social Service Supervisor of St. Vincent's School for Boys will be guest speaker at the Marin Country Club Garden Club meeting at 1 p.m. Monday at the country club in Novato.

Each member of the garden club will bring cookies to be distributed to the boys at the school onValentine's Day. Mrs. B. K. Varney and Dr. Geraldine Mendlesohn, chairmen of garden therapy, will deliver the cookies to the school.

Mrs. Kenneth Borchardt is president of the garden club, and hostesses for the meeting are Mmes. Chester MacPhee, Edward Rifkind and Ward Humphries.

MEMBERS OF the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley will stage their annual Jinks party Thursday following a 12:30 p.m. luncheon at the clubhouse.

Mrs. Dale Starkey is chairman for the party, which will follow a "Through the Picture Tube" theme with members in costume and participating in skits inspired by television personalities and events and commercials.

Following a grand march, prizes will be awarded for the best costumes and shows with a special prize offered for "something which has never been done before."

Assisting Mrs. Starkey are Mrs. Harry Smith, stage manager, and Mrs. Jack Shapiro, music director. Preceding the luncheon punch will be served by Mmes. Hyman Krongrad, Robert Morgan and Richard Rider.

Lin will speak on the ideologies of Mao-Tse-Tung. Lin received a B.A. degree from National University, a master's from the University of South Carolina and Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania. He was part-time editor and manager in the New York office of the Pan-America Chinese Press in 1958 and 1959. Now an assistant professor of history at Sonoma State College, he was formerly an instructor in history at the University of California at Davis and Elkins College in West Virginia, University of New Brunswick and the University of British Columbia.

Wives of officers of the 4661st Material will be hostesses. Mrs. Donald Todd is chairman, Mrs. Robert Fromm is in charge of table decorations and prizes and Mrs. A. H. Bledsoe, reservations.

BEGINNING CANOE lessons for adults will be offered by the YWCA starting Thursday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., at the Marin County Civic Center lagoon.

Twenty hours of instruction will be given according to Ann Dwyer, instructor, with a day's trip on the Russian River as the final session. Basic canoeing strokes and the handling of a canoe will be stressed.

Through the co-operation of teh American Red Cross, members may work toward receiving a Red Cross basic canoe card. Enrollment is limited so that participants may receive considerable individual attention. Canoes and paddles will be furnished.

A VALENTINE party is planned by Star of the Sea Institute 97, Yli, of Sausalito following its 8 p.m. meeting Tuesday in the Sausalito Star of the Sea Church's parish hall.

Chairman for the party is Miss Catherine Grinsell.

PRESS GUIDE IS AVAILABLE

A guide for press chairmen of organizations interested in getting news to the Marin Women's Section of the Independent-Journal is available at the San Rafael main office and the Novato, Mill Valley and Southern Sonoma I-J offices.

The booklet, "Getting News Into Your Newspaper," is issued as a service of the Independent-Journal Women's Section to assist press chairmen for women's organizations.

The guide explains policies of coverage, how to prepare news stories and meeting notices, and the special stories and features emphasized by the section.

The booklets at the San Rafael office may be obtained from the switchboard on the main floor.

Lund-Yeats Vows Said In Mill Valley Church

Debbie Yeats became the bride of Mark Alan Lund Sunday at the United Methodist Church in Mill Valley. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Yeats of Corte Madera and his parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clifford S. Lund of San Rafael.

Maid of honor was Mary Louise Yeats of Corte Madera, the bride's sister. Bridesmaids were Patty Erickson of El Cerrito, Mrs. Mary Jo Cretti of Kentfield and Jill Gobershock of Mill Valley.

Steve Lund of San Rafael, the bridegroom's brother was best man. Ushers were Jeffrey of San Rafael, also Mark's brother, Skip Platz of Fort Ord and William Haeling of Sacramento.

A reception was held at Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club and the couple left on a wedding trip to Los Angeles and Mexico and then skiing in the Sierra. They will live in Sacramento where both are students at Sacramento State College.

Debbie is also the sister of Sally Ann Yeats of Corte Madera.

The bridegroom has one sister, Susie Lund of San Rafael. He is a graduate of Terra Linda High School. His local grandmother is Mrs. Leslie P. Lund of San Francisco.

Clever Accessories Can Spark Up A Winter House

Season by season, people may revamp their personal wardrobes to a considerable extent.

But the home's fashion wardrobe isn't changed that often. It wouldn't be sensible — too much expense, too much upheaval.

That's the why of home accessories. Because, even when major furnishings aren't changed, adding accents can create quite a difference.

Take a plump and plushy floor pillow, for instance, or a pedestal table that's an art object in itself. Either or both could help make a room look new.

Ideas for accessorizing the home emphasize contrast between styles — modern, traditional, rustic, provincial and all the other designs for decorating.

For instance, modern lamps and lighting fixtures blend with traditional furniture, just as abstract paintings have often been used to dramatize otherwise traditional settings.

Paintings are joined by prints, statuary and three-dimensional plaques, in wall decor.

Shaped along a curve are many coffee and occasional tables. Elephant-legs tables, for example, add substance and soft lines when used as room accents.

Ornamental pedestal bases are topped by circles or squares of furniture-grade crystal, in table styles to complement traditional, Mediterranean, modern and mixed decorating schemes.

Norris Rawles Claims A Bride

Barbara Phyllis Pieri and Norris Merrill Rawles Jr. were married in Napa Jan. 26.

A reception at the Silverado Country Club in Napa followed the ceremony. The couple left on a skiing trip to Mt. Hood, Ore., They will live in Mill Valley.

The bride is a graduate of St. Vincent's Ferrer High School in Vallejo and Napa Junior College. She is an X-ray technician at St. Mary's Hospital in San Francisco and the sister of Joanne, Susan and Robert Pieri of Napa. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pieri of Napa.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Rawles of San Rafael, is a graduate of San Rafael High School. He attended the college of Marin and is employed by the Marin Municipal Water District. Jeffrey Rawles of Kentfield is his brother.

ON BEING BLACK

How Studying Trigonometry Can Be Relevant To Survival

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

A milk-truck driver once spoke of what he found particularly interesting about his job. His route was in the inner city and in addition to the business acumen he was acquiring, he liked the hustle and bustle of being right in the midst of humanity — of being close to the brother on the street.

Even though he was very observant of what was going on around him, he never failed to check out the skyline. He found that from certain flat-land spots in the city, one could see fantastic horizons — the Golden Gate Bridge, Telegraph Hill or maybe the Pacific Ocean.

On his days off, he often would take his family to these spots or go exploring himself.

I am reminded of the horizons of Mike, the milk-truck driver, when some young blacks insist upon labeling an unfamiliar subject matter irrelevant and using this as an excuse for not examining or learning about it.

Indeed, probably the most used, and, of late, abused words in black circles are relevant and relate. Initially set forth by black scholars to describe a real and honest void in America's educational materials, mass media and as a means of motivating black students, the words have come to be widely misused. They have become substitutes for thought, reason and good, old common sense.

BLACK STUDIES departments have been initiated in an attempt to fill the aforementioned void. (This certainly is not an attack on the importance of these departments.) But black studies must be kept in the proper perspective.

Too many youngsters are using the "I can't relate to that — chemistry or trig" — as a copout. The question is, why not? The answer is simple. All any of us (black or white) are prepared to deal with are relevant things — things we already know about, things we are familiar with. And most blacks have had limited experiences; consequently, what is relevant is limited.

The fact of the matter is, if we limit ourselves to only what is relevant to us, there will be no growth. We will be nurturing a continuation of the restrictions that have been placed upon us for the past four centuries. How can more and more things become relevant to us if we are not exposed to the irrelevant?

Learning is relevant to survival, and there is really no such thing as preconceived relevant or irrelevant material. It is up to the individual to decide what is relevant to him. But before he can make this distinction intelligently, he must be equipped with the tools of reason and exposed to as much as possible. Relevancy is an aftereffect.

IT APPEARS that the real challenge lies in learning to relate to the irrelevant. And young blacks can dare to be adventurous. After all, we're still pioneers; we still have frontiers.

Life for everyone is potentially hazardous, with successes and failures, rewards and penalties.

Ceremony At Scripps

William Kast claimed Rebecca Ann Novak as his bride Saturday at the Senior House at Scripps College in Claremont.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Kast of Greenbrae and a student at California Institute of Technology. He is a graduate of Redwood High School. His grandparents are Mrs. V.K. Swan and Mrs. Gregory Kast of San Francisco.

Becky, as the bride is called, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Novak of Denver, Colo. She was graduated from high school in Denver and from Scripps.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Yosemite after a reception at the Senior House. They will live in Pasadena.

Light-Hearted Band Plans Free Concert

A free public concert by what is probably Marin's most unusual musical aggregation — the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District Non-Marching Band — will be performed Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the San Rafael High School auditorium.

Founded in 1958 under the guidance of its director, Joe Curatilo, head of music for the Dixie School District, the band consists principally of 60 non-professional Marin musicians.

"It turned out to be a band," says Curatilo, "because at the initial meeting no violin players showed up. We had to give it a name and decided our most basic common tie was living at that time in the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District. Non-marching was included in the title since most members had had it up to here with marching."

Occupations of the musicians range from physicians, plumbers and secretaries to astrologers, police inspectors and housewives. They wear long laboratory coats bearing the band's insignia — a crossed mop and plumber's friend in a circle.

"Music played runs the gamut from classical to pops," Curatilo explained, "and occasionally we play a whole program of standard 'turkeys' just for kicks. But don't get the wrong idea. We may sound like a clown band, but we produce some very good music."

For Monday's program the band will play "Sunburst," Osterling; "City Spectrums," Niehaus; "Prelude and Fugue in G Minor," J. S. Bach; "Perpetuum Mobile," Johann Strauss; some marches and selections from Cy Coleman's "Sweet Charity."

Featured will be a clarinet choir playing MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose" and such popular favorites as "Up, Up and Away," and "By the Time I Get to Phoenix" sung by Burke's singers, a group of the musicians who also sing under the direction of Elaine Burke.

"Bring the kids," Curatilo urges.

Opposition To Commune Ordinance

The Mills Valley Youth Commission has adopted a resolution opposing enactment of a proposed anti-commune ordinance by the city council, the second city-appointed body to come out against the measure.

Secretary Mark S. Noguchi reported commissioners voted Wednesday to ask the city council not to amend the city's zoning ordinance to prohibit more than five unrelated persons from living together in a single family zone. The vote was 5-0, with three abstentions.

The city planning commission on Jan. 25 voted 6-1 to ask the council to drop the ordinance, which it called "discriminatory, possibly unconstitutional and difficult to enforce."

Commissioners also voted to try to establish a police ride-along program under which Mill Valley youths would take part in patrols by Mill Valley policemen.

Noguchi said the commission endorsed the program and other such police-community relations programs.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from the California and National Parent-Teacher Association magazines and the Parent's Magazine unless otherwise noted. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael Library.

FAMILY

"Aristocats" — Very clever, delightful musical animated feature in the best Disney tradition about a high society cat who inherits a fortune and the villanous butler and his plans.

"Niok, Orphan Elephant" — Charming story of a baby elephant who is befriended by a native boy. Photography, customs and rituals of Cambodian people adds interest.

"Twelve Chairs" — Slapstick historical comedy about family jewels that were hidden in a chair before the revolution in Russia. Motivated by pure greed the frantic search provides a delightfully entertaining treat. Don't miss it.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Anne of A Thousand Days" — Magnificently staged and cast historical drama of the thousand days of courtship, marriage, trial and beheading of Anne Boleyn.

"Assassination Bureau" — A wittily directed rollicking comedy spoof of international intrigue in the 1900s. Delightful absurd chase through capitols of Europe is inspired by a Jack London story.

"Borsalino" — French gangster film about the 30s shows the violent exterminating practices of eliminating competition. The gory violence is almost continuous. Lavishly detailed sets produces a self conscious campy effect.

"Fools" — Two lonely people, one married, chance to meet and fall in love while exploring San Francisco. An interesting background and script make this romantic film entertaining. Some sex scenes well handled.

"Take The Money and Run" — Woody Allen's fans will love this hilarious farce that pokes fun at a little sad sack and the foibles of the world around him as he tries to climb the crooked ladder to dishonest success.

"You Only Live Twice" — In Japan James Bond does a workman-like job of probing volcanic craters to discover launching pad of a missile that is swallowing up U.S. and Russian space ships. Usual quota of girls, gunfights and gadgets.

"Z" — Remarkable film about a political assassination. A powerful combination of action and suspense providing profound insights into today's troubled politics. English subtitles.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say adults only)

"I Love My Wife" — Satirical comedy about sexual activities of young marrieds. Very well defined characterizations. Not a profound film but pleasantly entertaining. (Motion Picture Herald).

"Lovers and Other Strangers" — Amusing and touching story about what happens to friends and family of two young people when they decide to marry. Some nudity.

"Thunderball" — This time James Bond is underwater in the Bahamas trying to locate a NATO training plane and two atomic bombs. Sex is casual and salacious. Unpalatable cruelty is passed off as "spoof". Many amazing gadgets and much, much violence.

ADULTS ONLY

"Brewster McCloud" — A bawdy black comedy that is part cartoon, partly an essay on modern rudeness and definitely a cinematic circus, with human nature as its major satirical concern. (Motion Picture Daily).

"Five Easy Pieces" — Free-form portrait of an exile from a highbrow musical family who cops out of a routine lower middle class existence. Explicit sex and frank dialogue.

"Joe" — Chilling but excellent tragi-comedy about our troubled society. Two men form an unlikely alliance founded on their envy and hatred of today's youth. Language and sex scenes are shockingly bold and violence of the ending will haunt the viewer.

"Last Summer" — Powerful drama which boldly illustrates the destructive effects of affluent materialistic society on its offspring. Two wealthy cynical teenage boys and two girls spend a summer of fun and sex games on an island that ends on a note of tragedy.

"What Do You Say To A Naked Lady" — Allen Funt brings the situation to the screen of the reactions of unsuspecting passersby to a naked woman. Some moments are humorous but generally it is just smut.

"Where's Poppa" — A vulgar black comedy presents an outrageous picture of a monstrous mother and her guilt ridden harassed son. Wild scenes of rape, nudity, heavily sprinkled with gutter talk are unstrained and brutally frank and may prove offensive to some.

State Told Ecologists Hitting Basic Concerns

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Conservation campaigners "will not go away, because their basic concerns are legitimate," the state Board of Agriculture was told yesterday.

Robert M. Pratt, Los Angeles, Southern California regional coordinator for the state Department of Agriculture, said the membership of conservationist organizations is "expanding rapidly."

A member of the Sierra Club, Pratt said that group's membership has been growing at a 25 per cent annual rate.

He cautioned the board to remember "that we are using the environmental movement to achieve ends which concern us in agriculture.

"For example, the preservation of prime agricultural land can only be achieved with the support of persons and organizations concerned with open space and the protection of the natural environment."

"I can assure you that the environmental organizations and concerned, active individuals, will not go away, because their basic concerns are legitimate," he said.

Pratt said that while many conservation groups are expert in specific fields, they have lately moved "into the general environment" and "found themselves in areas where they did not have this expertise and they have sometimes been led astray by the loudest advocates who were not necessarily the best informed."

"Meanwhile, I ask you not to judge all environmentalists by the lunatic fringe. Even in the Sierra Club, we admit to our lunatic fringe, and there are strident individuals who are damaging the cause we support."

Officials To Tour Housing

The Corte Madera City Council, Planning Commission and Board of Design tomorrow will tour various residential developments financed by E.C. Harter and Odenthal Investment Co.

The company has proposed a 642-unit residential development on county lands near East Corte Madera and hinted it will ask the land be annexed to the town.

Tomorrow's tour, sponsored by the company, will leave Corte Madera at 9:30 a.m. It will include stops at Peacock Gap. Walnut Creek Oakland and Concord. The group will return at 4:30 p.m.

Consumer Group Invites Complaints

Consumers with complaints have been invited by the Marin Consumer Association to a meeting of its grievance-action council at 8 p.m. Thursday at Redwood High School, Larkspur.

The council's announcement of the meeting promised it will act on legitimate grievances, which it said now have no voice in Marin.

FEMINIST PROTEST

Feud Grows On Feudal Outlook

By MARY LEYDECKER

It all started 13 months ago with the "jocular" remark, "That's just like a woman."

Although San Rafael attorney Paul Camera would just as soon forget his comments which led to a year-long battle with Women's Liberation activists at Hastings College, he still retains his somewhat feudal outlook toward the feminine half of the population.

Termed a "sexist" by women's libbers, Camera, who teaches one class at the law school, has been the object this week of a protest movement by a group of law students, mostly women, who want him fired.

Camera, a handsome former football player with a ready grin, showed up at the San Francisco law school Tuesday to begin teaching after a semester's absence.

He was greeted by about 100 protestors carrying placards outside the school. This was followed by some 15 persons marching into his class on "domestic relations." Standing firm, however, Camera said he refused to let the militants disrupt his class.

In his San Rafael law office yesterday, Camera traced his feud with the feminists.

It all started last year, he said, "when a young lady left my class precipitously." He said she was angry because he would not call on her in class because he knew she wanted to discuss her "blue book" (examination) with him in front of the 149 other students during class-time.

After she flounced out, Camera felt obliged to make a few remarks to the class which included such statements as, "Women tend to be overemotional."

"That was on a Thursday," he reminisced. "Before that I had never heard of a women's liberation movement. Sunday morning I picked up the paper and read of a demonstration in Berkeley — which was the first time I had heard of the feminist movement."

Ruefully recalling his "wrong timing," Camera then described how he for a second time offended the campus feminists.

"One day," he recalled, "I asked a young man in class to take his hat off." Although the young man politely and quietly complied, the request apparently annoyed a woman student. The woman made a gesture as if to take her blouse off, he said, apparently in protest over the hat command.

This was not what led Camera to throw her out of class, however. It was her "taking me on" verbally during class time, he said.

The young woman, Zona Sage, a 26-year-old second year law student, has apparently not forgotten nor forgiven Camera for her ouster.

Camera feels she "is behind this whole thing," to such an extent that during Tuesday's demonstration in her class Mrs. Sage was accompanied by her little daughter, aged 3 or 4, according to Camera.

"She's certainly indoctrinating her young," he commented about the child.

Mrs. Sage is presumably especially enraged that Camera, who has made such comments as ' 'women don't make good trial lawyers," is teaching domestic relations, instead of the criminal law course he conducted last year.

(The law professor explained that his course covers marriage dissolution laws.)

He also went on to say that he feels the law school administration has "bent over backwards," even going to the extent of offering a class in the same subject taught by a woman professor. A woman, of whom Camera said, "She is very capable."

The former Sanford football player admits, however, that he does not share women's lib views. "I was raised in a patriarchal household," he said, adding that his father and his father before him probably felt even more strongly about women's roles.

"The women were treated well in my family," he said smilingly of his upbringing in a San Francisco North Beach Italian family.

His wife, Barbara, a nurse whom he met when he was hospitalized with a broken jaw received in a football game, "is a wife and a mother," he said firmly.

Although Camera feels the law school's women libbers have "distorted what actually happened," he added, "I didn't know they felt so strongly about this . . ."

SEXTIST? — San Rafael attorney Paul Camera, who teaches one course at Hastings College in San Francisco, has locked horns for over a year with lady law students who claim he is an unreconstructed male chauvinist — and worse. (Independent-Journal photo)

2 Candidates File For College Board

An account executive for a securities firm and the former administrator of Center Medical Hospital in Kentfield filed candidacy papers yesterday for the Marin Junior College District board.

They are Joseph A. Gereghty Jr., account executive with Gardiner, Gries and Co., San Rafael, and Donald C. Barksdale, formerly head of Center Medical Hospital and now president of Intermed Associates of San Rafael.

Meanwhile, college board member Harry J. Moore of Novato announced he wouldn't seek reelection. Moore was previously undecided about his candidacy.

Moore, principal of Hill Junior High School in Novato, will step down after one term, having been elected in 1967. He joins trustee Robert E. Rogers of Tiburon in leaving the board.

Two other incumbents whose terms are expiring, Elizabeth M. Deedy and Charles Gray, have not filed candidacy papers yet, although Gray has indicated he will run again.

Filing for the board Wednesday was William L. Sisk of Novato, district sales manager for an insurance firm.

Gereghty, 33, lives at 3 Laurel Grove Avenue, Kentfield, and Barksdale, also 33, at 5 Upper Oak Drive, San Rafael.

They were the sole candidates to file yesterday for Marin school board seats up at the April 20 election.

Burton Hat In Ring For Councilman

Park and Recreation Commissioner George S. Burton, who lost a bid for San Rafael city councilman two years ago, will run again. He filed yesterday for the April 20 municipal election.

Burton, 42, of 19 Hacienda Court is general manager of San Rafael Sales, a commercial truck dealership.

He is a native of San Rafael and was graduated from the College of Marin and San Francisco State College. He is a member of Greater San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, President of San Rafael American Little League, member of the County Council American Legion Post 37, and the vice president of the executive board of directors of St. Raphael Men's Club.

Burton is the third candidate to file for the two city council seats up for election. Already in the running are incumbent Fred E. Jensen and Planning Commissioner Thomas R. O'Toole. Incumbent John A. Miskimen has picked up nomination papers, but has not yet filed.

Running for mayor is incumbent C. Paul Bettini and Richard A. Raznikov of 241 Union Street, who have filed. Arthur F. Dieters, unsuccessful candidate in the last mayoral race has announced his intention to run but has not filed.

City Clerk Marion A. Grady, City Treasurer Angelina J. Soldavini and City Atty. Fred J. Robbins Jr. have filed for reelection. No other candidates have filed for these positions.

Filings close at noon next Thursday.

Bus Service To Replace An Early Commute Ferry

The 6 a.m. ferry from Sausalito to San Francisco will be replaced Monday with a bus because of poor patronage, the Golden Gate Bridge District announced yesterday.

The bus will leave the Sausalito ferry terminal at 6:08 a.m. and arrive in the financial district at Battery and Sacramento streets at 6: 30 a.m.

Deletion of the dawn ferry run will allow addition of a midday run that had been dropped to give time for maintenance on the ferry. Under the new schedule, the maintenance will be done before the first morning run.

In addition to the changes in ferry schedules Monday, a new commuter feeder bus service to the ferry will begin in Tamalpais Valley at Maple and Marin avenues. It will run along Shoreline Highway.

The following week, on Feb. 16, a second new commuter feeder bus to Sausalito will operate from downtown Mill Valley and along East Blithedale Avenue to Highway 101. It will replace the Mill Valley feeder bus to the Tiburon ferry.

Donald White, transit manager for the bridge district, said the 6 a.m. Sausalito ferry had been carrying only 16 to 20 commuters.

Under the new winter schedule, weekday ferry departures from Sausalito will be at 7:15, 8:25, 9:45, and 11:05 a.m., and 12:25, 2, 3:30, 4:50, 6:05 and 7:20 p.m.

Departures from San Francisco will be at 7:50, 9:05, 10:25, and 11:45 a.m., and 1:15, 2:45, 4:15, 5:30 and 6:45 p.m.

The winter schedule will operate through April. The summer schedule, beginning on May 1, will add two round trips in the evening.

Fogarty Out Of Credence

BERKELEY (UPI) — Tom Fogerty, a member of the Creedence Clearwater Revival, has left the rock group to spend more time with his wife and four children.

"Tom is not retiring," said Jack Rohrer, the group's press officer. "He's just not going to tour anymore. There's no rift. Nobody's mad at anybody."

He added Tom would "go on as a single performer."

In the past 2 1-2 years, the Creedence has sold $86 million worth of records. The other three members — John Fogerty, Doug kgufford and Stu Cook — will continue to cut records and make tours.

CONTROVERSIES AIRED

A Candid Tape Recording

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Returning from a late-hour closed session Wednesday night, the Larkspur City Council discovered itself alone at last, press and public having departed under the impression — the mistaken impression — that no further business was to be conducted.

Councilman Neil R. Brixon, noting the seat occupied earlier by an Independent-Journal reporter, and casting a glance at the city's tape recorder declared: "There's no I-J man here now and I hope they turn that goddamn thing off."

However, the tape continued to record the meeting.

Topics discussed, some hitherto only hinted at, included the city's planning commission and an accusation that it is harrassing developer Niels J. Schultz Jr., the proposed Central Marin ferry terminal and expressions of doubt it would ever be Larkspur's, a move to themselves $150 per month each and support of a fire department policy to bill businessmen and fire alarm makers $150 for false alarm.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst disclosed that the offer from a Corte Madera property owner to give the Golden Gate Bridge District 25 acres for a Central Marin ferry terminal "is giving us trouble and plenty of it."

Of concern to Bathurst, besides losing the ferry terminal to rival Corte Madera, is the traffic problem a terminal on the Domenic Mauzy property would create for Larkspur's Magnolia Avenue.

Brixon, agreeing, detailed a conversation he had had with Louis H. Baar, chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, for whom Brixon had been Larkspur campaign manager three years ago.

Brixon said he had asked Baar if the supervisors plan to take a position on the ferry terminal and was told the county board wouldn't "unless it's forced to."

"This is one I'd just as soon side-step on . . . There's no pressure yet and until such time I'll do nothing," Brixon quoted Baar as saying.

"He asked 'do you people want the site?' " Brixon said adding that Baar commented "Well really the only one making waves on this thing has been (Corte Madera Mayor Edward W.) Colthurst."

Brixon said he told the supervisor that Larkspur wanted the terminal as much as Corte Madera, "but we are not about to bow to blackmail and give away 25 acres of ground."

Bathurst noted that on Wednesday the Bridge District board probably would narrow the number of sites to two and could make a final selection.

The council, riding easily over the objections of Mayor Benton A. Sifford, passed 4-to-1 a resolution of intent to award themselves a $150 monthly salary, beginning July 1.

The motion was made by Councilman Alfred J. Malvino who sought assurances from other councilmen that the intent of the resolution was also to notify the public.

"We are going to let the public know, right?" he asked and received assurances from Councilman Earl J. O'Grady that the resolution represented that intent.

Mayor Sifford objected: "We're so short on taxes now, we are concerned with zoning C-2 to C-1 (higher density retail business) . . . I can not see the council or myself taking $150 per month as salary."

The council also engaged in a lengthy discussion on the fire department's policy of charging owners and dealers of faulty fire alarms $150 for each false alarm.

The discussion ranged to the possibility of an ordinance controlling dealers and possibly charging homeowners for false burglar alarms.

Billing homeowners for police costs involved in answering such alarms was rejected, however, when Police Chief Howard C. Clark stressed that residents should be encouraged to install the alarms.

"You mean the city is going to provide that service free of charge," asked Councilman Malvino. "I disagree, that service is service above and beyond the call of duty."

The council, however, shied away from Malvino's position endorsing only the fire department policy.

The council's final topic was a report of impressions Councilman O'Grady received during a recent meeting of the Planning Commission.

"I heard a lot of things that night," he began. "First, the commission convened at 8:09 p.m. and spend the next hour and eight minutes on the Schultz application (for an apartment building adjacent to Corte Madera Creek.")

He said the commission next spent only 33 minutes on two similar applications, praising one applicant on completeness of his plan.

"This irked me because you're (the commissioners are) degrading one guy and upgrading another," he continued. "This man (Schultz) went through a lot that I would have objected to.

"If they don't like Schultz, they (the commissioners) should tell him to his face . . . and get it out in the open."

(Schultz is the major property owner along Corte Madera Creek and is credited with building much of Larkspur. Development of his creekside properties, as well as those of others, has stirred controversy between the council and commission.)

With the tape recorder continuing to roll, O'Grady concluded: "I want to go on record. If they have anything against the man I want to know what it is.'

The closed session was held by the council to meet with the city attorney to discuss means of avoiding litigation in negotiations with a property owner for a site for a new police station.

The city would like to acquire the property at 426-428 Magnolia Avenue, owned by Lenna Fendler of Jackson, and convert existing medical offices into police quarters.

When the council returned, it found itself alone. It had earlier taken all items on the agenda requiring staff assistance and then released certain staff members declaring other agenda items could be "carried over." The council apparently meant until after the closed session but it was taken by the press and apparently the public to mean another meeting.

Planning Staff Picks 2 Sites For Possible Ferry Terminal

A recommendation that the Central Marin ferry terminal be located either at Larkspur or San Quentin Point will be offered Monday to the Marin County Planning Commission by its staff.

Robert L. Harrison, county transportation study engineer, said yesterday the two sites should be given priority over those offered by Corte Madera because of less impact on the environment and better "operation characteristics."

Four sites have been recommended as possible locations for the terminal. All are now being studied by the Golden Gate Bridge District board which will operate the terminal. The sites are: the Hutchinson Co. quarry property in Larkspur north of Corte Madera Creek, The Heerdt varshland property in Corte Madera south of and adjacent to the creek, the Domenic Mauzy property in Corte Madera south of the Heerdt property, and a site recommended by conservationists on San Quentin Point at the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

Conservation groups have registered strong opposition to the Hutchinson and Heerdt sites, maintaining they will damage vital marshlands and upset feeding cycles for birds.

Harrison said the Hutchinson site will be recommended because it offers the best possibilites from a ferry boat-terminal operations standpoint.

The San Quentin Point site, he continued, will be recommended because it does least damage to the bay's environment.

The Larkspur and San Quentin Point sites "best meet the critera" established by his office, he said, while Corte Madera's south site (Mauzy's) "marginally meets" the criteria and the north site (Heerdt's) is "totally unacceptable."

Other criteria include offshore considerations (ferry boat and terminal operation), access to the sites, development capabilities of surrounding lands, community and environmental impact.

The planners will meet at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center.

Any recommendation reached by the commission will be forwarded to the county board of supervisors which in turn will forward it to the bridge district board.

Louis H. Baar, chairman of the board of supervisors, has been reported as telling a Larkspur city councilman he would just as soon "side-step" the question of where the terminal should go.

Meanwhile, Larkspur officials, worried over bridge district acceptance of an offer of free land in Corte Madera, are studying litigation pending between the property owner, Domenic Mauzy, and the Marin Flood Control District.

Testing Of Transit Plan Asked

When the Golden Gate Bridge District decides on a San Francisco-to-Marin transit system, Marin's City-County Planning Council wants to test the plan for local impact before the selection becomes final.

That was the consensus last night at a council meeting at Redwood High School.

The council would test the plan against studies conducted by the county planning department into future transit needs. Planning officials cautioned last year that land use plans in the distant future would permit a greater population that transit planning could handle.

The bridge district has completed public hearings on five alternate systems and must pick one of those for presentation to the state legislature.

The City-County Planning Council also:

TOURISM — Accepted the $12,500 tourism report from Economic Research Associates of Los Angeles without committing itself on the recommendations made in the report. The study firm recommended a program to build resort centers and encourage overnight visitors.

LARKSPUR — Approved Larkspur's application for a $35,000 federal grant to update its general plan.

MEETING — Set 8 p.m. March 4 in the faculty lounge of Redwood High School for its next session.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

How To Combat Old Age: Smile, Eat Well, Get Plenty Of Rest

Most of us are not aware of the aging process until we reach 50, even though some of us show evidence of mileage sooner than others. Any loss of Physical attractiveness can be offset with personal cleanliness, attention to the teeth and hair, and proper clothing and appropriate cosmetics. Fatigue from too little sleep or dissipation increases the lines in the face and dulls the expression.

Cheerful smiles can take 10 years off the indicudual's chronological age. But to have this effect, a smile must be genuine and come from within. Every age has its compensation so forget the "good old" days and be young with the new ways.

As we get older, the mind, like the body, undergoes changes, too. It is maddening to forget what happened a few hours or days ago, even though we seem to remember things that happened years ago. This is easily corrected by writing it down immediately or doing what you were going to do before it slips your mind.

With increasing age, many people have more and more trouble concentrating on what is being read or on a familiar game or activity. Another tendency is to collect, save, or hide money and sentimental or worthless articles. There also may be a lack of ambition to do things or go places. In some instances, this stems from being too tired. Fatigue may also explain a loss of interest in current events.

Many oldsters become temperamental, impatient, easy to anger, quarrelsome, and have frequent crying spells. Some begin to use bad language which they never used before. When this stage is reached, they neglect personal cleanliness. They repeat the same old story to the same people at the same hour.

The best plan is to remain active, eat a balanced diet, get adequate rest, and see the physician when unusual medical problems arise. Practical vision and hearing should be maintained even though this requires an operation for cataracts or the purchase of a hearing aid.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

FAN-SHAPED MEMBRANE

D.P. writes: Does a pterygium have to be removed by operation?

REPLY

This triangular fold of membrane that grows out from the inner corner of the eye is on the surface. It does no harm unless it extends over the pupil and blocks vision. Surgical treatment is then advised.

GOUT AND PROTEIN

J. K. writes: Is it dangerous for a person suffering from gout to eat proteins?

REPLY

No, but certain proteins (purines) may bring on an attack. Our leaflet on gout can be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

PAR AT 82

A reader writes: My wife is 82 and forgetful — except about past events. She dwells on the past, which I find most annoying. What would cause this type of problem?

REPLY

Poor circulation, At her age, this is par for the course.

INFLAMMED VEIN IN ARM

P. L. writes: Is it possible to develop phlebitis in the arm?

REPLY

Yes, but inflammation of these veins is less common than the veins of the legs.

Deadline For Registration Renewal Today

Today is the deadline for motorists to renew their 1971 vehicle registration, the state Department of Motor Vehicles cautioned.

Mail renewals must be postmarked by midnight tonight. For in-person renewals, state motor vehicle offices at 75 Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera, and at 76 Oak Street, Petaluma, will be open until 5 p.m.

Failure to renew by today will mean a 10 per cent penalty for the first 30 days for passenger vehicles and higher assessments for commercial vehicles.

Renewal instructions from the Department of Motor Vehicles said the deadline was Feb. 4, but that is in error.

12 Youths On Honor List

Twelve Marin youths — three with straight A or 4.0 averages — are on the dean's honor list for the fall quarter at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

Students with straight A averages are: Carol G. Mason of San Rafael, Terry Theiss of Mill Valley, and Michael L. Tierney of Fairfax.

Students with a B plus or 3.5 and better are: Grace E. Fielder of Mill Valley, Leslie F. Galez of Mill Valley, Stephanie L. Christensen of San Anselmo, Nancy G. Dodd of San Rafael, Linda H. Eastes of San Rafael, Wendy A. Wolterding of Sausalito, Pamela Blair of Terra Linda, Laura J. Brandt of Tiburon, and Timothy G. McLaughlin of Tiburon.

Baltimore Gets Old New York Cabs

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Old New York taxis never die—they move to Baltimore.

A taxi company owner seeking a fare increase told the public service commission Wednesday that about half of the 1,150 licensed taxis in the Baltimore area were bought as hand-me-downs from New York taxi companies to save money.

Ecology Group May Get Funds

The Fairfax Festival Committee may give the proceeds of the next festival to an ecology group in return for labor, according to a committee spokesman.

Mrs. William Beighley said the group last night considered giving all or part of the proceeds from the September fair to three groups: the Marin Ecology Center, the Louise A. Boyd Science Museum and the Fairfax Park and Recreation Commission.

She said a representative of each group told how the money —possibly $2,000 — would be used. No decision was made by the committee pending election of officers Feb. 18, she said.

Tuna Safe, FDA Claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Food and Drug Administration says the problem of mercury contamination in tuna is not as bad as once feared; but swordfish, it said, is still another story.

The agency Thursday declared the U.S. tuna supply free of excess mercury. It said a nationwide survey showed only 3.6 per cent of the canned tuna supply contained mercury in amounts higher than the 0.5 parts per million safety limit.

The FDA said the limit is sufficient to offer "a broad range of safety and is adequate to protect consumers."

TV REVIEW

Another Knock At The '30s

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — For the second week in a row, the non-commercial television network's "NET Playhouse" delivered a roundhouse blow Thursday night to the currently-popular notion that the 1930s were a romantic period.

Last week, "NET Playhouse" offered Arthur Miller's "A Memory of Two Mondays," a study of the bleak lives of blue-collar workers in the 1930s. Thursday night, the presentation was Millard Lampell's "Hard Travelin'," a collection of vignettes about "the exploiters and the exploited" of the depression years.

This was the second of six programs in which "NET Playhouse" is taking a look at the 1930s through the works of playwrights and filmmakers. Next Thursday's scheduled presentation is "Hollywood and Its Movies," an examination of filmtown's growth during the 1930s and its impact on American life. There are planned interviews with persons who were part of that Hollywood scene, including Edward G. Robinson, Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell, producer Hal Wallis, directors Mervyn Leroy and William Wellman, and writers Dalton Trumbo and John Bright.

The Hollywood program next Thursday focuses on the Warner Brothers Studio, and the producer of the broadcast, David Loxton, says:

"Besides portraying the development of the Hollywood industry during the thirties, we want to capture in dramatic terms the feeling of what it was like to be a part of the Hollywood scene in those days. Movies were to people then what television is today, and we want to examine the role they played in the lives of Americans."

As for Lampell's "Hard Travelin'" Thursday night, it had by no means the polish or quality of last week's "A Memory of Two Mondays," but in its fury and passion about the underdogs of the 1930s, and their submission to delusions and dreams of the period, there was an occasional theatrical fire that hit one with impact.

Ralph Meeker, as a hard-sell con man who showed up in various episodes throughout, headed a cast which sometimes indicated more enthusiasm than smooth skill in depicting Lampell's fierce anger through dramatic sketches, satire and songs.

This was polemical drama from the viewpoint of the underside of life, with something of the effect of Brecht in its dramatized cabaret style, and a bit of the tone of Dos Passos' "U.S.A." in its vignette looks at the American dream throughout the sprawling nation.

"Hard Travelin'" was a harsh look at a system in which Lampell saw con men and hustlers move ahead, and believes in spoon-fed dreams and cliches fall by the wayside, defeated. There were film clips of the realities of the day alternating with happy-silly escapist songs that lulled the unknowing and kept them in degrading life styles while pursuing the promises of the pitchmen, political and otherwise.

The program began in the 1920s, before the crash, with Meeker as an almost evangelical symbol of the hard-selling salesmen who advocated stock market plunges as a stairway to paradise for ordinary citizens. And, as the play progressed, there were quotations from some leading public figures of the time, among them Calvin Coolidge, who observed: "The future may be better or worse."

JFK's New Portrait Upsetting To Some

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Artist Aaron Shikler painted President John F. Kennedy in a thoughtful pose —arms folded, head pensively down.

The style of the official portrait bothered some of the 350 members of a women's club who viewed the portrait and a companion portrait of the late President's wife at the White House Thursday.

"It's . . . hideous of him," Mrs. Lois DeVecchio said. "For such a vital man to be shown in such a despairing mood. It's incredible. I don't think the American people want to remember him that way."

The portraits go on display for the general public today in the East Room.

Shikler, a New York artist, said he painted Kennedy with his head bowed "not because I think of him as a martyr, but because I wanted to show him as a president who was a thinker.

"A thinking president is a rare thing. To show him thinking was the highest accolade I could give him."

Other viewers complained the portrait did not show Kennedy's eyes.

"I wanted to see the twinkle in his eyes," said Mrs. Fred Smithdeal of Winston-Salem, N.C.

"Well, everybody goes after the eyes," Shikler said. "All presidential portraits have eyes that look right at you. I wanted to do something with more meaning. I hoped to show a courage that made him humble."

The President's widow, Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, is depicted in her portrait with a wistful, faraway look in her eyes, a bouquet of white peonies behind her head. She wears a floor length champagne gown with peach tones.

Mrs. Kennedy's portrait drew mixed reactions from the women's club members. Mrs. Dilal David said she was "just thrilled with Jackie's" and another woman described it as "excellent." But many said she looked too pale and that the portrait failed to show her vibrancy.

Bistatic Radar Charting Structure Of Moon Crust

STANFORD (BW) — Stanford scientists are playing key roles in the lunar explorations by astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Edgar D. Mitchell on the moon's surface.

Both moon-walk astronauts received special training from Dean Richard H. Jahns of the Stanford School of Earth Sciences to sharpen their observations of the lunar geology.

In addition Shepard and Mitchell are performing an experiment devised by a Stanford geophysicist, Prof. Robert L. Kovach, which is designed to probe beneath the moon's surface. Besides revealing something about the underlying geologic structure, it may tell whether the moon has a "permafrost" containing water.

Finally, Stanford radio scientists H. Taylor Howard and G.Leonard Tyler, together with astronaut Stuart H. Roosa in the moon-orbiting command module, will carry out "bistatic radar" soundings of the moon which could yield radar maps of the lunar crust from its surface to considerable depth.

Dean Jahns described his trainees, Shepard and Mitchell, as "real professionals, dedicated, who want to show what a man on the moon can do that a black box can't."

The big difference between the U.S. and Soviet space programs, Jahns pointed out, is that all Russian landings have depended on instruments or machines for observations and collecting of samples.

"We have trained Shepard and Mitchell to be able to 'see' what they are looking at," he said. "There are many things you find through actual experience that can't be reported by a television picture or any kind of instrument — such things as odd shapes, sizes, or types of material or terrain.

"Only a man on the spot, for instance, can decide which samples look or feel most interesting, or whether a sample 'belongs' or seems somehow out of place."

Jahns was at the Manned Space Control Center in Houston today to help interpret the information coming in from the astronauts after their first "moon traverse." Also present were Stanford geophysicist Kovach, whose experiment was set up by the two astronauts during their first moonwalk.

It consists of three seismometers deployed in the vicinity of the lunar module. Astronaut Mitchell carried a plunger-like "thumper" which fires 22-cal. cartridges for soundings of the lunar soil. These sound waves are expected to penetrate to depths of at least 100 feet, and echoes reflected from the underlying structures, will be picked up by the seismometers and radioed back to earth.

This may tell how deep the moon's bedrock lies, or if it has a bedrock layer. Earth scientists believe the moon has a solid layer of rock beneath its surface layers of soil and rubble. It might also reveal any water frozen in the form of permafrost like that found in arctic regions. The same techniques are used to locate new oil pools on earth.

Finally, the astronauts will leave four specially designed explosive charges behind when they leave, all to be fired approximately six months later. These should give soundings as deep as 1,500 feet, and the echoes will be radioed back to earth.

The bistatic radar experiment directed by Howard consists primarily of a radar transmitter in the Apollo 14 spacecraft. When astronaut Roosa flicks a switch, it will begin sending two radio signals, one high-frequency (2,200 MHZ) and the other low-frequency (260 MHZ).

The signals will be received by two large dish antennas, the 150-foot dish at the Stanford Center for Radar Astronomy where Tyler will be listening, and the 210-foot NASA dish at Goldstone, Calif., where Howard will be stationed.

The Goldstone antenna will receive the high-frequency signals, and Stanford's dish the low-frequency ones, coming both direct from Apollo 14 and after they have bounced off the surface of the moon.

Differences between the signals received directly, and indirectly after bouncing from the moon's surface, should give a sharp picture of the crust.

The high-frequency signal, for instance, should penetrate only a few feet into the lunar soil, while the low-frequency will probe perhaps a hundred feet down. The reflected signals should give considerable information about lunar structure in depth.

Other, smaller frequencies that result from the original signals' reflections from rocks, crater walls, and other formations should give a good picture of the lunar surface itself.

While bistatic radar has been tested in earlier unmanned space probes and lunar orbiters, Howard said the Apollo 14 experiment is the first in which two signals will be transmitted simultaneously.

Since the radar results can be compared with actual photos taken during the flight of Apollo 14, it will provide a definitive test of the bistatic radar technique as well as offering an unprecedented opportunity for improving it.

Inmate Flap Over Coffee

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — Between 25 and 40 inmates at the Oregon state penitentiary staged a four-hour sitdown strike in the prison kitchen Thursday in protest over shortened coffee-break times.

Robert Davis, executive assistant to Gov. Tom McCall, termed the matter "a tempest in a coffeepot," and said at no time was any violence threatened.

The strikers were inmates who normally work in the prison kitchen.

MMWD Hearing On Backflow Prevention

Marin Municipal Water District's public hearing on a proposed backflow prevention ordinance will be on the agenda for the district board's regular meeting Wednesday.

A story in the Jan. 14 edition of the Independent-Journal erroneously gave the hearing date as yesterday.

Corte Madera Man Hurt In Mishap

John D. Friend, 47, of 25 Rocklyn Court, Corte Madera, was treated for multiple cuts at Marin General Hospital yesterday after his auto skidded into the center guardrail northbound on Highway 101 just south of Tamalpais Drive, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Officers said Friend was traveling between 75 and 85 miles an hour in the freeway's slow lane and swerved and braked to avoid a slower auto. They said his vehicle skidded across the highway and struck the rail about 11:45 p.m.

Rep. Dellums Has Some People Uptight

Berkeley Congressman Is Of Diverse Strains

By RAY MOSELEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One minute he sounds like a product of the slums, which he is: "So I start running down these problems and they say, 'Hey man, this dude's right. That's what's happening.' "

A moment later, he is using the argot of the professional social worker, which he also is: "I think there are strategies for bringing fundamental change without any pseudo-masculine effort at problem-solving through violence."

These diverse strains are apparent not only in his speech, but in his appearance: black; modified Afro hair style; thick, drooping mustache, gray at the edges; six feet four; strikingly good looking. And the clothes: wide, mod tie, dark blue shirt, Edwardian jacket, bell-bottomed trousers.

What he does not look, or sound, like is a $42,500-a-year congressman, but he is—and that has some people up tight.

He's Rep. Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif., described during the 1970 congressional campaign by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as "a radical extremist, an enthusiastic supporter of the Black Panther Party."

Some of his colleagues see him as the most radical of the new congressmen, and he doesn't take issue with that.

"It might be true," said Dellums when the subject was broached recently in an interview with UPI. "It depends on what you think of as radical.

"But I don't think the high office of vice president gives anyone the right to castigate without knowledge, to make attacks without any real awareness of who I am as a human being.

"I am not going to back away from being called a radical. If being an advocate of peace, justice and humanity toward all human beings is radical, then I'm glad to be called a radical. And if it is radical to oppose the use of 70 per cent of federal monies for destruction and war, then I am a radical."

(He speaks in the liquid accents of the ghetto, and the tempo of his speech is furious, the words tumbling out without pause for minutes at a stretch.)

"Because of Agnew, some people think I am an advocate of violence. That is patently absurd. I am opposed to violence as a method of solving disputes whether they are international or in the streets of America.

"I am an advocate of peace and nonviolence, and I don't think that's a cop-out. I think there are strategies for bringing fundamental change without any pseudo-masculine effort at problem solving through violence."

But Dellums will not renounce the Black Panthers.

"Agnew was using them as scapegoats and a way of avoiding critical problems," he said. "I see my responsibility as the protection of civil liberties of all people, and I am not going to fight just for the civil liberties of groups that have the mantle of respectability. The Panthers are not the problem in the country, they are not the issue."

Dellums, 35, represents California 7th District, which has been called the most diverse district in America. It includes the slums of west Oakland and the academic community at the University of California in Berkeley. Thirty-five per cent of the population is black, 5 per cent chicano and there also are some Orientals and Indians.

Dellums formed a coalition of all these groups to defeat one of the most liberal Democrats in Congress, Rep. Jeffery Cohelan, in the primary, then won easily over a Republican in the general election.

He says he does not intend to be like other congressmen. One measure of that is the fact that a few doors down from his outer office (newly painted in bright yellow and orange), a group of mostly long-haired, mustachioed Vietnam veterans has set up shop in office space provided by Dellums. They hope to persuade other congressmen to get behind a resolution Dellums plans to introduce, calling for a congressional inquiry into alleged U.S. war crimes in Vietnam.

Another measure of his difference is his philosophical approach to the job:

"I didn't come here to deal. I came out of a sense of idealism. The people of my district are too sophisticated to be manipulated by the notion that I can pass extraordinary legislation. But I must assume the risk of advocating bold new ideas, and I am not going to compromise my integrity or sell myself to get projects for my district."

REP. RONALD V. DELLUMS
'This dude's right'

"Somebody said the way to get along here is to go along," he said, quoting the late House Speaker Sam Rayburn. "Well, if we go along with what is happening in Washington we will never solve our problems and we will strangle ourselves in our own self-aggrandizement. I must find a way of not being perceived as some kind of sophisticated minstrel man, some kind of clown or a joke.

"I am not on a personal ego trip. But I like to think we can have a society that is a great deal better than the one we have, and hope to demonstrate that even if they beat me, they won't break me."

To some, Dellums brings to mind the young Adam Clayton Powell Jr., who came to Congress in 1945 as a fiery orator, civil rights militant and hero of the black community, but Dellums said he's too young to remember that.

He lists the great influences in his life as Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Malcolm X, Rep. Shirley Chisholm, the black congresswoman from Brooklyn, and Cesar Chavez, leader of the California farm workers Union.

Dellums' father is a former Pullman porter and now is a longshoreman. His mother is a clerical worker in a federal office. He went into the Marines in 1954 because he couldn't find a job, and later went to college on the G.I. Bill, earning bachelor's and master's degrees in social work.

"I was going to get a Ph.D. at Brandeis in social policy, but I got talked into going to a meeting to tell people why I didn't want to be a city council candidate in Berkeley, and wound up being the canddate, and won, and now I'm in Congress," he said.

He has been a social worker, a university lecturer and a private manpower consultant working with a large number of federal agencies.

"I've worked in 35 states, in almost every federal program — Model Cities, manpower, poverty programs at every level. I helped write guidelines. I am one congressman who knows how these programs work."

Because of this experience, he is contemptuous of what he calls "expedient liberalism" and condemns programs that he says only give the appearance of meeting problems.

"We develop programs to keep young people employed from July through September, as though they don't need jobs all year, just so we won't have embarrassing problems from them in the summer."

Dellums will work for more financing for such programs, but his main concern is to help end divisions in American society and try to awaken the public to what he sees as the need for change.

"We cannot talk about black people's problems, or Chicanos, or women, or youth, and separate them from the problem of the mentality that guides our decision-making process," he said.

"The silent majority is the most programmed group in America. They are programmed as to who the scapegoats are, who the enemies are, but they are not told what the real problems are.

"The blue collar people are screaming, and they are perfectly correct. They are the working poor, and we are not doing anything about it. I have talked to them, about their low incomes and meager raises; about how they are frozen into meaningless jobs because they can't transfer retirement benefits; about how their children can't go to college.

"So I start running down these problems, and they say, 'Hey man, this dude's right. That's what's happening.'"

Agnew said that Dellums "advocates bringing the walls down."

"I do advocate that," Dellums said. "I said we live in a society where the walls are very high and thick between classes, races and even sexes. We cannot achieve the society we want until we bring down the walls of racism, fear, mistrust and ignorance. When we bring them down, we will find a lot of human beings on the same plateau, with their own suffering and misery.

"But if we keep the silent majority pitted against blacks, the poor against poor, we are keeping people who desperately need to come together fighting each other. And who benefits?

"We must keep struggling to change society, to get blacks and whites working together. And I think we can do it. I hope, and I wouldn't be here if I didn't hope."

Contractor Wins Marin City Support

A Marin City contractor's plan to build 20 low and moderate income apartments in the community has won the endorsement of the Marin City Homeowners Improvement Association, secretary Flossie Berry reported.

Mrs. Berry said the association on Wednesday voted to support the proposal of contractor Alvis Allen and sons to construct the units on property owned by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Drake Avenue.

The plan has already received approval of the Marin City Council, according to chairman Samuel L. Banks. It will be presented to the Marin City Community Services District Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Manzanita Center.

The homeowners group also announced it will sponsor a slide show by Vonda Riley, a 16-year-old Marin City girl who spent last summer as an exchange student in Norway.

Mrs. Berry said the show and talk by Miss Riley will be Feb. 14 at 3 p.m. in St. Andrew's Church.

Grant To Festival

The Marin County Shakespeare Festival has received a $500 grant from the Renaissance Center in Los Angeles to help replace costumes and materials destroyed in a fire last August and for the festival's scholarship program.

THE FANS JUST LOVE IT

Buffalo hockey fans expressed delight when Eddie Shack of the Buffalo Braves (23) battled Gilles Marotte (4) and Bob Berry (18) of the Los Angeles Kings for the puck last night. Shack, known around the National Hockey League as "the entertainer," scored three goals as the Braves won, 5-2.

Zwahlen Heading To Oilers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Most football teams talk in terms of shoring up player position weaknesses, but the San Francisco Forty Niners have come up with a unique situation. They have to rebuild their offensive coaching staff for the 1971-72 season.

The Forty Niners, the highest scoring machine in the National Football League last season, lost the second half of the offensive coaching complement Thursday when Ernie Zwahlen joined Ed Hughes and the Houston Oilers.

During the 1970-71 campaign, Hughes, who left the San Francisco staff two weeks ago, handled the overall offense of the Forty Niners and Zwahlen the offensive line.

After learning of Zwahlen's decision, Forty Niner head man Dick Nolan said, resignedly, "They were good friends and worked together a long time. This kind of thing is going to happen. People are going to seek their coaches from winning teams."

Warriors Push Win Streak To 5 Games

Invade Portland Tonight

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—The San Francisco Warriors, riding high on a five-game winning streak, continue their chase tonight in the National Basketball Association Pacific Division.

The Warriors, who trail Los Angeles by two games, meet the Portland Trail Blazers — who are on a mini-streak of their own.

San Francisco picked up a half game Thursday night on idle Los Angeles by whipping Phoenix on its home court, 117-105.

Meanwhile, the expansion Trail Blazers throttled Pete Maravich and the Atlanta Hawks, 137-23, for their second straight game over an established NBA club.

Center Nate Thurmond played one of his better game against the Suns, dumping in 30 points with 12 of 22 from the floor. Joe Ellis and Jerry Lucas each scored 24 and Jeff Mullins added 23.

The Warriors face a tough weekend schedule, returning home after tonight's game to meet the Milwaukee Bucks Saturday in the Oakland Coliseum and then traveling to Los Angeles Sunday to battle the Lakers.

NEAR HOMESTRETCH

Cagers To Begin The Final Round

The Redwood High School Giants may not have absolutely clear sailing during the second half of the Marin County Athletic League basketball season, but don't bet against them tonight.

The Larkspur team, which ran up a 7-0 record in the first round robin, starts the second by hosting the Novato Hornets, who will be playing without the man who has lately become their offensive salvation. Marty Moroski has a broken wrist, and will be lost to the team for the rest of the season.

In other games tonight, San Marin hosts Tamlapis, Terra Linda entertains Drake, and San Rafael is at home against Marin Catholic. All varsity games start at 8 o'clock.

In their first meeting, Redwood rolled past Novato unchallenged after the first period, and tonight's game may be even more onesided. The Hornets' lone offensive hope, with Moroski out of the lineup, is guard Joe DeMaestri, and he has been having his troubles. After starting the season with several 20-plus performances, he has been held to around 10 points per game.

Moroski's left wrist had been bothering him for more than a week before he finally went to see a doctor who confirmed a fracture.

The wrist has been placed in a cast, where it will remain for at least a month. The junior forward had improved steadily all season, and was eighth among the league's scorers with a 13.9 per game average.

The Giants, conversely, are healthy as horses, and have what could be unstoppable momentum. Their MCAL winning streak over the last three seasons is 33, including victories last week over San Marin and Tamalpais.

Those two teams meet tonight in another MCAL feature. The Mustangs of Novato, at 3-4, have nothing to lose, but the Indians of Mill Valley are still fighting for survival and the championship. In fact, at 5-2 they are the only team with a reasonable chance to catch Redwood.

But San Marin remembers their previous encounter this season, when Tam made them look silly. Look for the Mustangs to let loose the reins and try for what would be a sweet upset.

The other games should be one sided, but upsets are not out of the question. San Rafael, which last Friday surprised Novato, could turn back Marin Catholic, if the Wildcats are suffering from one of their depressive moods. It was during just such a mood that the Kentfield team lost to Drake.

And Drake tonight meets Terra Linda, a team that has lost two games in a row to drop practically out of contention at 4-3.

SCHLEE IN FRONT

Near-Perfect Golf In Hawaii

HONOLULU (UPI) — John Schlee was happy about what he didn't do in the first round of the $200,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

And what golfer wouldn't be? Schlee didn't have a single bogey, he didn't three-putt and he didn't miss a green.

Schlee's steady and cool play earned him a six-under-par 66 and a one-stroke lead in the race for $40,000 first prize money.

On his heels at 67 going into today's second round on the level, seaside Waialae Country Club course were Arnold Palmer and Cesar Sanudo.

Schlee's scorecard showed six birdies. It didn't show that he missed four other birdie opportunities from inside 15 feet.

"No complaints about my round," the 6-foot-2 belter from Coral Springs, Fla., said. "Except for number five—that one I regretted."

Five, a 461-yarder sliced by a couple of dangerously located ditches, left Schlee open-mouthed when his 18-inch birdie putt failed to drop. Other golfers came in mumbling about No. 5 after taking double and triple bogeys there.

Schlee's earnings so far this year are $6,675 and his best finish in a half-decade on the pro tour was a 1966 second place check in the St. Paul Open.

Palmer, as popular here as he is everywhere else, led three-fourths of the day's gallery of thousands around the 7,122-yard course and gave his fans something to yell about with his putting.

He knocked in a 35 footer and a couple of 15 footers for birdies and had two shots at eagles but didn't quite make them. Afterwards, he said his putting was more consistent than it had been this year.

Sanudo, a little known pro from San Diego, Calif., said as far as he was concerned his 67 was his "greatest round." That's because, he explained, "I never look behind ... today's round is what counts."

Lee Trevino, the 1968 Hawaiian Open champ, was in a group at 68. Defending champion Bruce Crampton shot 69 and last year's runnerup, Jack Nicklaus, and two-time runnerup Billy Casper were in a big crowd at 70.

Laver Rides Again

NEW YORK (UPI)—Australia's Rod Laver, enjoying one of sport's more profitable winning streaks, may soon be able to paper one of the walls in his California home with $10,000 checks.

Laver already has won $80,000 since Jan. 2 by capturing the first eight matches in the $210,000 Tennis Champions Classic, and he can pick up another $10,000 check by beating Tom Okker of the Netherlands Saturday afternoon in Madison Square Garden.

In a previous meeting between the two, Okker gave Laver his biggest scare of the Classic by winning the first two sets in sudden death before Laver captured the next three.

"I'm in much better condition now than I was for the Detroit match (Jan. 23)," Okker said today. "I came in cold for that one while Laver had been playing regularly in the Classic. I just physically got tired at the end and I couldn't keep up. It was my first match in almost two months.

"There's another thing in my favor. People don't expect me to win so the pressure is off. I've been playing well lately and I just might be able to upset him."

Okker, who was runnerup to Arthur Ashe in the first U.S. Open a few years ago, earned another shot at Laver by beating Wimbledon champion John Newcombe in four sets in the losers' bracket.

In the losers' bracket Saturday, Roy Emerson will meet Roger Taylor for another chance at a $10,000 purse.

The Laver-Okker winner will meet Dennis Ralston in New York Feb. 17 in another $10,000 winner-take-all match, with the Emerson-Taylor survivor going against that winner in the last of the $10,000 contests on Feb. 19 in New Haven, Conn.

The four men with the best overall records in Classic play enter the semi-finals on Feb. 22 in New York. Each winner will receive $15,000 with a $30,000 final scheduled for March 18, also in New York.

Terra Linda Wrestlers Win Crown

Reggie, Jeff and Rich Grant all won to set the pace last night as the Terra Linda High School wrestling team finished its perfect Marin County Athletic League championship season with a perfect victory. The Trojans shutout San Marin High of Novato, 53-0.

Two of the Grant brothers, Jeff at 127 pounds and Rich at 154, won their matches by falls, while Reggie, at 120, won by decision. Altogether, Terra Linda wrestlers won 13 matches.

The Trojans thus completed their MCAL season with a 5-0 record, a half game ahead of San Rafael High, which came from behind yesterday to defeat Novato, 31-19 in the last dual Marin County Athletic League meet of the season for both teams.

Varsity winners (All Terra Linda):

Golf Tourney Draws Baseball, Grid Stars

LITIHFIELD PARK, Ariz. (UPI)—Two stars of Baltimore's world champions in baseball and football, Brooks Robinson and John Unitas, headed an array of top names in professional sports teeing off today in the American Airlines Astrojet Golf Classic.

The Orioles' third baseman and Colts' quarterback were one of 33 teams, each comprised of one baseball and one football star, competing for the $10,000 first prize.

Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs and George Andrie of the Dallas Cowboys returned to defend their 1970 title, won over the same two course at the Goodyear Golf and Country Club course. The field also included Paul Krause of the Minnesota Vikings and Bill Mazeroski of tha Pittsburgh Pirates, winners of the first two Astrojets, and 1969 victors Jerry Kramer, former Green Bay Great, and Willie Davis of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The entrants eclipsed 24 years of baseball history from Hall of Famers Joe Dimaggio and Jackie Robinson and retired Yankees Yogi Berra and Mickey Mantle to young catchers Johnny Bench of Cincinnati, the National League's most valuable player and Thurman Munson of the Yankees, the American League's top rookie.

In the grid contingent, National Football League Rookie of the year Dennis Shaw of Buffalo and veteran quarterback Joe Kapp of the Boston Patriots made their first Astrojet appearances. Lance Alworth of San Diego, Deacon Jones of Los Angeles and bill Nelson of Cleveland were among footballers making another try for the title.

The 54-hole, best-ball tourney, using full handicaps of both players, concludes Sunday.

In Thursday's pro-Am, Chicago White Sox pitcher Joel Horlen and St. Louis Cardinal placekicker Jim Bakken turned in the best scores. Horlen, a six-handicapper, carded a two-over par 74 on the gold course. Bakken, with a seven-handicap, had a three-over par 73 on the shorter blue course.

Seals Need Health, Not New Faces

OAKLAND (UPI)—It seems there's a trading flurry in the National Hockey League, but the California Seals don't need new faces—they need healthy bodies.

The Seals, who are still struggling in last place in the NHL West Division, try to break a three-game losing streak tonight when they entertain the Montreal Canadiens in the Coliseum Arena.

The four teams above the Seals in the standings have made recent trades, but Seals manager-coach Fred Glover says he's not looking for new people.

"We've got so many guys hurt that we have no flexibility," Glover said. "We'll make a trade to help our hockey club, but not just to change faces."

The Seals lost Wednesday night in Pittsburgh when rookie Rod Zainek scored twice to lead the Penguins to a 6-1 victory.

Raiders Lose 2nd Assistant

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders coaching staff is shrinking, but for widely opposing reasons.

On Thursday, the American Football Conference division champions lost their second assistant in two days when Dick Wood, who worked with the receivers, resigned to take a post at the University of Mississippi.

His departure was on a friendly note. "There's no bad feeling in my leaving," said Wood, a native of Alabama. "I'm taking the Mississippi job because it's closer to home."

A day earlier, Richie McCabe, defensive backfield coach, left in a huff. For his parting shot, McCabe said he was kept under wraps as a coach and added he was "disgusted" with the Raiders' lack of defensive flexibility.

Wood, who played his collegiate ball at Auburn and coached at Georgia before joining the Oakland staff, will work under newly appointed head coach Billy Kinard, who was also on the same Georgia staff.

"He (Kinard) told me I would be quarterback and receiver coach," Wood said of a conversation with kinard several days ago.

Wood, who joined the Raiders under John Madden in 1969, was a quarterback in the American Football league for seven seasons during which time he saw action with six different clubs.

Women's Lib Movement Hits Preps

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Women's lib may have a new torch-bearer in 17-year-old Johnell Haas—golfer, cheerleader, all-round athlete and champion of women's rights.

Her problem at the moment is to get on the varsity golf team at Riley High School.

A rule of the Indiana High School Athletic Association, which govern's the state's high school sports program, prohibits girls from playing on school teams. "We're suing the state," said Mrs. Joseph Haas, Johnell's mother. "Johnell could make that team. The coach said so himself. But the rule is keeping her off the team."

Johnell's older brothers, Kevin, 22, and Tom, 19, have starred on Riley teams. Riley's golfers have an outstanding prep record and won state titles in 1962 and 1965 and runnerup honors in 1964.

"Johnell wants to make that team to pave the way for other girls," her mother said. "She feels it would be an honor to make the squad besides helping open things up for other girls. some of her friends are good tennis players and swimmers, but they can't try out for the teams, either."

"She started hitting the ball when she was eight," said brother Tom. "She liked it, and she saw Kevin and I play a lot, so the interest was always around our house."

"She's a pretty steady 80s shooter" said Tom.

Johnell won the state driving contest last year at Frankfort during the Indiana Junior Girls Golf Championships.

Lombardi Award Blanda's Latest

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—While picking up an array of awards for his football heroics, George Blanda, at age 43, is getting to see a good part of the country.

Blanda, whose passing and kicking helped the Oakland Raiders to the division title in the American Football Conference last season, Thursday was named winner of the Vince Lombardi Award for dedication to pro football.

Brodie Honored In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Everything must be up-to-date in Kansas City because they've accepted John Brodie, an outsider from the West Coast, as its National Football Conference offensive Player of the Year.

Brodie, quarterback of the San Francisco Forty Niners, was selected Thursday, along with Minnesota defensive stalwart Alan Page, by the 101 Committee of the Kansas City Chiefs' Boosters Club.

Both Brodie and Page will be honored Feb. 15 at the 101 Banquet, billed as Kansas City's annual salute to professional football.

A's Sign Four; 19 Now In Fold

OAKLAND (UPI)—The number of satisfied players on the Oakland Athletics' roster now totals 19.

The A's signed four more players Thursday, including relievers Jim Roland and Marcel Lachemann. Also agreeing to terms were rookies Jim Panther, a pitcher, and outfielder George Mendrick.

Last year, both Rcland and Lachemann compiled 3-3 won-loss records with 2.49 and 2.75 earned run averages, respectively.

The A's also announced that two non-roster players, pitcher Darrell Osteen and catcher Bill Fitzgerald, have been invited to train with the club at Mesa, Ariz.

FISH AND GAME

Time To Answer Some Letters

By AL GIDDINGS

In the correspondence department I received a nice note from Ann Williams of Kentfield saying that she enjoys the put-on and the kidding in this column, even though she's never caught a fish or shot a gun!

She should have been along a few days ago when I caught a 40-inch sturgeon, but Sam Knoles measured it and threw it over the side before I got a good look. We had a bet on, so Sam said it only measured 39 inches (the legal minimum size is 40 inches). Sam always says, "A penny saved is a penny earned!"

I also received a note from Terry Moyles of San Rafael asking if the county or the state had bought the six acre parcel along the tidewaters of Papermill Creek (the White House Pool area) at Point Reyes Station. I talked to Waldo Giacomini, the owner, about this. He says no reasonable offer has been made yet!

YOUNG MR. Moyles wonders what he and his friends can do to save this salmon and steelhead fishing spot for the future and the public. One good idea might be to join the Marin Rod and Gun Club, form a committee for a look-in at the project, and take it from there. Another approach might be letters to the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department, or possibly to the Board of Supervisors. Monies from the wildlife Conservation Board are also used for the acquisition of hunting and fishing lands.

Recently, I received a copy of the Sport Fishing Institute Bulletin from Washington D.C. The topic: a report on "Fish Kills Caused by Pollution," written in 1969 by the Federal Water Quality Administration. It is now available from the Supt. of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. In the report, an estimated 41 million fish in 45 states were killed by water pollution in 1969 — up 170 per cent over 1968.

THE LARGEST single pollution-caused fish kill in 1969 — 26.5 million fish — occurred in Lake Thonotosassa at Plant City, Fla. Effluent from industrial and municipal sewage treatment operations have been entering the lake untreated for some 15 years. Nutrients in this wastes reduced the oxygen in January 1969 to a level in which fish could not survive.

A breakdown of the fish kills reads: Warrior River, Ala., 751,000 fish by poisons; Gila River, Ariz., 327,518, by mining operations; Arroyo Colorado, Tex., 5,000,000 by poisons; Lewis and Clark Lake, 158,000 by manure fcainage; Lake Thonotosassa, Fla., 26,526,690, by sewage effluent; and there are others!

MY COMMENTS: Slowly, but surely, we in Marin County are making some progress in combating pollution generally by education and cooperation. Poisons, manure drainage, mining, and most of all, sewage effluent, have taken tolls of the fish in Marin County. The Water Quality Control Board of California is recognizing and attempting to control effluent releases, especially in our local bays. It may be that the effluents daily deposited around the Marin Rod and Gun Club Pier from the outfalls of the nearby towns and cities will someday be stopped completely. Most sewage disposal plants have effluent disposal systems into the bay. Other methods of disposal are difficult and expensive, but let's save what we have! In fact, let's improve our bay every chance that we have.

The Golden Gate Sportfishers Inc. are having their annual installation of officers, on Saturday at the Golden Gate Yacht Club, at the foot of Scott Street, Marina Yacht Harbor, San Francisco. No host cocktails at 6:30, dinner at 8 p.m. Hank Schramm is being installed as the 1971 President. With the salmon season opening in the San Francisco-Sausalito areas, on Feb. 13, you might want to renew acquaintences with your favorite party boat skipper. They will all be there.

IN THE FEB. 5 issue of Life Magazine, pages 36, 37, and 38, there are pictures of my son Andy, Pete Sutton and Debbie Celle cleaning up the oil from our troubled waters at the Bolinas Beach area. The pictures clearly show masses of oil soaked hay drifting with the tide near the Golden Gate Bridge. They also show the extremely difficult task that many, many young people took on. Oil covered birds, crabs, and the beaches themselves are also clearly visual in the pictures. Take a look!

Four More All-Stars Announced

One player for the East and three more for the West, including 1968 All-American Bruce Sloan from Kansas State, were announced yesterday for Monday night's first East-West College All-Star Basketball Classic at Terra Linda High School.

Gametime for the clash is 8 o'clock. Marin County Athletic preliminary games between the San Rafael and Terra Linda Class B teams (5 o'clock) and the schools' frosh teams (6:30) are scheduled.

In addition to Sloan, Coach Hal Fischer of the defending AAU champion Army cagers announced that Jim Fox, an all-Midwest Conference forward for Drake in 1969 and Ron Crenshaw, a starting guard for USC in 1969 and 1970, would join the West forces.

James Brown, a little All-American selection from Morris Brown College, was added to the East roster.

About 1300 tickets at $1.50 each went on sale early this week at three Marin locations: Taveggia-Brusati Sports Shop in San Rafael, Sportsland in Terra Linda's Northgate Shopping Center and Terra Linda High School.

U.S. Figure Skaters In Command

PETERBOROUGH, Ont.. (UPI) —United States athletes were solidly in command in three of four events as the North America figure skating championships opened here Thursday.

John Misha Petkevich, 21, a Harvard pre-medical student from Great Falls, Mont., rang up such a hefty margin in the compulsory school figures that he can't avoid winning the men's title in Friday's free skating finals.

Judy Schwomeyer of Detroit, Mich., and Jim Sladky of Rochester, N.Y., took a commanding margin after the mandatory stage of the ice dance.

In the pairs, Jojo Starbuck and Ken Shelley of Downey, Calif., took a giant step toward the continental title by winning first place votes from six of the seven judges who viewed the compulsory routines.

Kuenn To Coach Brewers' Hitters

MILWAUKEE (UPI) —The Milwaukee Brewers have added a one-time San Francisco Giant hero to its staff.

Frank Lane, director of baseball operations for the Brewers, announced Thursday that Harvey Kuenn, a 15-year major league veteran, will serve as a special hitting instructor.

During his career, Kuenn, who also saw action with Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia, compiled a .303 batting average and led the American League in 1959 with a .353 mark.

Three-Year Fight; Soccer Team Quits

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)— After three years of heavy financial losses, the Kansas City Spurs disbanded Thursday.

The Spurs withdrew from the North American Soccer League (NASL) after selling only 1,511 season tickets for 1971.

In announcing their disbandment, the Spurs said the decision "was based on the outlook of a six-figure loss in 1971 if the club continued to operate."

Tennis

SEWANEE, Tenn. (UPI)— Top-seeded Billie Jean King won an easy first round match Thursday night in the Virginia Slims tennis invitational.

Miss King defeated Ceci Martinez 6-3, 6-2.

Baseball

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Los Angeles Dodgers shortstop Maury Wills, functioning as a minor league manager for the first time in his career, has been voted the manager of the year in the Mexican Pacific League, the Dodgers reported today.

Wills, who has played in the major league for a dozen years, led the Hermosillo team to first place in the second part of a split season.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds, the National League's most valuable player in 1970, has been named to the athletic committee of the Youth Development Foundation, Inc.

Auto Racing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The pole position for Saturday's ARCA 300 stock car race was won by Ramo Stott in a 1971 Plymouth Thursday in time trials marred by an accident that injured driver Bill Kimmel of Clarksville.Ind.

Kimmel was listed in serious condition at a local hospital today after his 1971 Chevelle flipped in time trials at the Daytona International Speedway. He suffered a broke arm and serious head and spinal injuries.

Golf

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI)— Gene Torres and Rick Rhoads carried a one-stroke lead into today's second round of the $25,000 United Air Lines Ontario Open after they tied for first Thursday with four under par 67s.

General

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UPI)— The Northern California horse racing fraternity Thursday mourned the loss of two popular and prominent members—Clarence Hansen and George D. Murphy.

Both died Wednesday, Hansen suddenly and Murphy after a long illness. Hansen was 75 and Murphy was 81. Funeral arrangements for both are pending.

Hansen, a native of Salt Lake City, had been an owner, trainer, breeder and driver of harness horses while Murphy, a native of San Francisco, served as a racing official at all Northern California tracks until his retirement three years ago.

All-Lefty Finals In Bowling

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—The $75,000 Ebonite Open Bowling Tournament moves into its semifinal phase today and for the first time in the history of pro bowling competition, there won't be a right-hander among the 16 survivors of an original starting field of 128.

Leading the all-southpaw brigade into the match game segment —16 games divided into two sessions—is an unknown from nearby Belmont, Calif., named Dan Baudoin, who won a mini-tournament to qualify for one of the two open amateur spots in the field. Baudoin, 20, spilled 1450 pins Thursday night in the fourth and final six-game qualifying block to vault into first place, 18 pins in front of old pro Dave Davis, Miami, Fla., the defending champion here.

Davis turned in a 1361 in the fourth round, giving him a 24-game total of 5439, compared to Baudoin's 5457. Next in line came Larry Lichstein, Windsor Locks, Conn., 21, who was 1970's Rookie of the Year. Lichstein did the best shooting of the day, turning in blocks of 1414 and 1400 for an overall average of 234. Baudoin has averaged 226 since play began last Wednesday.

Rounding out the top five are Ed Dolfay, Everett, Wash., and Johnny Petraglia, Brooklyn, N.Y. Their respective fourth round efforts were 1293 and 1280, putting them 56 and 96 behind the leader.

In the semi-final phase, in which each man faces each other one time, the winner of the game has a 50 pin bonus tacked on to his actual score. The high five scorers after the tournament's first 40 games gain Saturday's nationally televised finals, in which $10,000 will be the winner's prize.

WCAC Still Scrambled; Traditionals In Pac-8

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The West Coast Athletic Conference race is still as scrambled as your breakfast egg, but Loyola and UOP would seem to be on the road to the top.

Loyola, which didn't look that good in the early going, refuses to fold.

The Lions are now 5-1 for the League and 10-7 for the season after disposing of St. Mary's 82-66 at Moraga Thursday in a strong show.

The third contender is Santa Clara, now 4-2 after taking Nevada Reno 93-76. Bruce Winkler had 17 for the Broncos, who have not looked as inpressive as the Lions and Tigers to date.

USF took a 3-1 record into the meat-grinder at Las Vegas and fell 76-64 to Nevada Las Vegas, a team which wins at home and flops on the road. The losers, now 3-3, got 28 points from Booker Washington.

Things might get a bit untangled, but probably won't, when Santa Clara heads for Nevada Las Vegas, Pepperdine plays at St. Mary's, USF is at Nevada Reno, and the Tigers and Lions stage a real jungle fight in the UOP gym.

Elsewhere, Thursday, one team trying to get national honors won a big one and one lost one.

The winner was Long Beach State, which hasn't quite lived up to its pre-season raves. But the 49ers still are 15-4 after looking sharp at Centenary, Louisiana, in a 74-56 romp. Big George Trapp had 28 for the winners.

But Hawaii ran into heartbreak at San Diego where the San Diego State Aztecs hit a school record 62 per cent of their shots to take the 107-95 win. That left the Rainbows at 16-3.

Tonight's major tussles find old rivals Stanford and California meeting at Berkeley while Oregon State calls on Oregon in another traditional struggle.

Saturday's action is highlighted by the great USC-UCLA clash for the championship of Los Angeles Oh, yeah. They'libe playing for the number one ranking in the nation, too.

Petrie Outshines Maravich

By U. P. NERNATIONAL

Pete Maravich got all the money and publicity but Geoff Petrie still may be the best rookie guard in the National Basketball Association.

The two rookies met in head-to-head competition Thursday nightq and Petrie was the clear winner as he helped the Portland Trail Blazers record a 137-123 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

Petrie, a Princeton graduate who's been hitting better than 22 points a game this season, tossed in 24 points and held Maravich, the all-tine college scoring champ from Louisiana State to just 13. Petrie hit 11-of-20 shots while Maravich, who signed for close to $2 million, connected on only 6-of-18.

Leroy Ellis had 27 points and 17 rebounds to lead the Blazers, who now had back-to-back victories over the Milwaukee Bucks and the Hawks. Gary Gregory had 25 for Portland, which scored 14 consecutive points early in the fourth quarter to put the game away.

Walt Bellamy led Atlanta with 32 points and 19 rebounds.

Rec Basketball

Cal's Steakhouse defeated the Kennel Extraordinaire, 60-51, Harding Gophers downed Pinky's Pizza, 39-30, Dornbach Painting beat Don Rumpf's Golf Shop, 61-59 and the Centaurs knocked off Southern Marin Towing, 47-42 in San Rafael Recreation Department adult basketball league games last night.

Dietz Expecting A Big Pay Hike

Dick Dietz never represented himself as a defensive genius but not since Walker Cooper hit .305 in 1947 has a regular Giant catcher hit like Dietz who wound up with .300 last year.

It was Dietz' bat, not his glove, that got him the No. 1 catching job of the Giants last season. Prior to 1970, Dietz never was sure of his precise status with the Giants.

He thought in 1966-67 that he would be the logical successor of Tom Haller. Hadn't he hit .347 at Phoenix before calling up near the close of the '66 season? When Haller was traded to the Dodgers for Ron Junt just before the 1968 season started, Dietz believed the catching job was his.

BUT IN 1968 Dietz caught less than 100 games. The remaining games on the 162-game schedule were divided between Jack Hiatt and Bob Barton. Had it not been for an ankle injury in July '68 and a bruised right hand in August that kept him out almost a month, Dietz undoubtedly would have caught more than the 98 games he did in 1968 when he hit .272.

In 1969 Dietz caught only 79 games and he was so depressed that he hit only .230, his lowest season average since the Giants signed him to a big bonus in 1960. Once again, the catching job was shared by Dietz, Hiatt and Barton.

In 1970 Dietz finally got the job. Barton was traded to the Padres in the winter of '69 with a couple of other players for Frank Reberger. And just as the Giants were winding up their 1970 spring training, Hiatt was traded to the Red Sox for Russ Gibson.

EVEN BEFORE Hiatt was traded, Dietz knew the job was his because Horace Stoneham got fed up with the way Dietz was being platooned. The president of the ball club called Dietz aside in spring training last year and told him "You are my catcher."

With that knowledge, Dietz relaxed and enjoyed a great spring. His first Cactus League hit last spring was a grand slam home run. Through the first 10 games of the regular major league season he hit .436, including four homers. He also had four passed balls in those opening games.

"I believe any team that expects to go any place must have a regular catcher with a respectable bat," said Dietz. "I can hit .300 and I can catch 130 games."

DIETZ' EVEN .300 last year fulfilled his confidence in his bat that produced 36 doubles, two triples, 22 homers, including a grand slam, and 107 RBIs.

By catching 148 games, Dietz proved he was even more durable than he thought.

Naturally, Dietz doesn't look with any pride at his passed ball record but it's something he's lived with since he was a raw rookie in 1960. His 25 passed balls last season isn't a record for him.

IN 1960 he led the Sophomore League at Artesia with 46 passed balls. In 1961 he led the same league with 45. In 1962 he tied the Northwest League record for most passed balls in a season (37) and on two occasions tied the league record for most passed balls in a game (4).

But when it comes to negotiating his 1971 baseball contract, Dietz understandably will be accentuating the positive in his record, not the negative. And he is going to be quite emphatic about his bat contributions to the Giants. He wants a whopping salary increase to $50,000, double his $25,000 pay in 1970.

Ryun Probable For Athens Meet

OAKLAND (UPI) — Oregon star SKTEVE Prefontaine is set and Jim Ryun, attempting a comeback, is a probable, according to officials of the Athens Invitational Track and Field Meet.

Prefontaine, the NCAA two-mile champion and America's top hope in the distance events in the 1972 Olympics, filed Thursday for the Feb. 13 meet at the Oakland Arena.

His chief opposition will come from Chuck Labenz and Russia's Rashid Sharafetdinov.

Meet director Dave Maggard said there is a "good chance" that Ryun, who made his comeback debut at the All-America Games in San Francisco two weeks ago, may participate in the mile event.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Patience Needed On Apache Issue

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q - I hold 1900 shares of Apache Corp., bought over the past eight years at an average cost of $24. I am discouraged about this issue. Should I wait it out? Other holdings include blue chip stocks, mutual funds and Federal Agency bonds. — W.W.

A - Apache's sluggish market action may be largely attributed to the firm's uninspiring 1970 earnings performance and the company's conglomerate image. Revenues for the first nine months of 1970 were reported at $66.8 million compared with $50.6 million in the like 1969 period. Net income amounted to $2.85 million, or $1.00 per share — down 15 per cent year-to-year.

Profit margins of many of Apache's divisions were adversely affected by lagging demand, while the GM strike reduced profitability in the metals division. Apache has become well diversified in recent years with interests in oil/gas exploration and development programs, industrial services and a materials supply operation (major segment).

Prospects are basically favorable for the industrial group; and oil and gas revenues should rise, reflecting recent drilling successes. Although near-term economic problems cloud Apache's outlook, long-term holdings should work out.

Q - We hold American Investors and Stein, Roe & Farnham Stock mutual funds for the education of our 11 and 13-year old sons. My husband wants to add to these; I am opposed and would rather put it in the bank at 5¼ per cent interest. What is your opinion? — E. S.

A - Although it may not alter your opinion, savings interest rates may also be modified as a result of the drop in the prime rate charged on bank loans. American Investors, the more speculative of your investments, had on Sept. 30, 1970, a good concentration of quality issues in its portfolio.

Stein, Roe at that time had about 10 per cent of its assets invested in building supply stocks where recovery potential is above-average. A compromise solution, whereby one-third of your savings dollar was earmarked for each fund and one-third for your savings account, would be sensible.

ANTI-CORROSIVE BREAKTHROUGH

After seven years of research, Krupp Steel Co. scientists in West Germany have succeeded in putting an anti-corrosive surface of titanium metal on the insides of steel vats used to "cook" the chemicals that go into synthetic fibers. The scientists used explosives to "blast" the costly first time. The picture shows the bottom of one of the vats which hold thousands of gallons of petroleum products used in making synthetic fibers.

Oil Gas Industry Looking For $1.4 Billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American oil gas industry wants back the $700 million it says it lost by a change in the depletion allowance, plus another $700 million for good measure, a high-ranking industry spokesman said.

Robert E. Mead, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, said at the conclusion of IPAA's executive committee meeting the domestic industry is in a bad way and needs help — either higher prices or a better tax break.

The last Congress reduced the depletion allowance, a tax charge-off that lowers oil companies' tax bill on grounds oil is a depletable resource. Mead estimated, "The cut in depletion took $700 million a year out of our industry."

He contended, "To get the job done in developing energy supplies in this country, I think we would have to have double what we lost in depletion."

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

Interest Payments Are Taxable, Except For Specific Exemptions

Unless specificially exempt under the tax rules, all interest you receive is taxable income.

Interest from the following sources is not taxed: Obligations of a state or a political subdivision of a state (i.e., a county, etc.). Obligations of the District of Columbia.

Other interest is fully taxable, including interest on your savings account, deposits in a credit union, interest on money you loaned, and interest on U.S. Savings Bonds.

Before February 28, 1971, the payor of interest may send you a Form 1099 Information Return, showing the interest credited to you in 1970.

Such interest must be reported even if you don't draw the money out of the account.

Do not send Form 1099 in with your tax returns. Keep it along with your copy of the tax return.

If you don't receive a Form 1099 from the payor, you must still report the interest you earned, no matter how small.

If you buy U.S. Bonds Series E, F or J, you have a choice of how to report the interest.

You can report the interest earned (increase in value) each year or you can wait till you cash the bond and report the total in the year cashed.

If you now hold bonds on which you have reported no interest and you would like to start reporting the interest each year, you can do so by reporting this year all the increase in value so far. Then in future years you would report the yearly increase in value. Once you start doing this you must continue to do this for all E, F or J bonds you own unless you get special permission from the IRS to change back.

U.S. Bonds are a good way to have interest income without paying tax on it now.

Later, after you retire, you can cash them in and pay the tax at a lower rate, or maybe even no tax, depending on your lower income, increased exemptions, the retirement income credit, etc.

Interest income is entered on line 14 of form 1040 and if it is over $100 then you must also list this income in detail on Schedule B, part II, and here you must divide it between Savings and Loan Associations and Credit Unions and other interest such as bank deposits, bonds, tax refunds, etc.

If there is not sufficient room for reporting your interest income on Schedule B, then you should make a detailed listing on a separate piece of paper and attach this listing to Schedule B. The totals, however, should be entered on the proper lines on Schedule B and the total interest income should be brought forward to line 14 of form 1040.

Mixed Day For Prices On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) —Prices were mixed in heavy turnover on the New York Stock Exchange Friday.

After almost two hours, advances were leading declines by more than 150 issues. But the Dow Jones Industrial Average, the blue chip barometer, was off.

Prices were steady in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Gainers topped losers, 386 to 315.

Union American Mortgage Warrants, the most active Amex issue, was up fractionally on a volume of more than 136,000 shares.

On the big board, heavily traded issues included Occidental Petroleum up 1, Lockheed off 1-8, International Telephone 1-4 higher, Skyline up 1 3-4, and Denny's Restaurants up 3-4.

Less active Walt Disney climbed 4, while McDonnell Douglas added 2 1-4. Up a point or so were Merck & Co. and IBM.

Steels generally tacked on fractions, while motors, chemicals and rails traded in narrowly mixed fashion.

KLM dropped 2 in the otherwise fractionally lower airlines.

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS

Hexcel Acquires Permalastic, Ltd.

Hexcel, the Dublin, Calif.-based manufacturer of adhesives and resin products, has acquired the assets of Permalastic Products of Canada, Ltd., Toronto-based manufacturer, also producing industrial adhesives, for cash.

The transaction gives Hexcel a base in Canada for marketing its products to the telecommunications, tooling, construction and furniture industries there.

A wholly-owned subsidiary, Hexcel of Canada, Ltd., has been established, and Permalastic will be a division.

NUCLEAR ENGINEERING CO., INC., Walnut Creek directors have approved in principle its acquisition by United Nuclear Corp. in exchange for common stock. The exchange is subject to a definitive agreement, approval of directors of both companies, Nuclear Engineering shareholders and compliance with legal requirements.

CUTTER LABORATORIES, INC., Berkeley sales of $70.3 million for 1970 were the highest in the company's history, increasing 18 per cent from $59.4 in 1969. Earnings amounted to $2,640,000 or $1.28 per share, compared with $2,314,000 or $1.12 per share earned in 1969.

CITIZENS FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION'S proposal for conversion from a mutual to a capital stock structure has been approved by a vote of its members. Before the plan can be put into effect it must be approved by the Federal Home Loan Bank. Conversion and stock distribution will not affect savings deposits, deposit insurance or the loans of members.

DUN AND BRADSTREET, INC. marketing services division has begun a national survey to determine what steps are under way to control industrial pollution. Interviewers will gather primary research data from 2,000 plants throughout the United States on a random sample basis. Completion of the project will result in a detailed report next May.

AMERICAN EXPRESS has reported record high consolidated net earnings of $25.2 million for 1970 — 14.4 per cent above the $74.4 million earned in 1969. Earnings per common share were $3.58, compared to $3.13 for the previous year.

KAISER STEEL CORP. had consolidated net earnings of $19.7 million in 1970. In 1969 the company earned $25.7 million. Earnings per share amounted to $2.66 in 1970, compared with $3.58 in 1969. Sales of $393.2 million in 1970 compared with $420.8 million in 1969.

SEARS, ROEBUCK AND CO. sales for the four weeks ended Jan. 30 were 5.1 per cent higher than last year. Gross sales totaled $643 million, compared to $612 million in 1970. Sears volume for the 52 weeks ended Jan. 30 totaled more than $10 billion — the first time in the company's history it passed this mark. It represented an increase of 4.6 per cent over gross sales in the corresponding period of last year.

SYSTRON-DONNER CORP., Concord has announced the election of Dr. Philip G. Leigh as president of its subsidiary John E. Lindberg, Inc., manufacturer of pressure switches, thermal switches and aircraft fire detection devices. He has been general manager of Lindberg.

UNION PACIFIC CO. reported slightly eased earnings in 1970, with net per share off 3.8 per cent. Net income for the year was $75.1 million, or $3.56 per share, compared with $78.2 million, or $3.70 per share for 1969. Gross revenues and sales amounted to $923,9 million — an increase of $243.6 million over 1969.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC net earnings for 1970 were $76.8 million or $2.86 per share, compared with $91.6 million or $3.41 per share for 1969. Fourth quarter net income was $16.9 million — down from $20.5 million a year ago.

AT&T Reports Dip In 1970 Earnings

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. has announced slightly lower earnings for 1970.

The company reported net income for the year was $2.189 billion or $3.99 cents a share, down from the $2.199 billion net or $4.00 a share earned in 1969. The company said total revenue of $17 billion in 1970 represented an 8.1 per cent increase over the 1969 figure of $15.7 billion.

Savings Bond Sales Exceed Redemptions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Savings bond sales exceeded redemptions by $9 million in January, the fourth straight month in which savers added to their bond holdings, the Treasury reported.

Cash sales of Series E and H. bonds totaled $430 million during the month while redemptions totaled $421 million. A year earlier, redemptions exceeded sales by $140 million. Savings bonds totaling $52.6 billion were outstanding at the end of January.

More Knitting

WEST POINT, Ga. (UPI) — West Point-Pepperell, Inc. announced plans to expand its Alamac Knitting Divisions facilities in North Carolina at a cost of about $8 million. The expansion is intended to double the division's sales of knitted fabrics in the next four years.

Boise Cascade Has 52% Earnings Drop

BOISE, Idaho (BW) — Boise Cascade Corp.'s 1970 earnings from operations are estimated to be approximately $1.16 per share, compared with $2.40 per share on a restated basis for 1969, a decrease of 52 per cent, it was announced.

In addition, the company expects earnings of 4 cents per share in 1970 from gains in its marketable securities portfolio, compared with 26 cents in 1969.

United Announces More Furloughs

CHICAGO (UPI) — United Air Lines announced it will furlough 100 stewardesses as of March 2. The airline also said it will put another 134 pilots on furlough in the January to July period in addition to the 260 announced earlier.

United said recently announced schedule reductions have made the furloughs necessary. The airline said it may recall the stewardesses about mid-May.

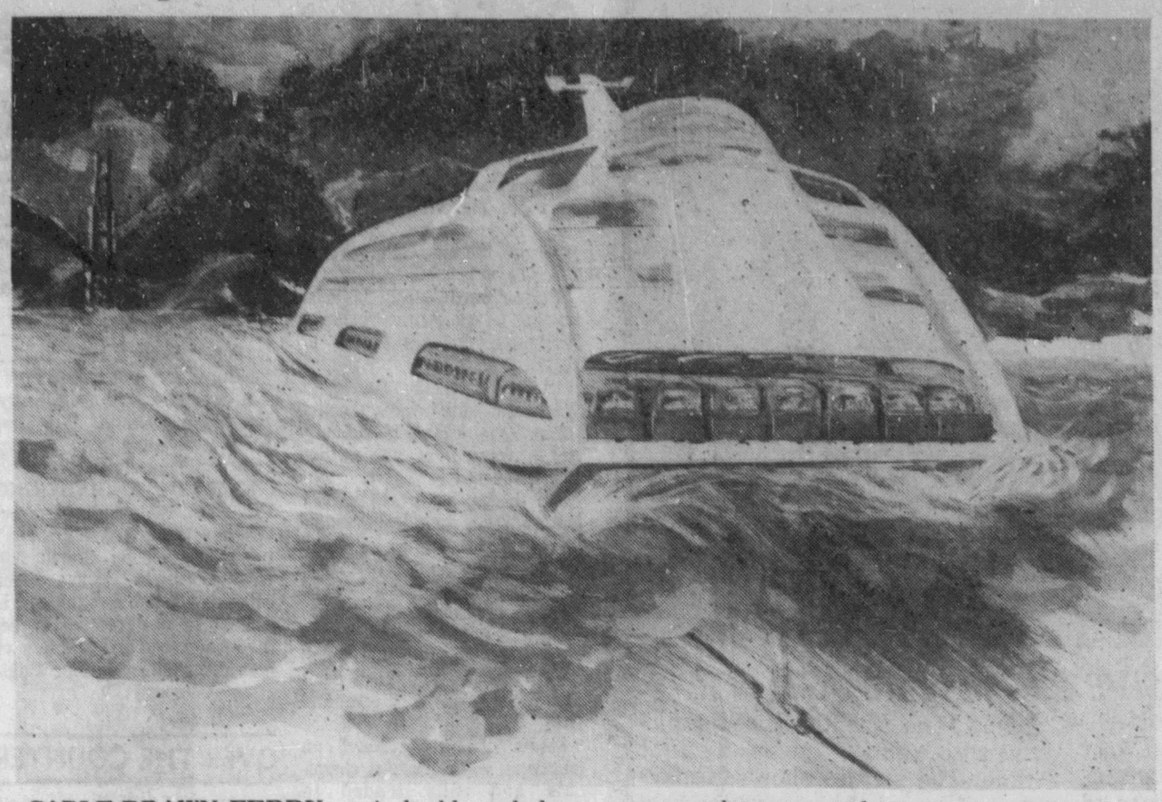
Cable-Ferryboats In Marin's Future?

A cable-drawn ferry system can lick the Marin to San Francisco rapid transit problem at a fraction of the cost of any one of five transit systems devised by Kaiser Engineers for the Golden Gate Bridge District.

That is the contention of Capt. George G. Roberts of Woodside, who says that after three years and $200,000 worth of studies and tests, he and his partners are convinced that the cable ferry would be safe, economical and effective.

On Dec. 1, Marin County Board of Supervisors took a quick look at the cable ferry proposal and asked the Golden Gate Bridge District to consider its possibilities. Last Thursday, the Streets and Transportation Committee of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors took a similar position and referred Roberts' brainchild to the bridge district. The district's transportation committee will consider a staff report criticising the proposal at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Of the five transit plans developed by Kaiser Engineers, the least expensive is a $495 million bus rapid transit plan that would bring buses on exclusive, fixed lanes over the Golden Gate Bridge into Marin County. Roberts declared his cable ferry system could handle the same capacity as the Kaiser bus plan at a cost of about $35 million.



CABLE-DRAWN FERRY — A double-ended ferry, designed to ply the commute lanes between Fisherman's Wharf and Tiburon in 20 minutes, is the brainchild of Capt. George G. Roberts of Woodside. The fiberglass catamaran, large enought to carry 3,000 passengers, would be pulled by an underwater cable powered by a shore-based engine. The Golden Gate Bridge District staff has been asked to examine the system to see if it has merit.

Engineer Steven Millerheim, one of Roberts' partners, envisages two large ferryboats designed as catamarans (two hulls), each carrying 3,000 passengers or 30 to 40 buses. They would shuttle between Tiburon and San Francisco, attached to underwater cables powered by shore based engines.

The cables, one attached to each ferry, will be 50 feet below the surface and present no hazard to navigation, said Roberts. (The bridge district staff report, however, said that the system would need an 80-foot deep channel costing $10 million to $14 million to dredge — costs not in Robert's estimates.

The ferry, about 350 feet long and 100 feet wide, would slide up to floating platforms at each end where buses, trucks or passengers could get on and off in two or three minutes, explained Roberts.

"The beauty of the catamaran ferry is that the two hulls on each end would prevent it from listing even if one side or the other were overloaded with buses." said Roberts. "They could pour into or off the ferry in two minutes."

"The optimum bus system would be integrated with the cable-drawn ferry to provide an alternate Highway 101. It would be the water link of the Bay Area's rapid transit systems. It could take trains, BART cars, buses and foot passengers."

Roberts said a commuter using both the bus system and the integrated cable-ferry could commute from Novato for about 80 cents for a one-way fare to San Francisco, 70 cents from San Rafael and 60 cents from Mill Valley.

He listed these advantages over a conventional ferry:

Even in fog, there would be little chance of collision because the ferries would be on fixed cables. Since power would be shore-based, the ferries would be free of water, air and noise pollution.

Whereas the alternate proposals under consideration by the Golden Gate Bridge District would all operate at deficit, Roberts said his cable-ferry system, integrated with the bus system, could operate at an annual profit of $1.5 million.

Roberts said he is now trying to get San Francisco or the Golden Gate Bridge District to apply to the U.S. Department of Transportation for a grant to finance a prototype cable-ferry to run between Tiburon and Angel Island or Fisherman's Wharf and Alcatraz. This would cost about $1.5 million, with about 75 per cent in federal grants and the rest from private enterprise, said Roberts.

Captain Roberts is former ferry boat operator who set up the British Columbia Ferries north of Vancouver. His family, he reports, has been in the ferryboat business for nearly 100 years.

Athlete Elected School's Queen

HILO, Hawaii (UPI)—The newly-elected homecoming queen at Hilo High School is a shot-putter on the track squad and an end for the football team.

Norman Wessel, a 17-year-old senior, entered the competition as a joke with the backing of some of his friends.

But the tall athlete's campaign caught fire and he swept by five female contenders for the title.

Wessel said students are tired of the same old thing every year.

Judge Named

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican Attorney Thomas J. Dandurand, 37, San Francisco, was named by Gov. Ronald Reagan Thursday to fill a newly created San Francisco Municipal Court Judgeship. The post pays $30,724 a year.

Page Girls May Dress Like Boys

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of the U.S. Senate have not quite decided whether they should allow page girls in their chamber; but if they do, they've decided how they want them to dress:

Like page boys.

The Senate Rules Committee agonized for 90 minutes Thursday over whether to approve the nominations of page girls which have been submitted by three senators. They postponed a decision and set up a subcommittee to study the matter.

Weather Grounds Aircraft

SAIGON (UPI)—Bad weather closed in on the big U.S.-South Vietnamese operation in northwestern South Vietnam today, grounding fixed wing aircraft at the Khe Sanh airport. Some U.S. helicopters flying through fog and low clouds apparently strayed into Laos.

In Vietiane, a Laotian military spokesman denied any South Vietnamese troops had entered Laos, but he reported a Communist offensive had rolled south from the Plain of Jars and is menacing Long Cheng, nerve center for U.S. Central Intelligence Agency operations in Laos.

UPI Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer Toshio Sakai reported from Khe Sanh that he saw U.S. and South Vietnamese CH47 Chinook and UH1 Huey helicopters flying westward toward Laos from the airstrips at Khe Sanh, which is about five miles from the border of Laos.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said a U.S. Air Force Wild Weasel jet fired two Shrike missiles Thursday at a missile site in North Vietnam—the eighth strike this year against North Vietnam, but he, too, had no word on the expected South Vietnam incursion into Laos.

South Vietnamese troops reported their biggest victory of the year in their drive into Cambodia — 69 Communists killed in a battle 18 miles east of Kompong Cham and 15 miles inside the Fishhook Sector of Cambodia.

A force of 20,000 South Vietnamese, backed by 9,000 U.S. combat troops, remained poised on the Laotian border in the northwestern corner of South Vietnam while U.S. planes and B52 heavy bombers worked over the Ho Chi Minh Trail in the nonstop raids that have gone on for four months. The South Vietnamese presumably would send patrols into Laos as protective measures, but there was no word even on this.

In Vientiane, Cambodian government sources said the Communist Laotian commander for southern Laos has been killed, possibly by North Vietnamese.

The sources said Communist defectors had two stories of the reported death of Pathet Lao Gen. Phomma Duangmala.

One version said the general was wounded in a battle with government forces and died later in a hospital when North Vietnamese doctors refused to treat him.

The other version was that North Vietnamese officers killed the popular general when he refused to obey an order raising taxes on the local population by 50 per cent. The North Vietnamese raised the taxes after killing Phomma, the defector said.

Meanwhile, former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy has charged recent allied troop buildups along the border of South Vietnam indicate the Nixon administration seeks a military victory which it hopes to turn into a political victory in 1972.

McCarthy, an antiwar candidate for President in 1968, made the charge Thursday as opponents of the administration's Indochina policy continued to assail a six-day blackout of news of a 29,000-man allied operation on the border of Laos.

"It is apparent that the administration is leaning toward a military victory out of which a political victory would develop," McCarthy told students at the University of Pennsylvania.

PRECARIOUS PERCH — Hank, a 16-year-old cat, had long occupied this stool at Harry's Mart in Fairfax until his presence in the store was threatened recently by a county health inspector. More than 400 customers have rallied round him, signing a petition asking the officials to disregard rules about cats in food stores.

DEFIES EVICTION

Hank Won't Move From His Throne

A big black and white cat named Hank who has spent most of his 16 years curled up on a stool in a Fairfax neighborhood market won't lose his comfortable post if more than 400 customers have their way.

As long as anyone can remember, Hank has reigned unthreatened at Harry's Mart, the kind of store where anything from meat to plumbing supplies to fishing equipment can be purchased.

The peace ended a few months ago, according to Ethel Fong, who runs the store along with her husband, Harry.

"All the other health inspectors — they never paid any attention to Hank," Mrs. Fong said. "Then a new one came — and he said the cat had to go," she added.

The Fongs complied with the ruling of James J. Jurik and found the cat what is commonly known as a "good home."

Hank had other ideas, however, and promptly returned to the market. He and Jurik had another run-in, and the Fongs were threatened with court action if they didn't keep Hank outside, Mrs. Fong said.

Longtime customers at the mart, saddened by seeing Hank out in the cold, started a petition to beg county officials to allow the cat back into the store.

Led by Mrs. Jean Mahoney, more than 400 people today had signed the petition asking the county to overlook regulations against cats in food stores. "After all, he doesn't have much longer to live," Mrs. Fong concluded. The neighbors agree with her Hank should be allowed to spend his declining years in his favorite spot.

As for Jurik, he was not available today to comment on Hank's plight.

Bales Thinks Pot Move Is Unnecessary

New efforts to ease California's marijuana possession and sale penalties were called unnecessary today by Marin County Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales.

He pointed out that he and the California District Attorneys Association last year successfully supported law changes that gave judges and prosecutors relatively wide latitude in handling "self-user" marijuana offenses.

But he told the Independent-Journal that young pot smokers should be "more aware" that fines or light jail sentences they may receive on first convictions still will be followed by mandatory prison terms for a second conviction.

Bale's comments were in reference to a United Press International report that the district attorneys association had been asked to help persuade the state Legislature to ease penalties for marijuana possession.

Sheldon Portman of Santa Clara County, head of the California Public Defenders Association, made the request in a letter to the district attorneys group. Portman argued that pot possession penalties are unjustifiably heavy "on the basis of

Shepard Picks Bullseye Site

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Alan B. Shepard and Edgar D. Mitchell outsmarted a balky computer for a bullseye landing today and then bounded across the dusty moon, unfurling Old Glory on the first color telecast back to Earth.

"It's been a long way, but we're here," said Shepard, America's first man in space a decade ago, as he stepped off a ladder from the Apollo 14 landing craft and became the fifth man on the moon.

Mitchell jumped to the rough, crater-pocked surface of Fra Mauro Valley five minutes later. "It's great to be coming down," he said.

Ground controllers radioed to the moonwalkers the congratulations of President Nixon. Like millions of people all over the world, he said, he is an astronaut watcher today.

"I wish the entire Apollo team well . . . Godspeed," Nixon said, and invited the astronauts and their families to the White House for dinner upon their return and to Camp David for a weekend.

Shepard, the old pro of U.S. astronauts —grounded for six years by ear trouble—walked with a slow, cautious gait at first.

But soon Shepard and Mitchell were hopping over the surface "like kangaroos" on man's first excursion into the hilly uplands that scientists believe may hold the key to the secrets of the moon's creation.

They were deploying a $25 million, atomic-powered scientific observatory on the gentle slope near the Antares after planting the Stars and Stripes. They had to move the flag several times so it would show better on the vivid color telecast.

Shepard, 47, and Mitchell, 40, the third team of American astronauts to reach the moon, bounded around taking each other's pictures during the flag-raising ceremony.

The third member of the Apollo 14 crew, Stuart A. Roosa, 37, orbited the moon alone in the command ship Kitty Hawk during the moonwalk. He maneuvered his ship to a position where he could see the Fra Mauro area and the shadow cast by the lunar lander.

The successful landing erased the stigma of Apollo 13, which had been headed for the same site when an oxygen-tank explosion in space forced the astronauts to return home last April.

Shepard flew Antares to a near-perfect landing between two rugged ridges, setting down in a cloud of dust only 130 feet from the target —the most precise landing yet of the Apollo missions.

The accurate landing —payoff of the trouble-plagued $400 million mission —was made with a makeshift computer control procedure radioed to the astronauts at the last moment. Shepard and Mitchell discovered a faulty abort switch two hours before landing.

They took manual control of Antares shortly after the firing of its big descent engine to avoid an "electronic spook" in the computer abort switch.

Without the emergency technique the computer would have shot the moon lander back into a safe orbit instead of dropping it down to the lunar surface.

Shepard, oldest American astronaut, cooly touched down at "the flattest point around" after hovering at 170 feet for several long moments looking for the best site.

"We're on the surface," exclaimed Mitchell, a rookie spaceman.

"We made a good landing," said Shepard.

Israelis Study Cairo Truce Pact

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

With the Suez Canal guns stilled for another 30 days, Israeli Premier Golda Meir met with her inner cabinet today in Tel Aviv to consider what she called the "too short" Egyptian extension of the truce and an Egyptian offer to reopen the canal if Israel pulls back.

The well-informed newspaper Maariv said the chances of Israel beginning a withdrawal from the canal as proposed by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat were "zero." But Mrs. Meir called in her inner cabinet to discuss political implications of the canal proposal.

With her were Defense Minister Moshe Dayan—who once proposed a 19-mile pullback by both sides—deputy Prime Minister Yigal Allon and Foreign Minister Abba Eban. Political sources said they were anxious to dispel any positive impression Sadat may have made in Europe, which faces an oil crisis and would like the canal open.

In the background of the Israeli political moves was a warning from Lt. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev, the Israeli chief of staff, that any Egyptian amphibious attack across the Suez Canal was doomed to failure and a suggestion that Israel might be compelled to cross the canal if hostilities resume.

Bar-Lev's comments came in an interview with the newspaper Lamerchav in Tel Aviv. He warned the Egyptians that Israel "is too tough a nut to crack" and that eventually they will have no alternative but to reach a political settlement.

He said if the Egyptians resume the fighting when the new truce expires March 7

CHRONIC COMPLAINER
An unhappy person who gets all his exercise out of kicking.

SHEPARD'S WIFE:

'He's Found His Promised Land'

HOUSTON (UPI)—The moon hung over Harris County, Tex. like a lopsided cantaloupe. Inside the brightly-lighted River Oaks mansion of astronaut Alan B. Shepard, a girl screamed "Whoopee."

"Good...good, they're down safe," exulted Mrs. Louise Shepard, the blonde wife of the nation's first man in space.

"They can't call him 'Ole Mose' anymore," she said. "He's found his promised land."

When Shepard stepped on the moon, his wife leaped to her feet in the VIP viewing room at Mission Control and applauded. She was so happy she was laughing and clapping.

Minutes before the landing, Sehpard's voice had crackled through 238,000 miles of radio beams:

"It's a beautiful day in the land of Fra Mauro."

Louis Mitchell, wife of Shepard's moon companion, Edgar A. Mitchell, said she was surprised there wasn't more jubilation among the gathering of friends and family, including a couple of astronauts, who were watching at her home near the Manned Spacecraft Center.

"I'm very relieved and very happy everything went so well," said the chic brunette.

Kitty Hawk pilot Stuart A. Roosa's four children burst into excited cheers and clapped their hands. Then the telephone rang. It was Mrs. Shepard.

"Your husbands do good work," Joan Roosa told her. That is the ultimate compliment among military families.

Only a close circle of friends and family had watched the landing at Shepard's $150,000 home. Mrs. Shepard appeared calm, but a friend said, "I imagine she's a little uptight."

Shepard's two daughters, Julia, 19, and Mrs. Laura Snyder, 23, were at the home.

One of them shouted "Whoopee" so loudly it could be heard through the closed windows. Minutes later the lights went out as Mrs. Shepard retired to take a nap before going to Mission Control to watch the walk on the moon.

Mrs. Shepard's comment "they can't call him Old Mose anymore" refers to recent speculation that Shepard is past his peak because of his age, 47, and physical condition.

Astronauts Jerry Carr and Paul Weitz were at the Mitchell home with Mrs. Mitchell and her two daughters, Karlyn, 17, and Elizabeth, 11.

An expectant hush had fallen over the Roosa home as the Antares descended to the moon.

"It was the most simultaneous outburst I've ever seen," said a family friend who was there. "The kids just jumped up and down and clapped and cheered."

Roosa has four children — Christopher, 11; John, 10; Stuart Jr., 8; and Rosemary, 7.

Judge Selected For Angela Case

A retired Inyo County Superior Court judge was assigned today by Chief Justice Donald R. Wright to try the Angela Y. Davis case.

Judge John P. McMurray, who retired the first of the year, is expected in Marin March 9 for a hearing set to hear motions to quash Miss Davis's indictment for conspiracy, kidnapping and murder in connection with the fatal Aug. 7 shoot-out at Marin County Hall of Justice.

Other proceedings tentatively set today by Justice Wright for March 9 involve Miss Davis's request for bail and to act as her own attorney.

780,000 To Jobless Roll In January

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Unemployment in the nation rose in January by 780,000 but the government said the 6 per cent jobless rate was an improvement over December and could signal a steady drop.

The December rate previously had been reported at 6 per cent but the Labor Department said that it was raised to 6.2 per cent after adjustments for just-completed 1970 trends. That meant the January rate was 0.2 per cent below December—the first drop in seven months.

While the figures reported by the Labor Department showed a rise of 780,000 unemployed persons to a total of 5.4 million —and a drop of 1.3 million in the number of persons holding jobs — the Nixon administration said the over-all rate of decline was significant.

As the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics was announcing the new figures, a high Labor official told reporters at a separate news conference arranged by the White House that the January report marked "a change in trends—a change in direction" — and could be the start of a steady decline in the unemployment rate.

The official, who declined to allow use of his name, said seasonally adjusted figures showed improvement in January in total employment, total unemployment, average work week, claims for unemployment compensation and joblessness among adult men.

Regardless of the statistical basis for computing the jobless rate, unemployment in January continued to hover at the highest level since late 1961. It was 6 per cent in December, 6.1 per cent in November and 6.7 per cent in October of that year.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said unemployment normal-

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Lucerne Fire

LUCERNE, Switzerland (UPI)—Fire destroyed most of Lucerne's main railway station today, toppling the historic dome that has been the gateway to the Alps for millions of tourists.

Police said no one was killed in the fire. Injuries were limited to several cases of smoke poisoning among the 400 firemen fighting the flames.

The first curls of smoke were spotted at 8:20 a.m. among the wooden roof beams erected when the station was built between 1893 and 1897, railway officials said.

Attack In Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Roman Catholics attacked British troops with gasoline and gelignite bombs early today in a series of hit and run sorties that kept the city's trouble spots aflame.

Twenty-seven persons were arrested during the evening by army "snatch squads," specially-trained groups used to ferret out riot ringleaders. There were no reports of serious injury. One gasoline bomber apprehended said he was 8 years old.

An army spokesman described the city as "uneasy, but relatively calm." He praised priests in the area for their help in dispersing crowds.

To Testify

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mayor Joseph Alioto will testify next week in Seattle before a federal grand jury investigating his sharing of a $2.3 million legal fee with two former Washington state officials.

The mayor announced Thursday night he had received a letter from U.S. Attorney Stan Pitkin of Seattle offering him a chance to appear in person at the investigation. He also said his office records pertaining to the case have been subpoenaed.

The federal panel will begin reviewing Alioto's anti-trust work for several Washington utility districts on Wednesday.

Otto's Son

LONDON (UPI)—Film producer Otto Preminger broke a 26-year silence today and said he fathered the late Gypsy Rose Lee's son, Erik Kirkland, during an affair with the striptease queen in California in 1944.

Preminger, reached at London's Dorchester Hotel, confirmed a statement released in the United States by the 26-year-old Kirkland that Preminger is his father.

"Eric is my natural son," Preminger told newsmen. "I have discussed the legal side of the adoption with him."

Preminger, 64, one of the last great Hollywood film moguls, said "Years ago I had an affair with a woman in California. On the 11th of December, 1944, I heard that she was in a hospital in New York. I flew there. She told me that she was having a child.

Hughes' View

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa, regarded as a possible 1972 Democratic presidential candidate, says the United States should reopen the doors to China with a new era of forgiveness and reconciliation.

"We must deal with the government in Peking as an established entity, a current adversary on the international scene, but also a potential participant in efforts to halt the arms race and ease international tensions," Hughes said.

He made the remarks Thursday at the opening session of a congressional conference on U.S.-China policy.

Marry, Or Be Jailed

CARACAS (UPI)—Police who broke up a hippie commune Thursday gave some of its residents a choice—marriage or jail.

Police said 11 of the 43 persons arrested were minor girls—and most of them were pregnant. If they want to avoid prosecution, police said, they will have to get married.

Twisters Claim Eight In Dixie

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Heavy snow swept the upper plains, steady rain, fog and freezing drizzle peppered the Midwest, tornadoes claimed eight lives in Mississippi and Alabama and ice storms were expected today in the Middle Atlantic states.

Seven persons were killed Thursday night when twisting winds demolished their house trailer at Gore Spring near Grenada, Miss. Another woman died when a twister raked her home three miles west of Bear Creek, Ala.

Six other persons were reported injured when a tornado hit a portable classroom at Bear Creek.

Fog and steady rain forced Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to cancel two flights into the Midwest Thursday. Agnew's flight to Springfield, Ill., was scrubbed completely. A later flight was off the ground en route to Indianapolis, Ind., before heavy fog at the Indiana capitol forced the craft to return to Washington.

Up to nine inches of snow and winds gusting to 40 miles an hour turned Kansas highways into skating rinks. Dozens of schools were closed as the storm blitzed Iowa with freezing rain and snowfalls expected to reach a half-foot.

Heavy snow warnings were in effect early today from Kansas northeastward through upper Michigan.

Ahead and south of the storm, rain and heavy, dense fog snarled expressways and backed up airports. Chicago's O'Hare airport said the work load there had dropped by 30 to 40 per cent because of flight cancellations.

All planes were diverted from Eppley Airport in Omaha, Neb. Highways in the Chicago area backed up as lowered visibility shrouded the evening rush hour.

Further east, the Indiana-Pittsburgh American Basketball Association game scheduled at Louisville was canceled when a plane carrying the Pacers from Utah was unable to make connections in Chicago.

The rain brought its own problems. Streets in cities throughout southeastern Michigan were flooded and lined with stalled cars after as much as an inch of rain fell on top of a snow base. Flash flooding was reported near small streams from central Missouri into southern Illinois.

Freezing rain warnings were in effect this morning across parts of New York State and Pennsylvania and ice storm and travelers warnings were posted in parts of West Virginia.

Sharing Plan Would Mean State Audit

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Enactment of President Nixon's $5 billion-a-year revenue sharing bill would subject the entire budget of most states and cities to an audit by the federal government to guard against embezzlement or misuse.

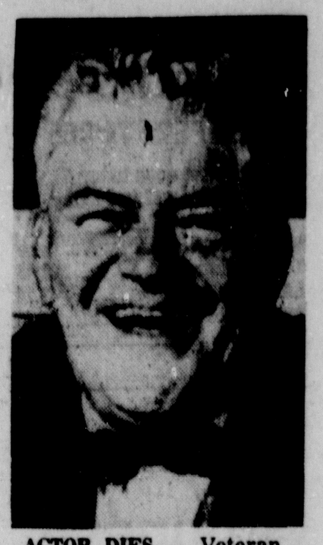
The measure also would give the federal government a new weapon to prevent the use of state or local tax money for programs which discriminate on the basis of race, creed or national origin.

Administration officials said the bill, scheduled to be submitted to Congress next week, will require recipient state and local governments to file financial statements showing the money is spent honestly. They also would be required to certify that there was no racial discrimination in programs financed "in whole or in part" by federal money.

Murray L. Weidenbaum, an assistant Treasury secretary who is the administration's chief architect of revenue sharing, told newsmen at the White House Thursday that if a state or city placed federal money into its general treasury — as most are expected to do — all programs would be subject to the audit and civil rights re-

Weidenbaum said the restrictions would apply to money raised by state and local taxes as well as the federal money if the funds are mixed together in the state or local treasury.

In some areas, the bill would provide the first independent audit of local tax money.



ACTOR DIES — Veteran character actor Jay C. Flippen (in a 1954 photo) died yesterday at the age of 70 at a Los Angeles hospital. He had performed in vaudeville, on Broadway and in such films as "Ballad of Cat Ballou," "Hellfighters," and "Brute Force."

Hijacked Plane Back In Miami

MIAMI (UPI)—It was hard to determine who was the cooler on Delta Airlines' Flight 379 Thursday—the hijacker or the hijacked.

When stewardesses handed Capt. Charles Blizzard a note from a bearded black passenger which said he would blow up the DC9 with nitroglycerine taped to his body unless it went to Cuba, Blizzard turned over the note, scribbled "We are on our way," and handed it back.

When the plane with its 23 passengers and crew of four landed at Havana, the hijacker walked to the door, turned to the passengers and said:

"Right on, baby. Freedom or free people. Sorry to inconvenience you but this will give you a chance to see Cuba."

One of those who got to see Cuba on a flight from CHICAGO TO Nashville was recording star Bobby Goldsboro, 30, accompanied by his musicians.

The mod-attired Goldsboro was one of the first passengers checked through customs after the plane landed here.

Medi-Cal Cut Suit Rejected

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The 3rd District Court of Appeal has refused to consider a suit to block the Reagan Administration's 10 per cent cutback in Medi-Cal services and nursing home fees. Without comment, the court Thursday rejected the suit filed by Sacramento County which argued that Dr. Earl Brian, state Medi -Cal Administrator, made the cuts illegally.

But Sacramento County counsel John Heinrich, who filed the suit, said he plans to file a Superior Court action Monday which is similar to the California Medical Association's suit challenging the reductions. He said the county and CMA suits will be argued at a Sacramento hearing Feb. 19 before Superior Court Judge William M. Gallagher.

The administration contends the reduction in certain services to Medi -Cal recipients along with the cuts in provider fees paid to nursing homes, doctors, dentists and pharmacists —among others — were needed to head off a threatened $140 million deficit.

The cuts, which prompted a bitter protest from local officials, health care providers and some lawmakers, took effect Dec. 15.

Heinrich said the cutback actually would require Sacramento County to pay an extra $344,000 during the next six months because the state's share of financing would fall to the counties.

He also said there was insufficient evidence to show that the medical health care program for the poor faced a fiscal crisis.

'Hatchet Job' Denied On Legal Assistance

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Reagan Administration denied today it set out to perform a "hatchet job" on the California Rural Legal Assistance Program in order to cancel its federal funding.

Cruz Reynoso, CRLA director, told the Sacramento Press Club Thursday that the administration sent out a "prejudicial" questionnaire to attorneys seeking their judgment of the organization.

Reynoso said the questions were written in such a fashion and follow up action by the administration was designed to perform "a hatchet job on CRLA."

Edwin Gray, Reagan's associate press secretary who attended the Press Club session, denied that the administration sought to force the organization out of business in such a manner.

"Mr. Reynoso knows very well this charge is untrue," Gray told a reporter.

Reynoso also predicted CRLA would continue providing legal services to the poor whether or not its support comes from federal funds.

"We feel we have to fight this battle on the basis that the poor are entitled to the best legal representation," he said.

Gov. Ronald Reagan vetoed the group's $1.8 million grant for the current year. The federal Office of Economic Opportunity last week approved a six-month, $600,0000 continuance amount, but upheld the veto.

"It will be interesting to see how the CRLA uses its time, energy and resources during the next six months," Gray said. "whether in fact they represent the true legal civil needs of the poor or use the money to mount a huge public relations campaign to justify their activities."

Asked if CRLA would continue to provide the legal services for poor Californians, even if OEO in Washington fails to furnish further funding, Reynoso replied:

"Frankly, I'm confident we'll be around after six months even without public funds."

Reagan vetoed the money on grounds CRLA violated federal antipoverty regulations and failed to give civil legal services to all poor who asked for it.

Rolls-Royce Autos To Live Despite Firm's Collapse

LONDON (UPI)—Rolls-Royce automobiles, the byword of luxury, will live on despite the company's financial collapse, government sources said today.

In all likelihood, the sources said, the government will sell to private enterprise the profitable automobile division of the world-famous firm manufacturing. The government hoped the private buyer will be British but sale to an American or other foreign firm cannot be ruled out, the sources said.

Newspapers speculated that the General Motors or Ford Motor Co. would be highly interested in acquiring the Rolls-Royce automobile division.

News Thursday that the most famous name in British industry was without money was met with shock and disbelief. Editorial writers said it were as if the crown jewels had been pawned, or the Bank of England had collapsed.

Prime Minister Edward Heath conferred with President Nixon for 15 minutes by telephone Wednesday night as part of a last ditch effort to help save the company, government sources said. They said Nixon offered sympathy but not much else.

Rolls said it went broke because of skyrocketing costs in building jet engines for Lockheed Aircraft Corp., an American firm saved from the same fate only through action of the U.S. government.

Rolls said it had insufficient funds to cover its liabilities and was going into receivership.

The government, in the first nationalization by conservatives in more than 30 years, said it would take over the company's defense and foreign aviation operations.

The Rolls-Royce automobile division has been successful. Last year alone it earned $16.8 million in foreign currency.

The division, currently producing the popular Silver Shadow Rolls-Royce and Bentley-T series, is having a hard time keeping up with orders. At present there is an 18-month waiting period for delivery.

Knowledge of God

We were always meant to know God . . . to be deeply aware of His infinite nature and power . . . and to follow where this knowledge leads in working out our salvation. The Bible speaks of it often. It's the most fundamental knowledge there is, and it requires prayerful study and consistent practice. Christian Science church services offer assistance to those who seek this knowledge. You are always welcome, any Sunday or Wednesday.

Downgrading Of Officer Not Ordered

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Former supervisors of dismissed Petaluma policeman Robert C. Blagborne testified yesterday they had no orders to downgrade the officer because of his part in labor negotiations.

In the second day of the reinstatement hearing in Sonoma County Superior Court, Blagborne's attorney Paul Neuer questioned the former supervisors, Sgt. Jimmie Matthews, Inspector William C. Reed, Lt. Karl P. Kohl and Capt. Henry Eslick.

All testified that Blagborne had received performance ratings of competent until last fall when the department came near a strike as wage negotiations with City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer became deadlocked.

Sgt. Matthews, who said he had supervised Blagborne the longest, said his work in the field had been competent, but that he had developed a persecution complex after the labor-problems.

Matthews said Blagborne felt the supervisors were under pressure to downgrade him and get him fired. "He felt the City of Petaluma was out to get him," Matthews said, denying he had been given orders to lower his performance ratings.

Matthews said he had previously recommended Blagborne be given permanent status after his one year probationary period, but that he changed his mind when Blagborne's attitude changed and he began lowering the morale of other officers by speaking of his job insecurity.

Capt. Eslick, who had been serving as acting chief, said he decided to extend Blagborne's probation period by three months because of temperamental problems and a bad attitude. Under questioning, Eslick said he did not know if he had the authority to extend probation.

City Mgr. Meyer took the stand to say he had been consulted about Blagborne's problems, but had simply gone along with the department head's request, as is the custom.

The hearing was to continue today with two former police officers scheduled to testify.

Man Injured As Car Leaves Road

A 31-year-old San Rafael man was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for a scraped and cut eye suffered when his car went off Panoramic Highway a mile west of Pan Toll Ranger Station, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Officers, who had no details of the mishap, said Gary Lee Corvello, of 277 Union Street, was eastbound on the highway when the accident occurred about 9 p.m.

FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

11:34 a.m., Fairfax — Fire caused by carburetor backfire did minor damage to auto of Donald J. Yerion of 15 Morelos Avenue, Forest Knolls, while car was at 1824 Sir Francis Drake Avenue.

12:35 p.m., Sausalito — Smoke check at Lincoln Drive and Nevada Street resulted from smoking tar pot of roofing company.

2:46 p.m., Sausalito — Grass fire along Highway 101 south of the Waldo Tunnel burned 100 square feet; possibly caused by discarded cigarette.

5:38 p.m., Tomales — False report of car fire on Carrie Street. Marin County Fire Department responded.

SOUTHERN SONOMA

No fire calls.

Nod To Rock Event Under Faculty Eye

An old-fashioned ingredient will be added to the first public rock concert to be held at the College of Marin since a disastrous one in August 1969.

Although the word "chaperone" was never mentioned at last night's meeting of the Marin Junior College District board, trustees agreed to okay a proposed concert only if a certain number of faculty agree to be present.

The trustees first by a 4-3 vote turned down a plea from Bryan Gaddy, student head of the Marin Peace Coalition, that his group be allowed to have a fund-raising rock affair in the college gym sometime this month.

Board members Elizabeth M. Deedy, Harry J. Moore, Theodore C. Wellman and Robert E. Rogers voted against the concert even though Gaddy agreed to have the proceeds from ticket sales impounded until any damage could be assessed.

The matter seemed taken care of and most of the students interested left the meeting when Trustee Donald K. Felt musingly said he wanted to talk about the concert again.

He proposed an amendment requiring assurance that most of the 18 faculty members who had signed a letter approving such a concert will attend. His amendment brought yes votes from all the trustees except Moore and Mrs. Deedy.

They undoubtedly were still shuddering over a rock concert held in the gym in 1969 where young people did $800 damage and the county grand jury blasted the college for allowing the affair.

Young Gaddy, who sports a Fu Manchu type of beard, said he expects from 1,400 to 1,600 people at the concert which will probably be held Feb. 21 and will feature such groups as Clover, A B Sky and O Feiden Den.

The peace coalition group has announced plans to use proceeds for a prison reform project.

Budget Pinch May Delay Junior College Library

The Marin Junior College District board learned last night that the Governor's proposed budget does not include expected money needed for a new College of Marin library and other construction projects.

John A. Grasham, superintendent-president, told the board that a drastic slash in the budget provides funds for only about one-fourth of the statewide college projects approved earlier by the Board of Governors of the California Community Colleges.

The projects earlier approved for Marin will apparently not be high enough in a priority list to gain financial support, the trustees were told.

Grasham said that if there is a year's delay in getting the money, the local junior college will probably lose a $500,000 grant from the federal government. The state had been expected to provide matching funds.

The trustees fired off a letter to the governor last night protesting the budget slash, but they also went ahead with preliminary plans for the library, approving working drawings.

The board also approved going ahead with having specifications drawn up for tearing down existing buildings on the site of the proposed library.

The Marin Junior College District board also:

SABBATICAL - Approved one-year sabbatical leaves for Hazel Torres, Joseph Morel, Maryjane Dunstan and Nancy Kenealy and semester leaves for Jerome York, Paul Miller and Russell Ridge.

STUDENT — Authorized a contract with Sonoma State College for Mrs. Elizabeth Esmerian to student teach at College of Marin during the spring semester.

CATALOG - Accepted a low bid of $6,890 from Pacific Printing Arts for 7,500 college catalogs for 1971-72.

BOOKS - Authorized sale of rare and out-of-date books not usable by the college which were given by Newton K. Gregg.

TUTORING - Decided to apply for state funds for a Center for Independent Study, a tutoring service for students.

NORTH COLLEGE - Okayed spending $6,745 for additional topographical surveys at the proposed north college site.

PLANTS - Agreed to replant areas along the flood control channel damaged by erosion and construction.

Complaints Filed In Drug Raid

Complaints were filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against four persons arrested in a $56,000 narcotics raid Wednesday in San Anselmo.

No charge was filed against John Raymond Burke, 21, of Portales, N.M., and Sheryl Lynn Ledina, 19, of 122 Sycamore Avenue, San Anselmo, who also were arrested in the raid.

Rick John Lauzon, 20, of 122 Sycamore avenue, was charged with possession of LSD for sale and possession of marijuana for sale; David Login, 21, of 63 Redwood Road, San Anselmo, was charged with possession of both LSD and marijuana for sale and attempted sale of both drugs: Larry Munroe Moore, 21, of Oroville, Butte County, was charged with possession of marijuana for sale and possession of another person's driver's license, and Frederick Charles Griswold, 25, of Atlanta, Ga., was charged with possession of marijuana for sale.

They will be arraigned next Thursday.

The six were arrested when San Anselmo police, state and county drug agents raided Login's residence with a search warrant.

Officers said 20,000 suspected LSDtablets,75 kilos of suspected marijuana and 17 pounds of suspected hashish were confiscated.

Help Wanted

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—There is reportedly a shortage of school teachers in Southern California. The Los Angeles Board of Education is having to turn outside the state for new instructors.

Expert Sees High Rise For Novato

A surve of residential growth that could bring high rise buildings to Novato was envisioned yesterday by a Bank of America executive.

Richard M. Oddie, head of the bank's area development services, San Francisco, told the Novato Chamber of Commerce that growth was inevitable.

There probably will be more multiple family and townhouse construction and eventually high rise buildings, Oddie said.

The North bay, most attractive sector in the Bay Area, with more open land and less population, inevitably will become "a place of refuge for a lot of people," he contended.

He warned of the dangers of uncontrolled growth, citing East Petaluma as an example, and called for communities to set goals and objectives in the face of growth.

"Unless we have objectives, we're in trouble, because growth will roll over us and we'll have very little to say about it."

Rapid growth has transformed San Jose into "a junior Los Angeles," leaving that area "paved over and smogbound," he said.

Novato has reached "a sort of late teen-age maturity" in its years of growth, and stands a strategic point in the North Bay, at the junction of highways 101 and 37, Oddie commented.

Commenting on the city's proposed plan for a regional shopping center, north of downtown Novato, Oddie said the experts claim a regional center requires a population of 150,000 to serve.

As for industrial development, Oddie contended: "I think there are better uses for the land. Industry thrives in an industrial atmosphere." Such industrial areas exist from Richmond to Milpitas, he said.

Oddie said extensive growth elsewhere in the state should make North Bay residents pause "before rushing off in pursuit of sheer growth."

If sheer growth continued "we'd end up paving our most desirable parts of the state," he said. "The circumstances call for a second look at environment and ecology."

Two Teen-Agers In Burglary Case

The cases of Russell Fred Meils, 19, and Robert John Perinoni, 18, both of San Rafael, has been referred to the probation department for a report Feb. 17 in Marin Municipal Court on whether they are acceptable to juvenile court.

The two are charged with possessing stolen property and auto burglary.

They were arrested Monday after a motorist told the California Highway Patrol he had run out of gas on Highway 37 and his car was broken into while he went to a service station.

Steen's Strike

MOAB, Utah (UPI)—Charles Steen was living on beans and potatoes with his wife and two sons when he made a uranium discovery near here in 1953 that netted him several million dollars.

$3 Million LSD Raid Trial Reset

I-J Special Report

UKIAH — Trial of four Marin County residents arrested last June in a $3 million LSD raid in Fort Bragg has been rescheduled for Feb. 17 in Mendocino County Superior Court.

The trial originally was to have begun Monday, but both Mendocino County's two superior court judges and a visiting judge were disqualified, according to Judge Arthur B. Broaddus's secretary. Yet another visiting judge must be assigned before the jury trial can begin.

A total of six men and a girl face trial on a variety of felony counts arising from the LSD raid. Marinites charged are Craig Burns Champie, 20, of Fairfax; John Rene Rodigou, 23, and Michael B. Aylwin, 23, both of San Rafael, and Wayne Butler, 23, of Forest Knolls.

The court has ordered both prosecution and defense attorneys to withhold all comment on the case, but jail records indicate the defendants are still in jail, in lieu of $50,000 cash or $100,000 bail bonds.

Reagan Assured No Base Closings In Near Future

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Ronald Reagan said yesterday officials of the U.S. Department of Defense have informed him no military bases will be closed in the state in the near future.

Reagan's statement followed widespread rumors that Hamilton Air Force Base and Two Rock Station in Petaluma face shutdowns.

The governor said he has been assured that prior to any "significant reductions in defense base employment" in California, he will be given an opportunity to discuss them with defense officials.

The federal pledge, Reagan said, "will contribute to the continued stability of California's employment picture during the year ahead."

Reagan's statement echoed in part statements by Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, and an Air Force public information officer in Washington.

They said the Defense Department plans to keep Hamilton open barring drastic cuts in defense spending.

Crusade May Reinstate Club

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The United Bay Area Crusade may reinstate the Fremont Boys Club as an agency for which the Crusade will provide funds.

Laurence D. Bolling, general budget committee chairman, said Thursday the reinstatement would be recommended next Tuesday at a Crusade board meeting.

The club was cut two months ago because of a "lack of services provided for Spanish speaking residents and a lack of financial support from the local community."

Mod Minuteman Missile Launched

VANDENBERG AFB (UPI)—A modernized Minuteman missile was launched down the Western Test Range Thursday night.

An Air Force spokesman said the Minuteman II was launched from a modernized Minuteman I silo at this space and missile center at 9:20 p.m. The launch was directed by a Strategic Air Command Missile Combat Crew from Malstrom AFB, Mont.

Petaluman Booked For Marijuana

Kevin Wilkerson, 16, of 1102 F street, Petaluma, was arrested Wednesday on suspicion of possession of marijuana and marijuana for sale.

Police said they stopped Wilkerson and two other youths for possible truancy violations and found five bags of a substance believed to be marijuana in his possession. He was booked into Sonoma County juvenile hall.

Behr Appoints Napa Woman

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, yesterday appointed Astrid Edington as his Napa County representative.

A reporter for the Napa Register for 18 years, she is the wife of Lowell Edington, president of the Golden Gate Bridge District.

Mrs. Edington is secretary of the advisory board of Big Brothers of Napa County and a member of the Upper Napa Valley Republican Women and the Upper Napa Valley Associates. The Edingtons reside in Rutherford.

Mohave County Fastest Growing

KINGMAN, Arizona (UPI) — Mohave County in Arizona, home of Grand Canyon National Monument, is the fastest growing county in the United States, according to a survey by the First National Bank of Arizona.

Three huge lakes, Mead, Havasu and Mohave, formed by dams on the Colorado River, have created leisure-oriented communities and tourist attractions which brought a 224.6 per cent increase in population during the 1960s, the report indicated.

Blood Donors Busy In Singapore

SINGAPORE (UPI) —About 35,000 persons donated blood to the Blood Bank of Singapore in 1970. Only about 1 per cent of the donors were relatives of patients who had received blood transfusions.

Some of the donors had given blood as many as 30, 40, 50 or more times. Those who donated 50 or more times were awarded gold medals; 40 times, siler, and 30 times, bronze.

Fossils Are Stolen From Home

A College of Marin biologist — whose large collection of fossils, some 500 million years old, and scientific books were stolen from his San Anselmo home today — issued a plea to the thief to return the treasures.

Dr. Gordon L. Chan said that he returned to his home at 11 Morningside Drive last week after a trip to Mexico to discover that his "life's work" had been taken, as well as various personal possessions.

Missing, he said, are 250 pounds of marine fossils, "some fairly rare," and whale bone and clam fossils needed for a research project on the Duxbury Reef.

After the recent oil spill, Dr. Chan said, he is eager to start the project at Duxbury Reef but needs his fossils and books.

He appealed to the thief, who must have had a truck to carry away the stuff, to bring back the scientific articles and leave them "anywhere on the College of Marin campus."

Kennedy Lashes Idea Of Volunteer Army

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., says he made a survey of young men in his state but could find few who would volunteer to join an all-volunteer Army. He attacked the idea as one that would lure "poor men's sons to fight rich men's wars."

Kennedy's attack on President Nixon's volunteer Army proposal came Thursday in an appearance before the Senate Armed Services Committee. The administration has asked for more money and a two-year extension of the draft in hopes of converting to an all-volunteer force by mid-1973.

Third Moon Landing To Find The Secret

On the ground, the astronauts' families and ground controllers whooped with delight as Shepard and Mitchell reported touchdown.

"Good . . . good, they're down safe," cried Mrs. Louise Shepard at her Houston home. "They can't call him 'Old Mose' anymore. He's found his promised land."

Later, when Shepard stepped onto the moon, Louise jumped up and clapped her hands in Mission Control.

The astronauts spent almost five hours between the landing and moonwalk getting the Antares shipshape, eating lunch and donning their bulky white moon suits. They were 55 minutes late getting out of the lander because of trouble with their backpack communications.

"I think they put champagne instead of iodine in the LM (lunar module) water this time," Mitchell said as the astronauts struggled into their bulky garb.

Shepard's descent to the gray, dusty surface was telecast by a camera mounted on the lander. He then put a cover over its lens to avoid the sun damage that ruined Apollo 12's telecasts 15 months ago and moved it to a tripod 50 feet away.

Shepard aimed the camera at the silver and gold spacecraft then bounded back into the picture to help jab the flag into the ground.

"Mobility is very great under this crushing one-sixth G (gravity)", Mitchell told ground control.

Mitchell scooped a small sample of rocks and soil from the rim of a small crater 25 feet from Antares. This contingency sample was stowed away in case the astronauts were forced to leave the moon ahead of schedule.

When the astronauts panned the television camera around the spacecraft, viewers saw a gray lunar surface heavily pocked with small craters.

In May, 1961, Shepard launched America's era of space exploration with a 15-minute, 300 mile trip from Cape Canaveral (now Cape Kennedy) in the tiny Friendship 7 space capsule. His moon landing a decade later fulfilled a dream that drove him back into the space program after years behind a desk.

"We are in fact in a low area," Shepard said. "There seems to be a general swell, a wide valley, between Triple and Doublet (craters).

"It's a very uneven landing area here. And it's pock-marked by a tremendous amount of craters."

After planting the flag, Shepard and Mitchell gingerly unloaded the plutonium 238 nuclear fuel which will power the automated observatory for years. They carefully handled the graphite-encased cask on the end of the rod because of radiation heating.

"All this beautiful white paint is sure going to get filthy out here," said Mitchell.

They removed a rickshaw-like cart they will haul up to the rim of Cone Crater during their second moonwalk Saturday.

Cone Crater is the key to the whole expedition. Scientists believe rocks on its rim may provide clues to the "birth pangs" of the moon more than 4.5 million years ago.

Dr. Paul W. Gast, chief of lunar science at the Manned Spacecraft Center, said the landing area appeared "very soft." He said the rocks were few and unevenly distributed, and that some were of "truck size" around the rim of Cone Crater.

In this setting the astronauts hunted for "football-sized" rock somewhere close around Antares for geologists, who need bigger stones than those brought back by Apollos 11 and 12.

The trouble with the balky computer switch was the last in a series of problems which plagued Apollo 14's 238,000 mile voyage to the moon.

The mission began with a 40-minute launching delay at Cape Kennedy because of storm clouds. Three hours after blastoff, the docking mechanism which links the command capsule and moon lander failed to work until the astronauts' sixth try.

One of two batteries in the takeoff portion of the moonship showed a low reading during a midflight inspection, but ground experts decided it was strong enough to get Shepard and Mitchell off the moon.

There were also troubles with a landing craft radio antenna and the backpack radio communications difficulties. All were overcome.

They lift off from the moon Saturday afternoon after 33 1-2 hours on the surface —two hours longer than the Apollo 12 crew —to link up with the orbiting Kitty Hawk. Apollo 14 is scheduled to splash down in the Pacific Tuesday afternoon, 902 miles off American Samoa.

NEW COLLEGE BOSS

McGrath Promises Frankness, Honesty

Sonoma State College's new president, Thomas H. McGrath, said today that frankness and honesty will be his main tools in improving relations between the campus and outside communities.

In his third day on campus as president, McGrath told a press conference he hopes to speak to many civic organizations and promote better communications between students and residents in the communities.

He also said he hopes organizations like Rotary and Kiwanis clubs will, in turn, invite students to their meetings. "We have superior students here and we want to get people as enthusiastic about them as we are," he said.

He also said he hopes to expand both the liberal arts and the para-medical and business administration fields.

McGrath said he also plans new educational programs that would be complementary to the lower division courses offered at area junior colleges.

McGrath said he believes in tuition at state colleges. "Funds are running out for public education," he said. "Those who can afford to pay an increased share of the burden ought to do it," he said.

He said tuition would help maintain or increase the accessibility of higher education for everyone.

McGrath said he plans to deal frankly and meet as frequently as possible with students.

"I want to have a feel for how they feel," he said.

To deal with campus militancy, he said his office will try to be sensitive to pressures, to keep the lines of communication open and to involve students in campus decisions to inspire a sense of responsibility.

He said that if militancy develops despite these efforts, the college won't be shut down or damaged physically or psychologically "if I can help it."

He said he felt the closing of classes last spring after the Cambodian and Kent State University crises wasa mistake. "We have a personal contract with each student to keep classes open," he said.

McGrath was appointed as president last month by the state college board of trustees to replace acting president Earl W. Jones.

Youth Guilty Of Firebombing

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI)—A jury has found an 18-year-old former Fresno State College student guilty of starting a fire which destroyed a million-dollar computer and touched off four days of violence at the campus.

Virgil Lewis was convicted Thursday of two counts of arson, possession of combustible material and conspiracy to commit arson in connection with the incident last May 19.

Lewis was arrested near the computer center by a campus policeman moments after a firebomb was tossed through a window in the center.

State Workers Hit New Budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — About 1,000 state employees have told Gov. Ronald Reagan that his failure to provide state workers with a cost-of-living pay raise in his proposed 1971-72 budget was "grossly unfair and discriminatory."

The workers signed a letter delivered to the governor's office Thursday by Hal Crowden, a Division of Highways employee and president of the California State Employees Association's Golden State Chapter 146.

Youth Job Goes To Rex Hime

Rex S. Hime of Terra Linda has been appointed one of Gov. Ronald Reagan's two advisers on students.

The 22-year-old law student at the University of California at Davis was appointed Jan. 29 to arrange meetings between the governor and students, according to his mother, Mrs. Rex W. Hime of 239 Orange Blossom Lane.

She said her son was a leader of conservative students at Davis and helped found a conservative student paper there in 1969.

She said his work on the paper brought him to the attention of the Republican administration in Sacramento.

Hime, now in his second year of law school, graduated from Davis in 1969 with a bachelor's degree in political science. He graduated from Terra Linda High School in 1965.

The other appointee, Mrs. Hime said, was Timothy Comstock, 24, a third year law student at Davis.

Each will work part-time on the governor's staff, she said.

scientific evidence concerning the dangers" of pot.

The public defender also said the heavy penalties clog police and court files because the defendants refuse to enter guilty pleas.

Bales pointed out that the district attorneys recent legislative changes gave judges the discretion to reduce felony marijuana possession cases to misdemeanor offenses. Bales also noted that another law allows district attorneys to file misdemeanor charges in felony cases "where the sentence is alternative — prison or jail." Such a procedure is rarely used in Marin, Bales said, "but I want to check with other counties to see if they're trying it."

Bales stressed his personal opinion that first-time marijuana offenders are inadequately warned by the court that they face mandatory prison if convicted as repeaters.

"I think it's unfair to the young people" not to make them understand the risk. "The kids look on (marijuana possession arrests) like parking meter violations. They need warning," Bales said.

Bales added that he recommends 10 days in jail as part of the sentence for every convicted first offender in "self-user" possession cases. He said, however, that the courts have not obliged.

JOBS

ly shows a big increase in January — larger than the 780,000 by which joblessness grew last month. Therefore it said that after seasonal adjustments, the unemployment figure showed a drop of 110,000 from December.

The actual number of employed persons declined by 1.3 million, but the bureau said that this was fewer than normal for January, and that the seasonally adjusted employment total registered an increase of 400,000.

The bureau said that the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate among adult men declined from 4.6 to 4.3 per cent, after rising steadily for most of 1970. The rates for adult women at 5.7 per cent and teenagers at 17.6 per cent were essentially unchanged.

The average work week for rank and file production workers increased 0.2 hours to 37.1 hours, and average weekly earnings went up 11 cents to $122.21.

Semorile Files In School Race

One more candidate filed his papers yesterday for the April 20 election to the San Rafael Board of Education, City Clerk Marion A. Grady reported.

John L. Semorile Jr., communications technician, of 11 Constance Drive, filed for one of the three posts on the Board of Education.

Filings close at noon, Feb. 11.

Firemen Complete Training Program

Seven new firemen hired by the city of San Rafael Jan. 4 have completed five weeks of training and will go to work next week, Fire Chief Vance Trivett said today.

They are James R. Coffeey, Don R. Thompson, Anthony R. Ginnocchio, Brent Marshall, John Williams, Terry Butler and James Zell.

"under the changed conditions pertaining since August, 1970, we cannot content ourselves with action along the canal, but would have to extend our activities." But he added, "that won't happen tomorrow morning."

He said although the Soviets have 10,000 troops in Egypt he believed they would not intervene directly if fighting resumed, and that if Egypt tried to cross the canal he believed the Russians would tell them they would have to go it alone.

The only official reaction to Sadat's speech came in a speech by Mrs. Meir Thursday night in which she called the extension too short. Sadat, in announcing the 30-day extension, also called for "real progress" in the talks being conducted by U.N. negotiator Gunnar V. Jarring.

Pair Arraigned In Store Theft

Billy Ray Franklin, 19, and Charles Franklin, 21, both of Oakland, have been arraigned in Marin Superior Court on charges of burglarizing a Sausalito men's clothing store Dec. 14.

They will plead to the charges Feb. 16.

No complaint was filed in superior court against a third defendant, Gaylon Gilbreth, 20, also of Oakland. The district attorney's office said there was not enough evidence to pursue the case against him.

Council Delays Zink Action

By PAT ANGLE

The Sausalito City Council has postponed action on a state hearing officer's decision that a fired Sausalito police sergeant be reinstated and demoted to patrolman, Mayor Alexander R. Imlay reported yesterday.

The mayor said the council, after meeting in closed session for more than three hours Wednesday night to consider the case of Sgt. Thomas H. Zink, decided to ask for summaries of the evidence from attorneys on both sides before deciding the police officer's fate.

The city council's postponement drew prompt and bitter fire from Zink's attorney, James Leech, who accused the council of "using delaying tactics" and being "willing to go to any lengths" to keep Zink from returning to the Sausalito police.

He noted that the city had spent several thousand dollars for Paul A. Winton's services and expressed astonishment that the hearing officer's recommendation was not accepted.

"We did not feel the findings the hearing officer presented in his report supported his recommendations," Imlay explained. But the mayor refused to say which part of the decision the council did not feel the findings warranted, the reinstatement or the demotion.

Imlay said the council has given Leech and City Attorney Leland H. Jordan 15 days to prepare detailed summaries of the evidence presented to hearing officer Winton after eight days of hearings in November and December.

According to the mayor, such summaries will contain more detailed information than Winton's report, but less than a complete transcript of testimony, which he said would take about a year to prepare because the state office which prepares such documents has a large backlog of work.

The mayor said, "We will ask the hearing officer to take the attorneys' summaries and prepare one impartial, complete summary of the evidence which we will use to make our final decision."

Imlay stressed the council is not asking Winton to make another recommendation on whether Zink should be reinstated. "The council will decide that," he said. "No new evidence will be included in the summaries," he added.

Leech said he feels the council, in rejecting the hearing officers' findings and decision, has already made up its mind. "The new report isn't going to change anything."

The mayor firmly denied the attorney's allegations. "We are just as interested as Mr. Zink is in getting the matter concluded in a way that is fair to the city, and particularly to Mr. Zink," he said. "If we had already decided what to do, we wouldn't be asking for more facts. We are simply using the procedures prescribed by law."

The 33-year-old Zink was fired from the Sausalito department in May after 11 years on the force. At that time the city leveled a variety of charges against him, including "emotional instability," "inability to maintain a satisfactory relationship with subordinate officers," "use of a stimulant while on duty" and appearing for work late, out of uniform with the odor of alcohol on his breath.

In the lengthy report released last month, the hearing officer said he found no evidence to support charges of emotional instability and inability to relate satisfactorily to subordinate officers.

Winton also noted the stimulant Zink used while on duty had been prescribed by a physician and said the officer was not addicted to it, used it sparingly only when he needed to be alert. The drug did not impair his functions as a police officer, the hearing officer ruled.

Winton concluded that Zink had been late for work on several occasions, was seen not wearing a tie and came to work with the odor of alcohol on his breath several times, but said the alcohol did not affect his ability to perform his duties.

Although the hearing officer admitted the sergeant had been guilty of "inexcusable neglect" in the performance of his duties as a police officer, he said he did not feel Zink's actions warranted his dismissal.

Leech said he felt his client would eventually have to take the case to court.

Marin City Panel Invites Merger

Marin City Council members last night suggested a merger with the Marin City Tenants Union if the union is willing.

On a motion by Frank Phillips and a second by Melvin Atkins, the council invited the tenants union representatives to attend the next meeting of the council and become a part of the council "if they choose to do so."

Rev. Samuel W. Banks, chairman of the Marin City Council, said the next meeting will be held at 8 p.m. next Thursday at the Manzanita Center in Marin City. Mary Brooks heads the tenants union.

Several members of the audience also suggested that vulgar language used at some of the public meetings in Marin City are a disgrace and should be cleaned up.

"We're supposed to be civilized and decent people here, but the language used at some of the meetings is a disgrace," declared Rogers Jones, a retired cook who lives at 49 Cole Drive. Several members in the audience nodded agreement.

Last night's meeting, with Reverend Banks presiding, was quiet and peaceful.

Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of both the Marin Housing Authority and the Marin Redevelopment agency, had been invited to listen to complaints on conditions in Marin City's 300 public housing units.

Shepherd was there early last night, but when the meeting started at 8:20 p.m., the council members outnumbered the audience 5 to 2. The audience finally grew to 10, but most of the questioning came from Council member Atkins.

Atkins complained that the housing is poorly constructed, ventilation is lacking, some overhead pipes are not covered, and 40-foot high buildings lack fire escapes. He said the average family in Marin City has an income of $300 or less per month to support a family of four or five, which leaves barely enough for food and bill payments.

"Sometimes, things back up on you until you have to say the hell with rent."

Shepherd replied that rent paid by the tenants, averaging about $50 or $60 per unit, is not enough to cover maintenance cost. He said government subsidy is making up the difference.

"I can take you anywhere in the Bay Area and you won't find a public housing project this well designed and with these amenities at these prices."

Rogers Jones agreed. "I've been to various places," said Jones. "These high rise buildings are not shacks. There is no place else in the country where you can get buildings like this for these prices. As far as the buildings are concerned, I don't think we have any beef."

Shepherd said the rents paid in Marin City's public housing range anywhere from zero to $140 per month. The rent cannot exceed one fourth of the family income, and those who have no income get free rent, with the government paying the difference.

He assured residents he is trying to get funds to improve ventilation. He said the redevelopment agency plans to spend $25,000 to $30,000 to improve children's play area and $43,000 to improve the drainage system. He said the agency had just completed a new lighting system for $40,000.

Several women complained that the lights are too bright and shine into their bedrooms, and the electrical wiring will not accommodate clothes driers.

Shepherd said he will look into those problems and invited residents to bring in their complaints. At the same time, he asked the residents to do their share to help maintain their homes.

Since he took over as executive director six months ago, Shepherd said, six or seven truckloads of debris have been carted out of Marin City. "We have trimmed hedges and pruned trees. I defy you to pick any home here now and find anything wrong with it structurally. I have that much faith in my crews."

Oil Pipeline To Be Safe, Builder Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Construction problems involved in building an 800-mile pipeline in Alaska can be solved without upsetting the environment, the president of the firm that will build the pipeline said Thursday.

Edward Patton of Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. said there were "no unsolvable technical problems" preventing building the pipeline from Alaska's north slope to the port of Valdez.

Patton said tests still being conducted indicated there would be no adverse effects that cannot be corrected. He said a process has been developed to restore tundra torn up during construction and that the pipeline will be built in such a manner it will not block migration routes or disrupt breeding of caribou and other wildlife.

The wilderness society and several other environmental groups have filed suit seeking to prevent the federal government from issuing a permit for the project, arguing the pipeline would upset the fragile environment of the far north. U.S. District Judge George Hart in Washington has issued a preliminary injunction requiring the interior secretary to give the groups 14 days notice before issuing a permit.

The judge also has issued a preliminary injunction banning work on the pipeline until the case of residents of fiveAlaskan villages who are trying to keep the pipeline from being placed across their traditional lands is settled.

Patton said his company will not proceed with construction until all legal questions are cleared up. He said the construction project is expected to take at least three years.

Hawks, Doves On Wiretap Proposal

CHICAGO (UPI) — A special committee of the American Bar Association is asking the group's policy-making body to condone, under certain conditions, electronic surveillance obtained without a prior court order.

Another branch of the 150,000-member ABA condemns the practice, contending that such surveillance should not be allowed as evidence in a trial.

The opposing views will be presented to the policy-making House of Delegates Monday and Tuesday along with other questions relating to wiretap. The ABA is holding its annual mid-year meeting here through Tuesday.

Delegates may adopt either view as official ABA policy, or put the question off for future consideration. Adoption by the ABA does not, however, make a proposal a local, state or federal law.

Last week a U.S. district court judge in Detroit ruled the government could not conduct wiretaps in domestic security cases without court permission. The government is appealing the decision and is expected to go to the U.S. Supreme Court if it is turned down at the appellate level.

The ABA committee which condones surveillance without a prior court order does so only in special circumstances—if the wiretap were ordered by the President, protected the country against subversion, or were authorized by police when "conspiratorial activities" threaten national security or are "characteristic of organized crime."

The group espousing surveillance without a court order is the Special Committee on Standards for the Administration of Criminal Justice, which drafted proposals covering the field of wiretap and electronic surveillance for the ABA's consideration.

Another group within the ABA, the Criminal Law Council, helped draft the proposals, but objected to six sections of the committee's recommendations and offered its own proposals opposing wiretaps obtained without court orders.

A tentative draft of the recommendations was published in 1968, but the commission decided to revise its standards to more closely conform to the 1968 Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act.

No More Book Burns At Vatican

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Vatican once had a reputation for burning books and even authors, but it now plans gentler tactics for writers who smack of "heresy."

It announced Thursday that books and writings accused of being damaging to the Roman Catholic faith will be "examined" at a weekly meeting in the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith.

The congregation descends from the old Holy Office, the department that once burned books —and the occasional heretic—through the Inquisition.

Actually, the word heresy has been replaced in Vatican parlance by the gentler "doctrinal error," an official of the congregation, Msgr. Josef Tomko, told a news conference.

Tomko outlined the milder measures that will be adopted against allegedly errant Catholic authors.

"I can assure you we do not have an electric chair, nor a gas chamber," he joked.

Now authors will be informed of any Vatican investigation against them and will be given the opportunity to explain their works to their bishops or to the congregation before any action is taken against them.

The most that could happen to recalcitrant authors who refuse to correct or retract "errors" is that the Vatican would issue a condemnation of their work and remove them from church employment, Tomko said.

They would also run the risk of excommunicating themselves by denying church doctrine, he added, but the Vatican no longer would issue a formal edict of excommunication against them.

Watson To Face Trial For Murder

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles (Tex) Watson, who last October was reported to be "turning into a vegetable," has regained his mental capacity and will be tried for the Tate-Labianca murders for which Charles Manson and three young women already have been convicted.

District Attorney Joseph Busch announced Thursday that doctors at a state mental hospital in Atascadero had found the 24-year-old Watson "restored to legal capacity. Busch said he would be arraigned in Los Angeles in the next few days.

Watson's long fight against extradition from McKinney, Tex., excluded him from prosecution with Manson and the three female codefendants. The jury in that case is now hearing evidence to determine a sentence of life or death for the four.

Four other female members of Manson's nomadic "family" have testified about the love that Manson generated through the past week and two more are waiting to take the stand to describe how he treated them like a father.

Witnesses testified at the trial that the six-foot, two-inch Watson actually led the bloody forays into the home of actress Sharon Tate and Leno Lablanca in August, 1969.

When Watson, along with Manson, Susan Atkins, Patricia Krenwinkel and Leslie Van Houten, were indicted by a grand jury in December, 1969, he was at his home in McKinney, Tex., and he managed to resist extradition until Sept. 12, 1970. The other went to trial June 15.

Cancer Report

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—The Roswell Park Memorial Institute reports lung cancer continued to increase in frequency in 1970 while cancer of the cervix is becoming rarer.

Contract For Pump Plant Let

San Rafael Sanitation District directors have awarded a $496,800 contract to the Clearwater Hydromech Corporation of Burlingame for the sanitary pumping station on Francisco Boulevard.

Norris W. Rawles, district administrator, said that before the contract is signed the contractor must submit a list of similar jobs to the board to obtain their final qualifications approval.

The proposed pumping station will replace another station displaced by work on Highway 101, Virginia Congdon, board secretary reported.

The board also awarded a $62,530 contract to the Coast PUMP Company of Berkeley for the equipment needed in the new pumping station, she said.

In other action, the board awarded a $27,844 contract to San Rafael contractor Joseph E. Redmond for the construction of the new employee building at the district's main plant on Irene Street near the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge, Mrs. Congdon said. The new building would contain offices for the administrative employees and a water-testing laboratory.

Hearing Set For Man On Grand Theft

Solomon Marquez Jr., 31, of San Francisco, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of grand theft. Preliminary hearing was set for Feb. 16.

Marquez is accused of attempting to steal from Sausalito City Hall $400 in coins collected from parking meters.

Union Pickets School Bus Firm

OAKLAND (UPI) —Picketing by Teamsters Union members of a school bus firm resulted in some tardy students Thursday in Berkeley, Oakland and Castro Valley.

Thomas Emery, who heads the Bay Cities Bus Line, said his firm has contracts with union drivers here and that the picketing was part of a Teamsters organizing drive at a sister company in Long Beach.

Spare drivers filled in for the 16 of 74 drivers who refused to cross picket lines in Oakland.

Some buses were up to an hour late getting to schools.

NATURAL TO CONCRETE — Preliminary plans by the Army Corps of Engineers for flood control in Novato call for leaving Novato Creek in its natural state for most of its length, but Warner Creek, (above), would be a concrete channel, 32-feet wide, from near Simmons Lane to its juncture with Novato Creek. The rectangular channel, 10 foot deep, would go through the area, above, south of South Novato Boulevard.

(Independent-Journal photos by Bob Hax)

Novato Flood Control: One Creek May Succumb

The Novato Creek Committee has been successful thus far in its campaign to avoid having Novato Creek transformed into a concrete flood control channel in downtown Novato.

But salvation of most Novato Creek may come at the cost of having 1.3 miles of Warner Creek, its companion stream through central Novato, in a concrete channel 31-feet wide and 10 feet deep.

The Army Corps of Engineers has proposed what it calls an economically feasible plan for Novato Creek flood waters to be diverted at Simmons Lane into a concrete channel south to Warner Creek, about 200 yards away.

From that point Warner Creek would be in a concrete channel eastward and downstream to where it joins Novato Creek below South Novato Boulevard, a stretch of 1.3 miles.

From the point where the two creeks join to Highway 101, Novato Creek would flow in a concrete channel, but east of the highway it would be in open channle to San Pablo Bay.

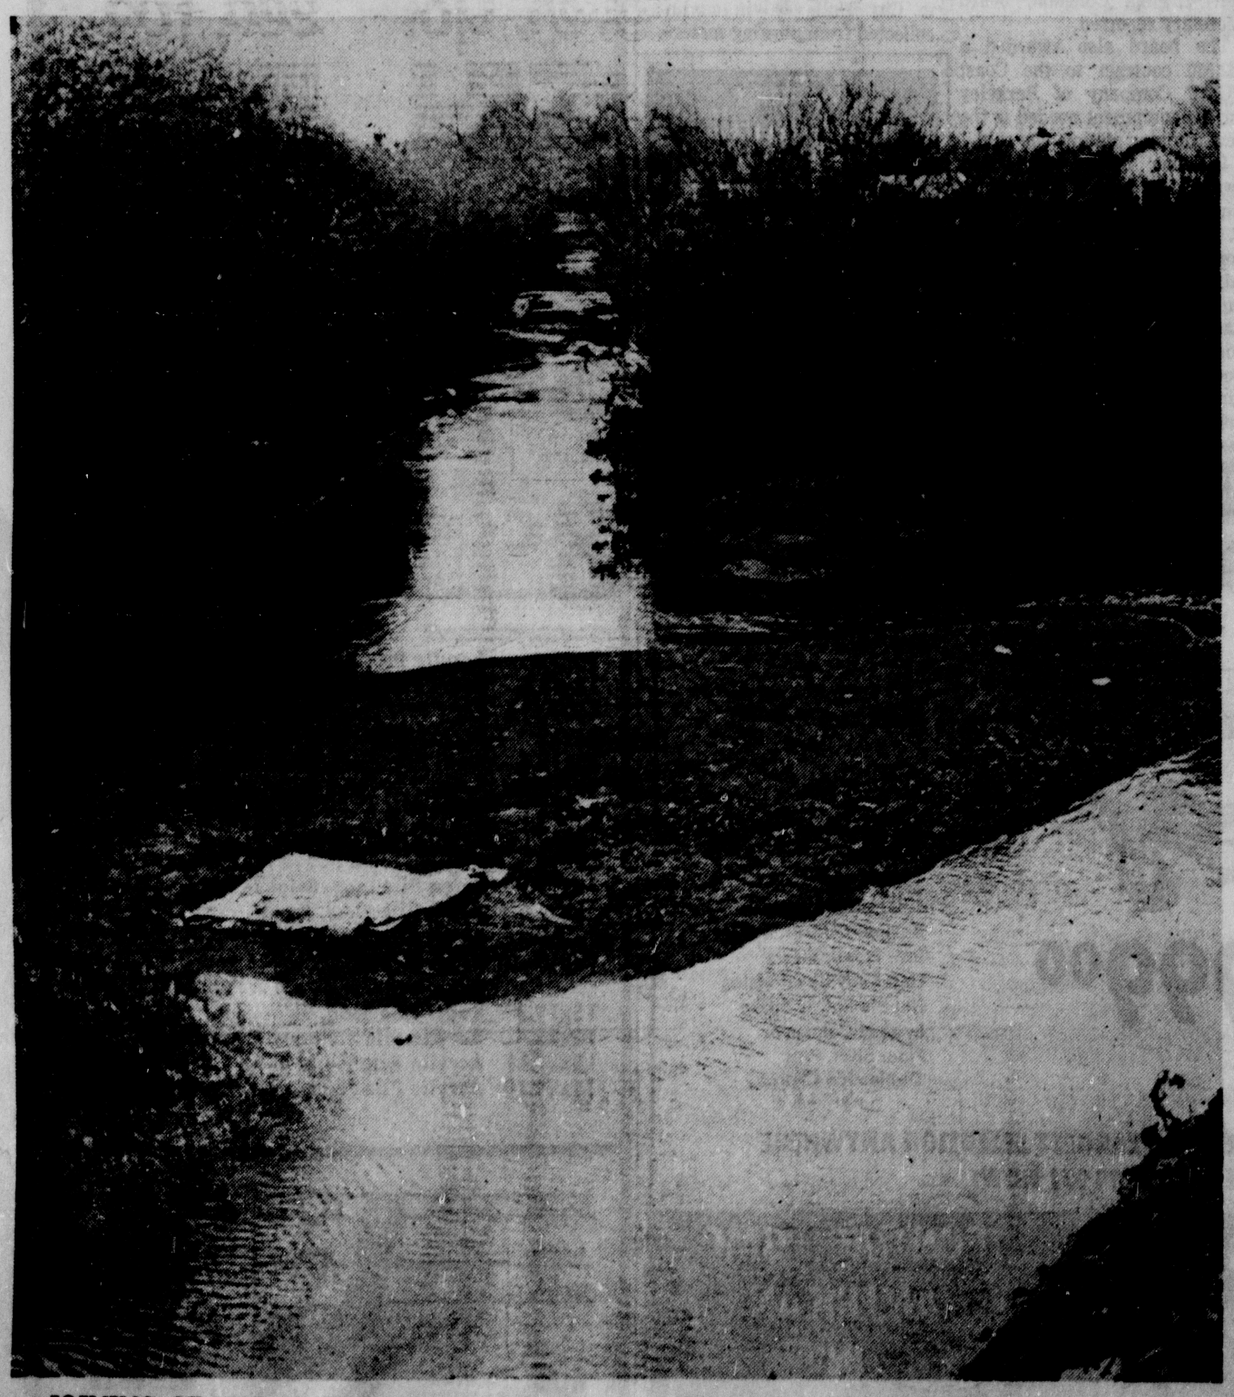
The corps plan has been presented to the Novato Creek Committee which will set a public hearing to get community reaction and forward its recommendations to the army corps of engineers.

LeRoy M. Gerner, cochairman of the creek committee, has said the alternative, a trapezoidal earth channel on Warner Creek would have to be wider and would take out more trees and more land.

Under the plan for a rectangular channel most of the trees would be saved, and "very few homes would be involved," Gerner said. There is "a lot of open area" along Warner Creek, he explained.

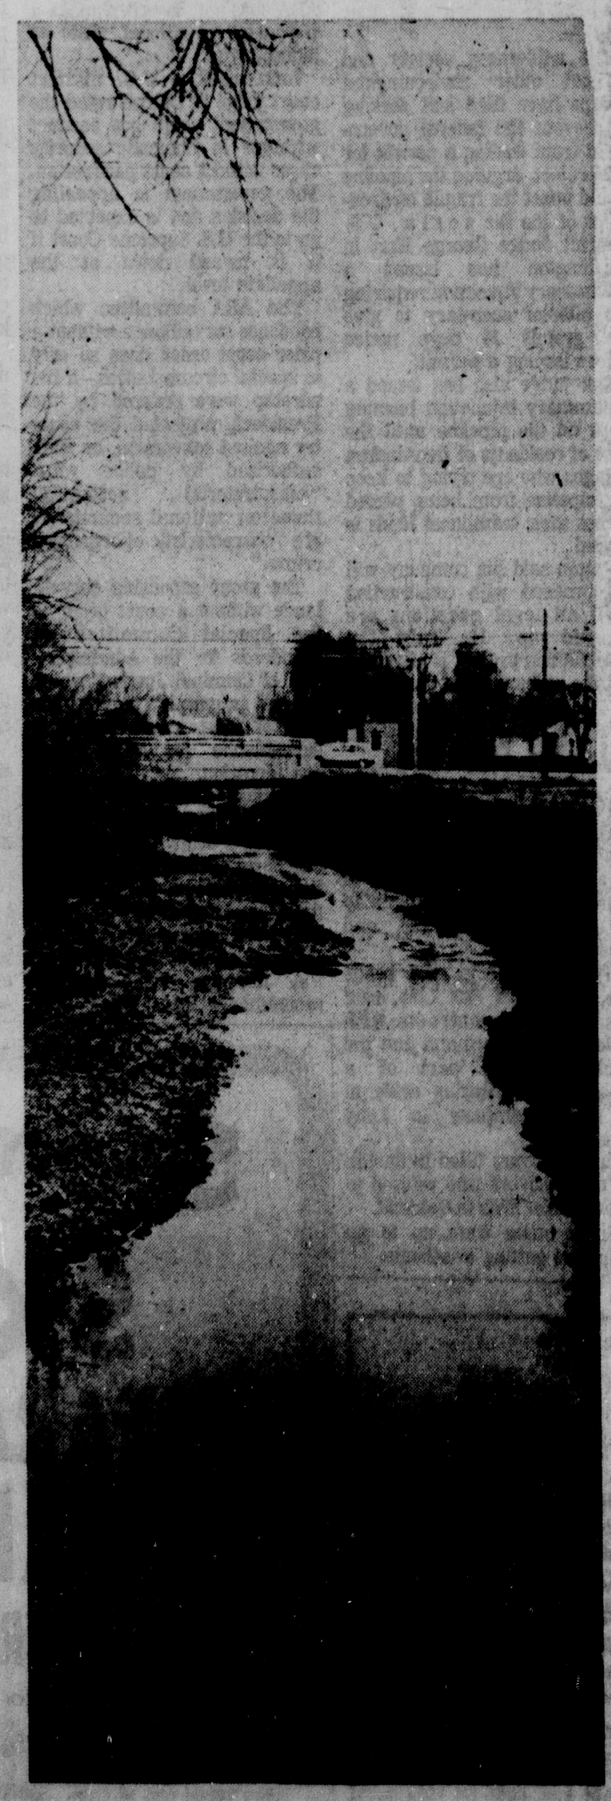
Gerner said there were erosion problems along the creek that threatened property, and felt these homeowners would welcome a project that would prevent their yards "from going into the creek."

Committee members will study the concrete channel plan with a view toward possible recreational developments and landscaping and have a public hearing "within a month or so," he said.



JOINING OF THE CREEK — Warner Creek (left) joins Novato Creek, (right) which will be left in its natural state to this juncture, east of South Novato Boulevard. At this point, water from the two creeks would be channeled into a 38-foot wide rectangular concrete channel, which would run to Highway 101 near Lamont Avenue.

NARROW STREAM — A northward view from Tamalpais Avenue shows Warner Creek as a narrow stream cutting a path at the rear of homes along Novato Boulevard.



FLOOD CHANNEL — Under preliminary plans a concrete channel would be constructed along a stretch of Warner Creek, including the channel shown above, looking east toward South Novato Boulevard.

Today is Friday, Feb. 5, the 36th day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn. Those born on this day are under the sign of Aquarius.

On this day in history:

In 1631 British clergyman Roger Williams arrived in Salem, Mass., seeking religious freedom. He founded the colony of Rhode Island.

In 1904 Russia and Japan broke diplomatic relations in a dispute over Korea and Manchuria.

In 1945 the U.S. Army broke through Nazi Germany's Siegfried Line.

In 1969 the Federal Communications Commission made a start toward banning the advertising of cigarettes on radio and television.

A thought for today: American historian Henry Brooks said, "He too serves a certain purpose who only standards and cheers."

Decides Again Changing Bust

BOURNEMOUTH, England (UPI)—Barmaid Jane Tornianinen has given up her plans to undergo plastic surgery to reduce her 38-1-2-inch bust.

Miss Tornianinen, fed up with men's remarks about her ample attributes, said a note from a group of 200 British servicemen in Germany asking her to be their official pinup girl was the clincher that changed her mind.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Red Suits Key To Defeat And It Takes Honest Player

"It never occurs to the average criminal that other people are reasonably honest," Sherlock Holmes remarked to Dr. Watson as he hustled the good doctor out of the Baker Street Bridge Club. As usual, the great detective's friend tried to connect the remark with the bridge hand they had just witnessed. There just didn't seem to be a connection.

CLUB ACTION

West led the four of clubs, and East won with the jack. East continued with the ace of clubs, and South ruffed.

Declarer took a spade finesse, losing to the queen, and East returned the jack of diamonds up to dummy's queen. Declarer drew three rounds of trumps, led another spade to force out the ace, and then showed his hand. He could reach dummy with the ace of diamonds to discard two diamonds on the good spades.

Dr. Watson reviewed the play in his mind and finally gave up. "Who was the criminal, and what did you mean?" he asked. You surely have both answers.

SHOULD FIND OUT

When South drops the nine of clubs at the first trick, East cannot tell whether or not this is the truth. If South has another club, East can hope to get two clubs and two spades; but if South has the singleton nine of clubs, East can expect only three tricks in the black suits.

East should find out about the diamonds by returning the four of diamonds at the second trick. If West cannot produce the king of diamonds, East will have to hope for two clubs and two spades.

HOW TO DEFEAT

As the cards lie, however, West does produce the king of diamonds at the second trick, forcing out dummy's ace. Now East can play for a diamond trick in addition to three tricks in the black suits.

East gets in with the queen of spades to return the jack of diamonds; and again with the ace of spades to cash the ten of diamonds. This defeats the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one club, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 6 4 3 2
♡ - 5
♦ - K 5 3
♣ - 10 8 7 4 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs.

You may count three points in high cards, three points for the singleton and one point for extra length in partner's suit. This is enough for a raise. You would raise one diamond to two diamonds and one spade to two spades, but you would pass if partner opened with one heart.

Cycle Flips, Rider Injured

A 27-year-old San Francisco man was injured Wednesday when his motorcycle overturned on Panoramic Highway, according to the California Highway Patrol.

George Rains was treated at Marin General Hospital for a broken collarbone.

The highway patrol could give no details of the accident.

Judy Brown Loves Teaching.

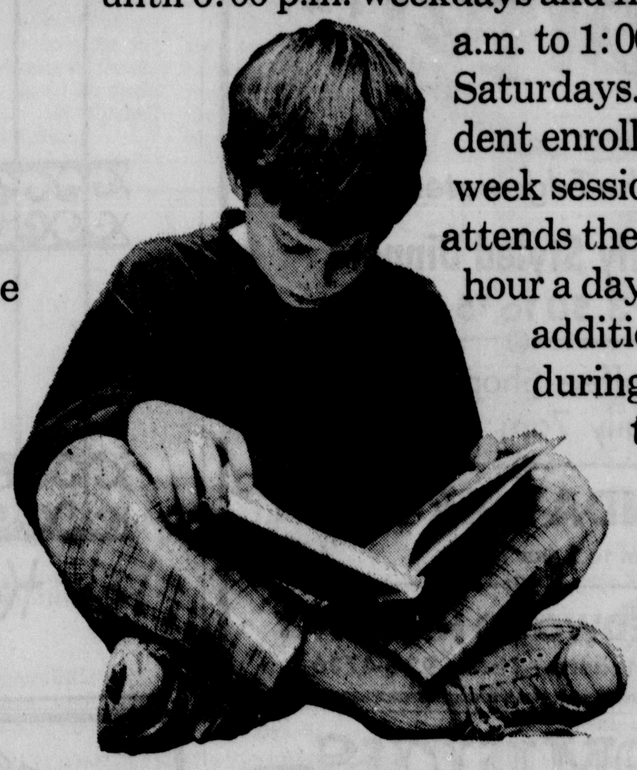
(more important, she loves to see kids succeed)

Judy Brown is director of the new Marin County Sullivan Reading Center. She's taught in Marin County for several years, and for the past two summers she helped establish reading clinics. Judy Brown knows kids. She understands their learning problems.

"There are lots of reasons children can't read. Once we recognize the problem, we can tackle it. For the most part, the children just need more individualized instruction and they lack confidence in themselves. Well, the Sullivan Reading Program builds confidence as it improves their reading skills."

Why Johnny and Ginny and Judy and Jimmy Can Read. The Sullivan Reading Program has been improving children's reading skills for years. In fact, more than five million school children have used nationally acclaimed Sullivan Reading materials to supplement their reading courses in school. Now, Sullivan Reading Centers are being established to expand learning opportunities for children at all levels.

The new Marin County Sullivan Reading Center, fourth to be opened in the Bay Area over the past year, offers personalized reading instruction and self-paced small group instruction for each student. Classes are small — maximum of five students in each class and they are supervised by highly trained reading specialists selected for their genuine concern for each student's personal progress. The step by step Sullivan teaching program is built on this highly personalized relationship between student and teacher.

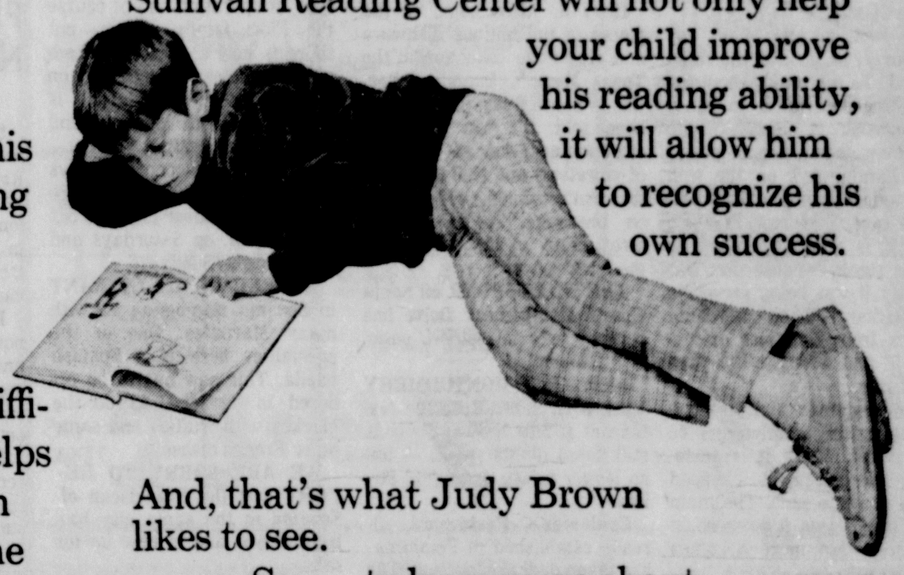


The child builds on his own success. Students with individual reading needs first undergo a series of tests to determine their levels of ability and to provide bench marks for measuring continued progress. Each student works at his own pace, experiencing success and strong reinforcement as his reading improves.

If certain word-sounds are easy for him, he works and progresses through the books rapidly. If he finds a difficult word-sound, his reading specialist helps him immediately. Each page of text is an upward step in his learning process. As he gets answer after answer right, he will learn to read simple words quickly and easily — and with confidence in his own ability.

Convenient times for Mother and Child. The New Marin County Sullivan Reading Center is open from 10:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m. weekdays and from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. on Saturdays. Each student enrolls for a four-week session and attends the Center one hour a day. If he needs additional time during the course to make sufficient progress, he is given the extra time at no additional cost. Initial testing and all materials used by students are also included in the $60 fee for the four-week course.

More than a reading program, the Sullivan Reading Center will not only help your child improve his reading ability, it will allow him to recognize his own success.



And, that's what Judy Brown likes to see.

So . . . to learn more about the Marin County Sullivan Reading Center, just call 479-5318; oh, and ask for Judy Brown.

Judy Brown is the director of the new Marin Sullivan Reading Center.

Marin Dining And Wining

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Many Marin Dineries Boast The Best Hamburger In Town

Take the humble hamburger.

By any other name (chopped sirloin, Salisbury steak, ground round, Frenchburger, beefburger) it's still just a hamburger — and probably the country's most popular entree. Not just because it is usually one of the lowest priced items on the menu, but because it's genuinely enjoyed as a lunch or dinner staple. Men especially like it and some prefer it over dishes that are far more expensive and time consuming in their preparation.

There are at least 10 or 15 restaurants that boast they serve "the best hamburger in Marin County."

The fact is, just about any hamburger is good if the meat is good. To my mind, about the only thing you can do to ruin it is overcook it. But as with steaks, some people prefer their hamburgers on the well done side, some medium and others rare. Even raw, in which form it is generally billed as Tartar steak, because that was the way it was being served in the Balkans, when merchant traders from Hamburg discovered it and brought the idea back home.

Fine restaurants aren't averse to putting hamburgers on their menu, where it is customarily described as chopped sirloin or some such. The main difference is that it's served in a manner that more becomes its true worth.

You'll find it on the menu in the Alta Loma Room at Holiday Inn. There it's down as "broiled chopped steak —freshly ground steer beef served on charred plank, duchess potato bordure."

It's so eye-catching that when I saw it in all its bed of legumes and tubers my mouth watered and I almost sent back my filet of sole Marguery poached in wine. I am assured it tastes just as delicious as it looks and have no reason to doubt it.

But if hamburger fails to inspire you when dining out (too much of it at home?) Holday Inn can also tempt your palate with all the wiles of haut cuisine. Besides, it's a very relaxed place to dine. And there's nothing exactly like it in the county.

Right now would be a good time. For entertainment the Steve Corley Trio is newly booked for Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights for dancing. And Steve plays solo on Wednesday nights.

THE REDWOOD RESTAURANT in Mill Valley is now closed only one day a week —on Thursdays. Both lunches and dinners are served from noon — lunches until 5 p.m. and dinners until 9 p.m.

Owners Joeen Arnone, Bob Dean and Leon Alvey plan on adding some South American dishes to their menu this year, in addition to the regular Mexican carte.

TIBURON LODGE has gone into a regular steak dinner menu Wednesdays through Sundays, featuring steaks, steak and lobster combination and several seafood items. Price range is from $3.95 to $6.95.

The $3.75 buffet dinner (including wine) is now being served only on Mondays and Tuesdays.

IF YOU MISS some of the pieces in the antique dishware and glassware collection in the Topaz Room's famous collection in Santa Rosa, they haven't been sold. it's just that construction next door sets up a lot of vibrations and Neil Blumenthal isn't taking any chances on breakage, so he's stored away many of the items until the work is over.

THE HILLTOPPER on Santa Rosa's Montgomery Drive has covered over its outdoor patio. It is also heated.

AND IN MONTGOMERY VILLAGE, Santa Rosa the restaurant at 2400 Midway Drive is still noted for its steaks — but no longer as the Saddle 'n' Sirloin.

Cattleman's Restaurant, already established in Petaluma, has taken over the location. The operation will closely follow that in Petaluma, but in Santa Rosa lunches are also being served.

Hours are from 11:30 a.m. Mondays through Fridays. Prices range from $1.50 to $2.75, with salad, wine and coffee. Also cheeseburgers and hamburgers.

ANOTHER NEW OPENING is in Petaluma at 208 Petaluma Boulevard North, where Uncle Lou's used to be, and before that — Diamond Lil's.

It's now called the Velvet Plume, operated by Gus Kotsaris, who also has two coffee shops in Petaluma — Henny Penny and The Showers. The former is an all-night restaurant.

The Velvet Plume serves lunches Mondays through Saturdays —turkey, beef and French dip sandwiches and barbecued ribs. Dinners are in the $3.25 — $5.75 range, for eastern prime rib, Saratoga lamb chops, prawns, rib and top sirloin steaks and 12-ounce hamburgers.

There is entertainment nightly, except on Sundays and Mondays.

Chef here is none other than Lowman Whittenburg, who used to operate the Plate 'n' Platter in the Bel Aire Shopping Center, Tiburon.

ABOUT A YEAR AGO, Fiori's Italian Restaurant at Occidental was sold to Robert and Marilou Ranch and Tony and Irene Bonaccorso.

They have kept up the same type of operation and of course the Fiori family name —but there is now a different schedule. Lunches are served only on Saturdays. The restaurant is now closed both Mondays and Tuesdays until after Easter — then it will be open Tuesdays through Sundays. Dinners are from 4 p.m. most days — but from 2 p.m. on Saturdays and from noon on Sundays.

AU RELAIS RESTAURANT in Sonoma is popular with many Marinites. One of the specialties here is a Spanish paella. This now has to be ordered in advance, as do the chicken with truffles and some other French dishes.

WE ARE SORRY TO REPORT that the Franciscan of Sonoma in the same city has been closed and is now up for sale.

ONE OF THE SPECIALTIES at the Swiss Hotel in Sonoma besides Italian dishes is Chinese food on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights. Chinese family dinners are $3.75-$4.25. A la carte dishes are also served.

LONDON LODGE in Glen Ellen, that used to be open seven days a week, is now closed Wednesdays.

AND DON'T BE SURPRISED if one day you hear that Juanita Musson, who serves those huge meals at her place on Sonoma Highway at Fetters Hot Springs, opens up another place in Marin County again.

THE LION'S SHARE in San Anselmo will have Tim Buckley and Quintet (including Bunk and Buzz Gardner) as entertainment tonight through Sunday. Also scheduled are other performers.

Flournoy Again Names Bagley

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, today was designated again by State Controller Houston I. Flournoy to succeed him in event he is unable to serve because of war or enemy-caused calamity.

Bagley headed a list of seven nominees by Flournoy who must be confirmed by the Senate. The same men were selected by Flournoy in 1967 at the outset of his first term in office.

Each state constitutional officer is required to designate emergency successors. The purpose of the law is to minimize the danger of a total paralysis of state government in event of an enemy-caused disaster.

Nudes Cavorting In Outdoor Film Snarls Traffic

CHICAGO (UPI)—An increase in auto accidents along U.S. 12 north of suburban Palatine was apparently explained by the attraction at the friendly neighborhood outdoor movie theater — "Naked Island."

Police said the X-rated film, which is visible from the highway, features nude men and women romping across the giant screen. They apparently understood how a motorist might lose his composure but said there was nothing they could do.

The theater management said it was troubled by "gapers blocks" caused by drivers who slow down for a better look. But the theater spokesman said "Naked Island's" traffic jams really aren't that bad.

"You should have been here last summer when we were showing "I Am Curious (Yellow)," he said.

Sharp Quake

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—The University of California seismographic station reported a sharp earthquake Thursday night, centered off the coast of British Columbia.

A spokesman for the station said it struck at 11:37 p.m. PST (2:37 a.m. Friday EST) and recorded 5.25 on the Richter scale.

Ancient Sierra Glaciers Yielding Valuable Data

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK (UPI)—A cluster of small glaciers nestled on the crest of the Sierra Nevada range east of here is providing government scientists with valuable information about natural water storage.

Glacier experts for the U.S. Geological Survey, Yosemite National Park and Inyo National Forest are all conducting independent studies but are sharing the knowledge they gain.

Gary Balding, of the U.S. Geological Survey, heads a survey team which has been analyzing the Maclure glacier at the base of Mt. Maclure since 1966.

In May of each year, Balding leads a two-man team into the rugged country where the quarter-of-a-square-mile glacier is located. They set up 16-foot stakes to measure the snowmelt and dig a "snow pit" to measure the water content of the snow.

They return again in July to measure the exposure on the stakes and find out how much snow has melted. They then repeat the "snow pit" test. The same tests are repeated again in October.

The scientists also maintain instruments that measure runoff from the glacier, wind velocity and air temperature.

The other five glaciers, ranging in size from 30 acres to 10 acres, are located on Mt. Lyell, Mt. Conness, Mt. Dana and Mt. Kuna. Both Yosemite and Inyo study teams are studying the entire six glaciers in the group.

Rocky Rockwell, a U.S. Forest Service representative from Inyo, estimates the age of the small glaciers at about 5,000 years.

He says they are descendents of the monster glaciers which ground out many of the mountain valleys 30,000 years ago during the ice age.

Rockwell theorized the tremendous glacier which moved mountains to form the majestic Yosemite Valley was probably two to three miles thick and 15 or 20 miles long.

However, he said there was a dry period in the Sierra between the age of the giant glaciers and the present when there were no glaciers at all.

Photographic records of the big ice chunks go back to 1883 when I. C. Russell filmed the Dana glacier under the direction of famed naturalist Major John Wesley Powell.

Data from all three government agencies show the small glaciers are slowly shrinking although the record winter snows of 1968-69 temporarily reversed the trend.

"Without the glaciers to slow the runoff," said Balding, "many of the mountain streams would run dry in early summer."

He said fish populations in the higher streams and lakes probably would disappear if it weren't for the glaciers.

'Birth Of A Nation' Slated Tuesday

D. W. Griffith's classic 1916 film, "Birth of a Nation," will be shown at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the San Rafael High School Little Theater.

The film, the first major full-length dramatic feature produced in Hollywood, is based on the novel "Ku Klux Klan" and deals with the period from the Civil War through Reconstruction.

Behr Home Is Sold: $87,500

State Sen. Peter H. Behr and his wife, Sally, have sold their Mill Valley home to Edward T. and Phyllis M. Faber for about $87,500.

The Behr home, located at 212 Del Casa Drive, Mill Valley, is appraised by the county assessor's office at $60,000.

The sale was recorded on Tuesday in the office of County Recorder Noel T. Giacomini.

The deed granting the property to new owners bears a property transfer tax stamp of $96.25. Since the transfer tax is $1.10 per $1,000, the price would be $87,500.

Marcuse Pays Visit To Angela

Angela Y. Davis yesterday was visited in the Marin County Jail by her university mentor, New Left philosopher Herbert Marcuse.

Upon emerging from the Hall of Justice, Marcuse spoke of Miss Davis's "warmth, courage and sensitivity as a human being." He added, "I only hope that she can keep it up until this ordeal is over and she is free."

Miss Davis, charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in connection with the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Hall of Justice, is herself an avowed Communist.

She studied under Marcuse while she was working for a doctorate at the University of California at San Diego.

Marcuse, now retired, spoke to a group of students at Berkeley Wednesday night, telling them "to leave it to the power structure to destroy" institutions of higher learning.

He was driven to Marin County yesterday by Bettina Aptheker, a Communist who was radical student leader at the University of California at Berkeley during the "Free Speech" movement days.

Valentine Riot Sentence Delay

I-J Special Report

VALLEJO — Sentencing of six men arrested during last year's Valentine's Day riot outside the Independent-Journal, originally set for today, has been delayed to next Thursday.

Vallejo Municipal Court Judge William E. Jensen will read probation reports and pronounce sentence on the six men. Jensen presided over a 13-weeks jury trial in Solano Superior Court in Fairfield, in which a total of seven defendants were involved.

The jury acquitted one man, but found the six guilty of a total of 18 felony and misdemeanor offenses on Jan. 8.

East German Ploy Rebuffed

BERLIN (UPI)—West Berlin officials dismissed today as an election tactic an East German offer to open the wall for West Berliners in return for cutting the city's political ties to West Germany.

They said they greatly doubted any large number of West Berliners would be willing to pay such a price for the right to visit East Berlin.

They said they believed East German Premier Willi Stoph made the offer to help the West Berlin Communist party in the West Berlin March 14 municipal elections.

Antidrug Telecast Discussion Planned

A group of Marin County residents will take part in a telecast discussion of an antidrug film series, "Turned On Crisis" at 8:30 p.m. Monday over Channel 9, TV Station KQED.

The telecast is the result of an unusual group viewing program linked to the eight-part series scheduled throughout February at 7:30 p.m. each Monday and Wednesday on KQED.

The Marin Chapter headquarters of the American Red Cross opened its doors to group viewing of the series this week. A TV set and a cable hook-up donated by Tele-Vue Systems of Marin were used. According to Mrs. H. J. Pertle, Red Cross coordinator of volunteers, 18 persons watched the first show Monday, and then talked over its contents for two hours.

That group was invited to watch the third show of the series in the KQED studios and then to discuss it on the air Monday.

Many of the same persons returned to the Red Cross offices Wednesday to watch the second show of the series. Mrs. Pertle said the group will meet only on Wednesdays through the rest of February.

Similar discussion groups have been formed throughout the Bay Area, as part of a nationwide community effort to meet the drug crisis, KQED officials explained.

In Marin County, coordinator Mike Herbert of Tele-Vue Systems has announced that his firm and other cable companies will provide free hook-ups for public group viewing of the series. Requests should be made to his office at 148 Mitchell Boulevard, San Rafael.

Damage Estimate

OAKLAND (UPI) —Damage has been estimated at $20,000 from the bomb blast at the Oakland Induction Center which shattered the still Oakland night early Thursday.

Claim Filed In Injuries To Student

The father of a San Rafael High School co-ed who was struck and injured in a rest room at the school last Dec. 1 has filed a claim with the San Rafael City Schools office which appears to be preliminary to a damage suit.

Valentino G. Sabuco of 189 Ridgewood Drive, owner of Zip's King Henry VIII drive-in cafe, filed the claim through the law firm of Bagley, Bianchi and Sheeks. It asks only $70.70 for out-of-pocket ambulance and hospital expenses but concludes: "In the event that the claim for $70.70 actual out-of-pocket expenses is denied, claimants will also seek general damages for pain, suffering and mental anguish in the additional amount of $25,000."

Sabuco said, however, that his purpose was less to collect damages than to call attention to what he considers lack of effective supervision at the high school.

His daughter, Laura, was struck from behind as she was in a girls' washroom in the high school administration building. She made her way to the school nurse's office, but fainted and was taken by ambulance to Marin General Hospital.

Sabuco's claim relates when he daughter returned to school three days later, she found a note in her locker saying:

"Remember Laura — We're watching your every move. We're sorry but we have to make them see we have to do this in order that something be accomplished between us and them. Try to understand Laura, we don't want to hurt you but if we have to — we will."

The suit says that "the original of said note is now in possession of the school authorities, who, as far as is known, have taken no action whatever in this matter."

Principal Alan W. Ellsberg, said he knew of no such note, but Sgt. Lewis E. Foster of San Rafael police, who investigated the case, said he had seen such a note in possession of "one of the deans" at the school.

Principal Ellsberg today said he traced the note, and found it had been given by the attack to Florence Abraham, dean of students.

Both Ellsberg and Foster said they knew of no subsequent occurrence at the school which might be linked to the "we and they" conflict hinted in the note.

Architect Fee System Makes Public The Loser

A San Rafael architect's complaint that the County of Marin lets nearly all its architectural contracts to outsiders serves to remind us of something else that's wrong with the hiring of architects for public projects.

Robert W. F. Severin complained to chairman Louis H. Baar of the county board of supervisors that only 2.2 per cent of current architectural contracts by the county have gone to Marin firms. Severin, of course, would like to have some of the business.

Since this county is well supplied with architects (58 of them resident in Marin are listed in the yellow pages of the current telephone directory), Severin's complaint would seem to have merit.

THERE IS, HOWEVER, a greater inequity in the manner of hiring and paying architects for public projects — by the county, cities, school districts and other districts.

It is the bill-paying public which suffers from the greater inequity — that caused by what amount to cost-plus contracts.

When county, city or district erects a building, the construction contract is let by public bidding, and goes to the low bidder.

But when the project is in the design stage, there is no bidding. Architects do not bid against each other. They say it is against their ethics as professionals and members of the American Institute of Architects (an organization, incidentally, which has pretended to copyright control over the common dictionary word, "architect").

The architects uniformly demand a fee of eight per cent of the construction cost.

THIS MEANS THAT, if the price of steel beams goes up, the architect's fee goes up along with it. If the wages of labor go up, the architect's fee goes up with them. And the same with everything else that goes into the building.

What can happen is well illustrated in the case of Taliesen Associates, which has received the great bulk of architectural fees paid by the County of Marin in the past decade. Its fees for Civic Center administration building, Hall of Justice, and Veterans Memorial Auditorium now total $1,691,205, according to County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell.

When the late Frank Lloyd Wright presented his Civic Center plans in August, 1958, he estimated total construction cost — including the fairgrounds building, which is not yet even started — at $9 million. Already, nearly a fifth of that amount has been paid to Wright and his successors in architect fees alone. (Incidentally, Taliesen Associates gets a 10 per cent fee instead of the usual eight per cent.)

This escalation reflects two things: bad estimating by Wright in the first place, and rampant inflation. But, with a cost-plus contract, both work to the benefit of the architect.

WITH SUCH A SYSTEM, an architect scarcely can be expected to do his utmost to keep building costs down. To do so is to take money out of his own pocket.

There is nothing to prevent a local jurisdiction from letting architect contracts on a fixed-fee basis, instead of a cost-plus arrangement.

And there is nothing to prevent its advertising for bids. If Marin architects really want the work, maybe they will swallow their "ethics" in the interest of fairness to the public that pays the bills — and of jobs for themselves.

Horseshoe, Anyone?

For those of our readers who have grown up since television became a common necessity, horseshoes are odd artifacts of the pre-automotive era. But some of us older fellows grew up pitching horseshoes. During the depression, it was a favorite pastime of small-town America — a poor man's golf. Heaving horseshoes was healthful exercise.

We imagine only a few people pitch horseshoes these days. But sometimes we feel a little nostalgia for the simple days when a ringer meant you'd won.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Reagan Banking On Recovery — But What If Wrong Guess?

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO - (CNS) — Apparently, the Reagan administration banks heavily on a return to prosperity to keep the 1971-72 budget in balance and work out of the financial mess Governor Reagan says the state is in.

Part of the action pre-supposes the removal of droves of people from welfare and Medi-Cal into gainful employment.

It also would seem that California is counting on the federal government to bail it out of the red through President Nixon's deficit budget. The Nixon plan contemplates extensive sharing of the wealth with the states.

THE CURIOUS question is how the politicians figure there's any wealth to share.

The increase in gross national product is primarily — but not wholly, of course — created by inflation.

More taxes are generated as the result of inflation. The federal government runs on a theoretical deficit to give more money back to the states.

Thus engendered is a multi-billion dollar game of ring-a-round-the-rosy. It's still played the same despite the fact it's out of the kid class, and is now played for keeps.

IT IS TO BE hoped that the Reagan administration's economists, prognosticators, astrologers and whatever additional miracle men they might use to predict the future, come up with the right answers, for there not only is a few billion dollars riding on the right guess, but also the well-being of many millions of taxpayers.

When the administration went after chiseling on welfare, there was some hope for a measure of recovery through reduction. For some four years, the state government has been trying to reduce through setting individuals from welfare to gainful employment.

It may be heresy to point out now that their primary efforts, through various poverty programs and other methods, have been a miserable flop. The flop has not been confined to the Reagan administration, but goes farther back than that into the previous Democratic administration and into the Republican administration before that.

The unemployment rate is higher at the moment than it has been for some time, yet the old-time propanganda that "prosperity is just around the corner", and that it can be used to avert financial disaster, is still being used to lull the taxpayers.

THOSE OF US who can remember away back when, recall these old cliches, like "two chickens in every pot" and remember shortly afterward the long soup lines, the brown paper bags used to dispense flour, baking powder and salt for the people to make hot-cakes, and the birth of the new era of government giveaway.

That was all more than 40 years ago, and government is yet trying to be all things to all people. Unfortunately, nobody has yet devised a method of living off the government while keeping it going.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

New Ethics: Killing No Longer Murder

On Jan. 26 I went to the first meeting of a discussion group at Kaiser Hospital in Terra Linda. The overall subject of these meetings is "Ethical Issues in Medicine" and "Abortion" was the first item for consideration.

I learned many things that I think should be shared with those who weren't there to hear first-hand some of the latest conclusions of informed medicine.

It turned out that none of the doctors knew what they meant by "ethical," but a representative of Planned Parenthood saved the day with a nice etymological analysis of "ethos" and "mores" and decided that good ethics means "good manners". The general consensus was that progress is wonderful and cultural relativity has replaced the old Judeo-Christian morality. In fact cultural relativity is really individual relativity or "how I feel about something". We were given the fit of reason just so we can work out in our own minds what is best. And we know so much more about everything these days.

But the really new information came from a doctor who presided over our section of the discussion group. I learned from him that "There isn't any difference between a fertilized chicken egg and a 'potential' human being". This immediately put me in mind of Swift's "A Modest Proposal" and I won't say what nasty conclusions can be drawn from this if it's worked out to its logical conclusion. Still, this much is reasonable: if murder of an unborn child is no longer murder, by the same token cannibalism may no longer be cannibalism. And if ethics is manners, and manners change, then there's no drawing of lines.

It was also pretty much agreed that there shouldn't be any unwanted ("accidental") children. The greatest evil in their hierarchy of values is not being loved as a child. The implicit conclusion is that such a child could not have a meaningful existence. So it is both reasonable and merciful to kill it.

From the grossest self-interest I balk at this — merciful or not. I balk because this opinion has already taken the form of a proposed bill in the Florida State Legislature. This bill (HB 68) enables anyone to "die with dignity". This means not having one's life "prolonged beyond the point of a meaningful existence". It provides that if a person is unable to exercise his right to die with dignity because of mental or physical deficiency (which may simply mean he is in coma) then a relative can decide for him. In lieu of a relative "death with dignity may be granted if in the opinion of three physicians the prolongation of life is meaningless". To my mind, the analogy between the voiceless unborn and the voiceless born — both judged worthy of death by doctors or relatives who are full of mercy but without an ethical measuring stick save their own "feeling" is abundantly clear.

Is anyone alarmed but me?

The next meeting is on Feb. 16 in Day Room B of the Kaiser Hospital.

SARAH HOFFMAN
Mill Valley.

working to achieve fiscal accountability and educational responsibility for the taxpayers of our community is a crime, punishable as is now the case, through character assassination, then I see little hope for the future in obtaining qualified individuals from our community who would be willing to give their time, effort and talent to this district in the capacity of trustee.

Accent On Sex Called Unhealthy

Congratulations on another fine I-J editorial! Your article calling for less "family life education" and more stress on moral instruction in our schools is excellent. The information that sex instruction is being given unlawfully without parental consent, as required by the law, is shocking.

The heavy accent on sex in the "family life" and other, even English, classes is considered unhealthy by many psychiatrists, who feel this raw, clinical approach is likely to lead to sexual and even psychological maladjustment in adult life.

Our Motorede Committee is working to bring these dangers to the attention of parents and others, so we particularly appreciate the I-J's logic on the subject.

No Such Thing As 'Clean' Recall

It is my hope, those individuals who saw fit to initiate a recall movement against an elected official of our school district last week, did so with full knowledge of the seriousness of their act. There is no such thing as a "clean" recall. For this type of action invariably splits a community, matching group against group, neighbor against neighbor, but of far more consequence, character assassinates an individual and his family. Those who remember my own campaign when running for the school board back in 1969, might recall my emphasis on these important issues:

1. A promise to return fiscal accountability to the Reed Union School District.

2. A pledge to halt innovative educational programs which may have been created simply for innovation's sake, and an honest attempt to measure the educational effectiveness of programs already in existence.

3. A promise to restore educational responsibility to the district.

Aside from the unjustified accusations now being levied against Mr. Gordon C. Wright, I feel, it is over these very same issues Mr. Wright now finds himself the victim of a recall movement. If the diligent

DRUMMOND

Resolution Needed To Clear Controversy Over War Powers

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — Congress should act soon to recapture its consitutional authority to decide where and whether the United States shall go to war.

There is a murky area of uncertainty which urgently needs to be clarified.

This uncertainty arises from the fact that the Constitution gives Congress the power to declare war and gives the President the power to conduct war as commander-in-chief.

In recent years each has been impinging on the other and now is the time to draw the line.

CONGRESS HAS valid complaints that presidents have gone too far in using their constitutional authority as commander-in-chief to put U.S. troops into combat abroad.

President Truman did not ask the approval of Congress to commit the United States to war in Korea.

Presidents Kennedy and Johnson did not ask the approval of Congress before they committed U.S. forces in Vietnam. Later in 1964 L.B.J. did go to Congress with the Southeast Asia Resolution which explicitly authorized every military action he subsequently took, but this resolution was in part approval after the event. That's no way to go to war.

BUT THE PRESIDENT has also valid complaints that Congress has been stretching its authority to interfere with the powers of the commander-in-chief.

President Nixon is committed to steady withdrawal from Vietnam. But Congress has been seeking to tell the commander-in-chief how he should carry out the military process of withdrawal and protect American troops while doing so.

In the Cooper-Church Amendment, Congress instructed the commander-in-chief not to use ground combat troops or advisers in Cambodia under any circumstances. But when the use of somewhat more air power seems needed in a given situation, the Senate's extreme doves want Congress to substitute its tactical military judgment for that of the commander-in-chief and his military advisers.

How could anyone, including Congress, know what military exigency may develop during the process of withdrawal from Vietnam? Is it wise for Congress to try to impose a blueprint of tactics upon the commander-in-chief when tactical flexibility within the goal of withdrawal may prove very necessary? Does Congress want to take the responsibility for the consequences of supplanting the President as commander-in-chief? Hardly — and this is why the Cooper-Church Amendment was never passed as originally proposed.

THE NEED is for Congress to quit trying to absorb the war-conducting powers of the commander-in-chief and for the President to give evidence that he will not try to circumvent the war-making powers of Congress.

There is certainly a way to reaffirm and strengthen the war-making decision power of Congress.

It can be said with knowledge that Mr. Nixon has no intention of circumventing Congress as Truman did wholly and as Kennedy and Johnson did partly, and no intention of putting the United States into combat anywhere in the world without approval of Congress.

If this is true — and I am sure it is — then there is no reason Mr. Nixon shouldn't give open support to a resolution urged by Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois which would make this commitment explicit. The Percy Resolution provides that it be the sense of Congress:

"THAT THE PRESIDENT should not utilize the armed forces of the United States in intervention abroad for any combat activities without the express consent of the Congress except where use of such forces is necessary pending congressional approval to respond to clear and direct attack on the United States, its territorial possessions or upon forces of the United States that are lawfully deplyed pursuant to a treaty or other specific congressional authorizations."

This would certainly put Congress into the decision-making process.

Muskie And Who? Game Of Ticket-Picking Begins

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — The Louis Harris Survey showing Sen. Edmund Muskie still three points out front of President Nixon in a trial heat anticipating the 1972 election merely puts into figures what the politicians here have been saying to each other for weeks: Muskie is so strong so early that nobody can deny him the Democratic nomination next year.

Whether he can get it and go on to beat Mr. Nixon in the fall is iffier than that. The polls fluctuate, affected by every turn in the economic graphs and in the Southeast Asian war. But unless his short temper or his stubborn refusal to move farther left on the issues somehow trips him up, Muskie goes into the competition for the nomination leading by a wider margin than any aspirant from the out party has held at this stage of a campaign in recent history.

THUS, THE GAME in Washington now is matching up potential No. 2 nominees with Muskie, using the old geographical, religious, ideological and personality criteria which always have played a more important role in ticket-making than such crass considerations as how competent and experienced a politician might be.

Muskie pairs smoothly with every one of those mentioned except Sen. Edward Kennedy, who anyhow is making yet another protestation of his non-candidacy in the wake of the upset defeat handed him in the Senate by Sen. Robert Byrd.

Two New England Catholics still do not a ticket make, even though Ted's brother John shattered forever the tradition that no Catholic could become President.

But Muskie and Sen. George McGovern, the only announced candidate so far, meet the old-fashioned specifications. McGovern is a farm-state Methodist; and if Muskie divines next year that he needs to pacify the leftward wing of his party, he would be a logical choice — especially if McGovern has managed to give him a serious challenge in the primaries. For Muskie, picking McGovern would be reminiscent of John Kennedy taking Lyndon Johnson as running mate in 1960.

Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa would fill nearly the same need for Muskie. Another Methodist, he will by next year have become better known, and his bass rhetoric and muscular good looks will give him that kind of edge over the sincere but unflashy McGovern.

SHOULD MUSKIE think by convention time that he needs instead to move right in his vice presidential choice, to help hold the South, he would think first of Sen. Henry Jackson. Jackson's base is almost as far as you can get from Dixie, but Washington State has in common with Georgia and other southern states a special interest in military and aviation activity by the government.

Another alternative, if Muskie's right flank were unprotected, would be for him to revert to the classic Democratic pattern and choose not merely a man acceptable to the South but a real southerner. The one most consistently brought up is South Carolina's Ernest (Fritz) Hollings, nationally the least known of the lot but a tall, handsome, Lutheran, 49-year-old moderate by today's southern standards.

GEOGRAPHICALLY, any of the candidates mentioned makes an attractive balance with Muskie. But none gives him special entree into the swing area most critical to Democratic success in the general election — the big industrial states of the Midwest. And there are two strong possibilities for him in that part of the country.

They are Sen. Birch Bayh, an Indiana Methodist whose flirtation with a presidential candidacy declaration is interpreted by many to be a thinly disguised move for the No. 2 position, and Sen. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, whose very name puts him into contention although only weeks ago his highest public office was that of state treasurer.

Bayh's fiery speech at the California Democratic Convention last month won enthusiastic approval among the newly victory-oriented party leaders there.

As for Stevenson, he is merely the best vote-getter anybody can remember in Illinois, and Illinois is merely the biggest repository of electoral votes in the American heartland.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By GEORGE NEVIN

Defection From The Newspaper: Mill Valley Office Cat Vanishes

Has anyone seen Bob?

Robert David Marioni, who used to spend part of each day sleeping in a copy basket at the Mill Valley office of the Independent-Journal, has been missing for a week. No one knows where he is.

Bob is 10 inches tall, 16 inches long, and has black, white and gray hair and a gentle disposition.

Bob is a cat.

For months the first I-J staff member to arrive at work each day would find Bob waiting to be let in. His first duty of the day would be to leap onto each desk, sometimes scattering papers and books, and sniff around.

His rounds over, Bob usually retired to his accustomed position, in a copy basket, where he would spend most of the day sleeping.

Only when the last circulation department employee locked the office at 7 p.m. would Bob go next door to the Marioni house, where he lived.

SINCE JOINING the staff, Bob has become quite a local celebrity in Mill Valley. Regular customers usually found time to scratch Bob's head after they finished placing their ads or buying back issues of the paper.

Although there was no way to tell, we always felt Bob was just as renowned as Flower Bower Gower Champion, the Mill Valley library cat. And, we thought, twice as loveable.

In an office of cat lovers, Bob found his heaven. Besides being cooed over, bragged about and constantly admired (he had a fine coat of fluffy fur), Bob could expect each day to bring a new tempting morsel of food, from slivers of chicken to slices of liver. Some days, though, he got plain dry cat food.

Bob's love life was taken care of, too, when a reporter took him home to romance her cat. It now appears he'll soon be a father.

Fresh catnip, planted in an office flower pot, had just sprouted last week when the unexpected happened — Bob failed to show up one morning.

All day long, people walked into the office, looked at the empty copy basket with its hand-letter sign, "the cat is in," and asked, "Where is Bob?" All day long we had to tell them we didn't know.

The Marioni family is just as puzzled as we are. A customer reported sighting Bob on Monday, a few doors down Miller Avenue, but that's the last time he's been seen.

So if anyone has any information on Robert David Marioni, let us know. The office isn't the same without him.

THE BIBLE tells us what to expect about houses built on rock and sand, and now Mill Valley officials know what happens when a recreation center is built on garbage — it sinks.

When the community recreation center was built on top of a former garbage dump two years ago, engineers expected it ot settle a little.

Now comes the word that folk dancers using the building are ending each dance in the left rear corner because the floor slopes that way.

Engineering studies have determined that the four-inch drop-off could be corrected by jacking up the building — at a cost of $3,000. But engineers have recommended that the city take a wait-and-see attitude.

Since the building probably will be moved to a new site within three years, they feel, it may be better to put up with the problem for that long.

Four Arraigned On Drug Charge

Four men were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing heroin and marijuana and a misdemeanor count of possessing a hypodermic needle.

Morris Charles Tombler, 27, and David Wesley Hansen, 25, both of Larkspur, and Peter Donald Tibbitts, 18, and Donald Paul Cleary, 24, both of Kentfield, will plead to the charges next Wednesday.

A fifth man, Randolph Tichenor Guerin, 24, of Larkspur, will plead to the same charges tomorrow.

The five were arrested last Thursday when police broke up a beer party at a Larkspur lumber yard.

Three teen-age girls with the men were booked into Marin Juvenile Hall on suspicion of trespassing and possession of alcohol.

Man Is Guilty In Chase Case

David John Avansino, 27, of San Francisco, has been found guilty in Marin Superior Court of four felony charges and a misdemeanor.

Two misdemeanor charges of battery on police officers were dismissed by Judge Thomas F. Keating at the request of the district attorney's office.

Avansino was convicted of two counts of assault and two of assault with a deadly weapon, as well as misdemeanor reckless driving, stemming from a high-speed chase last Aug. 17 through West Marin during which Avansino rammed two California Highway Patrol cars with his vehicle.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Some Recollections Of Campaign To 'Save The Civic Center'

Here is more of the story on the temporary stop order at the Civic Center, just prior to Jan. 12, 1961. You will recall that this was a serious and concerned effort to find a solution or remedy for the callous handling of the helpless indigent sick out at the Lucas Valley hospital.

You will also remember that some 300 angry Marinites organized a mass meeting to save the Frank Lloyd Wright Civic Center. (Not Marin Civic Center. They met at the Marin Junior College one evening and a committee was formed to recall me. This committee dwindled down to 17 persons.

They met at the home of a young attorney, who had just been admitted to the bar, located in Winship Park next to the San Anselmo line. After a few meetings they decided, I was told by one of those present "that if they were able to get a recall election going and then should fail in the attempt that Fusselman would be stronger than ever." Thus ended the attempt.

HOWEVER, TO VENT their spleen, teams were formed to keep up an harassment program. They worked almost around the clock on the telephone. One would call us and then be followed by another. They would keep this up until midnight. The worst part of it all was that Billie became ill from the tension. We had to put the phone in a carton and pile pillows on it so that we couldn't hear the bell. I tried making a tape recording, "if you have a message for Mr. Fusselman, please mail or take it to the county clerk's office."

If we had the telephone out of the carton and it would ring, I would hold it up in front of the speaker of the recorder. At times Billie would answer in the evening when she would be expecting a call. Men would tear into her and give her a bad time. . . It was a bitter mess for several weeks. Not much different from things we hear about now. No personal restraint.

That same year, a while after this, we were discussing bomb shelters at a board of supervisors meeting and the question was raised as to how they could be financed. I casually remarked that this could probably be done with a county-wide improvement bond issue. Bang! When I returned from lunch, there was a protest march going on around the courthouse grounds — well printed placards on staffs, "Fusselman is going to tax us to build bomb shelters." The parade was headed by the then wife of the then chairman of the planning commission. Boy oh boy, didn't they have fun?

THE OTHER DAY I was wondering just what the maintenance of Brasilia was costing so I did some investigating. Hang on tight now. Don't fall. These figures are just about as accurate as I could work out with the adding machine.

From the time we moved out there and including this fiscal year, the tab is: $5,897,750. This year alone, with both buildings, is in excess of $1,000,000 for janitorial, lights, water, telephone and grounds . . That's only part of what the boosters of 1961 "gave" us.

Guilty Plea To Pot Charge

Bruce Edward Jackson, 19, of Novato, has pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor charge of possessing marijuana and a misdemeanor charge of petty theft.

He earlier had pleaded innocent to felony possession of pot as well as to the petty theft charge.

Judge Peter Allen Smith referred the case to the probation department for a report Feb. 17 on whether Jackson is acceptable to juvenile court. He was previously turned down by juvenile court.

Jackson was arrested Dec. 18 at the Emporium at Northgate where he attempted to steal a book. A search revealed a plastic bag of marijuana in his possession.

Apartment Plan Due Hearing

The Larkspur Planning Commission, meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. at city hall, will consider revised plans for an apartment building once proposed to stretch across three lots near Corte Madera Creek.

The plan, submitted by developer Niels J. Schultz Jr., calls for two buildings — one 100 feet long and the other 90 — in place of a single three-story building proposed earlier.

The first proposal submitted was longer than the 140-foot length maximum established last week, so Schultz has split the building, creating two buildings each within the length limit.

The commission will also consider a 132-apartment unit complex proposed for Larkspur Plaza.

Alioto Uses Police To Halt Protesters

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Mayor Joseph Alioto called in additional police Thursday to hold back shouting minority group members who attempted to storm his private office in City Hall.

There was no immediate arrest and no apparent injury in the scuffle with some 30 members of the Minority Affirmative Action Coalition, which seeks more construction industry for non-whites.

Shoving and pushing stopped with the arrival of four uniformed patrolmen to help the five men, including three policemen, who were guarding the mayor's door.

Trouble started when some members of a 30-person delegation from the Minority Affirmative Action Coalition refused to believe their appointment with Alioto was set for today, not Thursday.

Revels Cayton, the mayor's Negro deputy for social programs, was shouted down as the delegation shoved its way past plain clothes officer Gary Wommack into an inner office.

Two more plain clothes officer and John A. DeLuca, the mayor's executive secretary, joined Cayton and Wommack there in a stand outside Alioto's door until uniformed police arrived.

Coalition members assert San Francisco construction unions are racist and refuse to negotiate on bringing more persons from minority groups into the building trades.

During the shoving they refused to be appeased by Cayton's disclosure that a meeting had been set for next Wednesday among unions, building contractors and the coalition.

Alioto ordered an investigation of the scuffle and left open the possibility of charges being filed.

Rachel Perez Arce, the coalition's interim chairwoman, declared: "We had an appointment. We didn't come down here to start something."

Dellums In Attack On 'Atrocities'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Freshman Rep. Ron Dellums of California, charging the government with ignoring "war atrocities," has introduced legislation calling for a congressional investigation of alleged U.S. war crimes in Southeast Asia.

"The military and their friends within the Nixon administration are doing all they can to ignore and mitigate any and all responsibility for war atrocities," the East Bay Democrat said Thursday.

"If the administration refuses to act, the Congress must —not in the interest of meting' out punitive measures but rather in the interest of exposing the insane, immoral and illegal reality of our nation's adventurism in Southeast Asia."

Dellums has been providing a group of antiwar Vietnam veterans with office space for the past week. The group is seeking support from other congressmen for an investigation along the lines that Dellums proposes.

Dellums said he was in agreement with Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., who has criticized the Army for dropping charges against Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Koster, who was accused of covering up the alleged My Lai massacre.

"It's obvious that the Defense Department will never willingly investigate war crimes and war crimes responsibility," Dellums said.

Day Set Aside To Give Air A Rest

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI)—The city council of this coastal community has passed a resolution asking residents to refrain from using their cars on the 22nd of each month.

Councilman Donald Q. Miller, a bicycle enthusiast, proposed the resolution "to give the air a rest." It passed on a 3-2 vote.

He said he selected the 22nd because April 22 last year was Earth day. The city has no public transportation other than taxis.

No Interest Conflict For Mrs. Aaron

No conflict of interest exists in having a county employee serve on the Marin County Personnel Commission, County Administrator Alan Bruce declared yesterday.

Conflict of interest was one of the charges leveled at attorney Bella H. Aaron, a county personnel commissioner who is drawing pay as project director of the Police-Community Relations Program. Her feud with the Human Rights Department and commission led to the resignation last week of human rights director, Donald Curtis Moody.

The county adminstrator said there is nothing in state laws or in county ordinances that would prohibit her from serving on the personnel commission.

The pay for the project director of police-community relations is $12.50 per hour. Mrs. Aaron, an attorney, is getting one-half of that, or $6.25 per hour, treating the balance as her contribution. She drew a little over $700 for the month of January and $1,754 for the two previous months.

Since she became coordinator for the Police-Community Relations Program last June, she said she donated $6,266 worth of time to the program. "Eighty per cent of my time is non-paid" said Mrs. Aaron.

The $142,000 Police-Community Relations Program is a one-year project to train police cadets and improve relations between law enforcement agencies and the public. The program is financed by $70,000 in state and federal grants, $33,000 from the San Francisco Foundation, and the rest in services rendered by Marin officials such as Mrs. Aaron and law enforcement agencies.

No Tax Hike, Reagan Says

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has assured Californians their property taxes won't increase, provided the legislature and county supervisors do things his way.

Reagan Thursday charged Democrats had "fuzzed up" interpretation of his $6.7 billion state budget with warnings it would trigger higher local property levies. He criticized as "inaccurate" forecasts of A. Alan Post of property tax hikes.

At his weekly news conference, the governor offered Californians "every assurance in the world" that local property taxes wouldn't increase if the lawmakers approve his budget along with proposals to revise welfare and medi-Cal.

Wallace Tells Drug Agents To 'Slap Heads'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) —Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace told a group of law enforcement officers Thursday if it takes a "good slap on the head" to make an arrest to go ahead and do it.

Wallace addressed a narcotics seminar sponsored by the state Department of Public Safety. He said he did not want his "head slapping" remark misinterpreted by the news media.

"We are going to keep on educating and rehabilitating, but what I want to see is strong law enforcement," said Wallace.

Volunteer Scouts Decorate Offices

Two San Anselmo Girl Scout troops decorate the bulletin boards and stock the toys in the play area of the Marin County Department of Public Social Services two waiting rooms at the Civic Center.

Twice a month Troops 890 and 1992 send four or five girls who have dreamed up the decorating ideas for the bulletin to make the changes. Decisions on the theme and the actual art work is a project shared by the entire group. The girls also scrub the tables and toys in the waiting rooms, repair or discard broken toys and straighten the shelves. Between bulletin board changes they collect toys.

The decoration project was originated by Mrs. Mary Boden, DPSS volunteer coordinator. Mrs. Ralph Shape, volunteer driver for the department and leader of Troop 1992, heard about Mrs. Boden's idea and presented it to the girls who decided they wanted to join the growing volunteer program at the department.

Troop 890 is led by Mrs. Ronald Murrey. The Girl Scouts who are participating in the program are Katie Shauer, Eleanor Soloski, Cheri Bell, Linda Murray, Andrea Rosenberg, Marissa Dardi, Roxanne Johnson, Tracy Craig and Lori Shape.

"The girls work with youthful enthusiasm and inspiration and are doing a job that once required public money and the time of paid staff members," says Elizabeth Coyle, assistant director of DPSS.

Mrs. Boden, who has guided the program since its inception a year ago, says, "Our youngest volunteers are doing a wonderful job and are a shining example of a successful volunteer project." J. L.

Marin Women

Friday, February 5, 1971 — Independent-Journal, 15

If You See A Tooth Walk By. .

Members of the Marin County Dental Auxiliary will dress up like teeth and toothbrushes and appear at three Marin shopping centers Feb. 12 and 13 to promote dental health during Children's Dental Health Weed, beginning Sunday.

Wives of dentists, dental assistants and dental hygienists will show shoppers how to brush teeth properly and offer balloons and pencils from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Northgate Shopping Center in front of the former H. Liebes store, Bon Air Shopping Center in front of Petrini's market and Strawberry Town and Country Village in front of Safeway.

Wednesday the San Rafael Junior Women's Club is sponsoring a public program for parents of the Dixie School District to emphasize the importance of dental care at home. Newest dental care techniques for use in the home will be explained by preventative dentistry specialists from the U.S. Public Health Hospital in San Francisco in the multi-purpose room at Santa Margarita School in Terra Linda at 8 p.m.

The toy dental unit used by the dental auxiliary members to acquaint pre-school age children with a dental office will be shown on the "Romper Room" television program Monday at 8:30 a.m. on Channel 2.

The toy unit, built by Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert V. Oliver of San Rafael, is brought to nursery care centers, where children play act as the dentist, dental assistant or parents of the patient. The patient, a doll, sits in the dentist chair smiling as the child becomes acquainted with dental procedure, personnel and equipment.

In Southern Sonoma a puppet production, "The Magic Words," will be shown on Channel 6 in Santa Rosa tomorrow at 9 p.m. and Wednesday at 4 p.m.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Redwood Empire Dental Society has been presenting the puppet shows to kindergarten through sixth grade students in schools throughout Petaluma, Sonoma and Santa Rosa for the past seven years.

Dental wives in Marin also volunteer their time giving puppet shows on dental care. Dental assistant trainees from College of Marin and the auxiliary members go into the classrooms with puppets to teach children how to take care of their teeth. They also supply books, films and dental health materials to the schools. — J. L.

DENNY SITS in the dentist chair smiling as the dentist (Tonia White) works on his teeth. Holding his head in place is the nurse (Veronia McDonald), and his mother (Dawn Marrero) stands by ready to comfort him if necessary. Overseeing the play acting at the Manzanita School in Marin City is Mrs. Julian Lifschiz, a member of the Marin County Dental Auxiliary, who takes the toy dental unit to pre-school age children to acquaint them with procedure, personnel and equipment in dentists' offices. The unit, made by Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert V. Oliver of San Rafael, will be shown on the "Romper Room" television program Monday at 8:30 a.m. to promote Children's Dental Health Week, Feb. 7 through 13. Gloria Hassler Will Be Wed To John Tolar

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene James Hassler of San Anselmo are announcing the engagement of their daughter Gloria Jean to John Thomas Tolar Jr. of Santa Rosa.

Gloria was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and attended College of Marin and Hansell's Secretarial College in San Rafael. She is a former member of International Order of Rainbow For Girls, Tamalpais Assembly 191 and is employed with Pacific Telephone Co.

John is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. John Thomas Tolar of Santa Rosa and is the brother of Danny Roy Tolar. He was graduated from West Covina High School and attended California State Polytechnic College in Pomona. He is serving in the Navy stationed at Treasure Island.

The engagement was announced at a party at the First Baptist Church in San Rafael. A June 5 wedding is planned by the couple.

Well it looks as though Paris has set the seal on it. Instead of last year's mini dress, 1971 will be the year we wear shorts, playfully showing our legs again but this time with a look that harks back to the thirties, to Ginger Rogers-Fred Astaire films and all the glamour that went with them.

Like them or not, there's no doubt that shorts are going to make a radical difference to fashion next season; not just as far as clothes, and the length of your hemline are concerned, but with beauty and hair too. There will be a thirties slant to our looks, with longer page-boy hairstyles coming in just as fast as the model girls can grow their curly locks, and a new painted-doll air about make-up with darker glossier lipsticks and less emphasis on the eyes (the signs are there, already, with the thinning and blanking out of eyebrows that's going on).

Who's going to wear shorts? Most of us, by the time the season is out. Though not necessarily in the brief playgirl fashion. Slightly longer, cuffed versions are flattering to all sorts of figures and for the woman who's a little nervous of being seen out in something her schoolboy son might wear there'll be well-cut skirts slit at the side to show matching shorts underneath.

The brace-and-bib top is important too. It may have come straight out of the nursery but it does at least give us a new dimension in dressing. Before long you'll find a lot of slacks and long trousers around with bib tops too. Some of the more avant garde shops already have them in stock.

What are we going to wear with our new-found fashion friends? Nothing the least bit bulky —that's important. Skinny little sweaters chopped off at the waist. Here's your chance to use up anything that has shrunk in the wash. Mean-cut blouses with shirt collars would be useful too. The way fashion is working out at the moment, they're wearing jackets over the shorts that finish just an inch or so above them. Expect to see a rash of Safari suits around with belted bush jackets over matching shorts — a fashion idea that will suit the older age-group, too, if they add a skirt over the top. One thing is certain, this new way that design is going will almost inevitably bring in a swing to more tailored clothes, for shorts made up in jersey have, in the main, a rather baggy look, as though they were school knickers.

How's this going to affect holiday clothes? Expect to see a lot of pretty little tops and shorts with wrap-around skirts to go with them. The shorts in some cases will be Bermuda length and for the older woman they're the ideal solution — provided that she's skinny enough.

Legs matter more than ever now. You can't get away with hiding flabby bulgy thighs under trousers this length. If you're slightly overweight and all the will-power in the world is not going to make you diet, there's a lot that you can do, now, before the shorts mania comes, to firm your legs up into an attractive shape, even if they're larger than they should be. What matters more than actual inches is a firm attractive look to your thighs. It'll help, too, if you're not wearing stockings (though do put on tights if you can, they make your legs look neater and less flabby) to use an overnight tanning preparation to make them look less pallid and white.

SLACKS with bibs and cuffs left, will be a part of the new fashion scene along with shorts cut the same way. Under them skinny sweaters and tops go best. For those too modest for shorts, wrap around skirts will do the trick. Bermudas as well as short-shorts will make radical changes in hair styles and make up.

Causes And Cures For Bad Breath

Television commercials and magazine ads say one of the greatest deterrents to success in business or social life is halitosis (bad breath). However, the products they recommend seldom do more than camouflage unpleasant odor. To eliminate the affliction, it is necessary to locate the cause. The California Medical Association suggests:

1) the odor of garlic, onions, tobacco and alcohol will disappear of themselves, given sufficient time.

2) inadequate fluid intake is sometimes a cause of bad breath. Drinking more water is a simple cure for this type of halitosis.

3) regular tooth-brushing and visits to the dentist will take care of unpleasant breath caused by neglect of mouth cleanliness and infected teeth or gums.

4) a foul breath may be warning of disease (indigestion, lung cancer, diabetes) or it may reveal an infection (chronic or temporary) in the nose, throat, lungs, sinuses, or stomach. Only a physician can help correct or better these conditions.

Once these causes of bad breath have been ruled out, almost all other cases of halitosis can be attributed to nervous tension. Unfortunately, the very fact that an occasion is important results in heightened tension, cessation of the flow of saliva and an accompanying effect of dryness of mouth and throat.

One of the functions of saliva is a constant bathing and lubricating of the mouth and throat. In a person under tension, this cleansing action ceases, the saliva actually stagnates and foul breath is the consequence.

Baseball players have known from-way-back-when an effective way to relieve tension. While chewing a cud of tobacco won't do a thing for the breath, it will relax one and start the normal flow of saliva.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Why Don't Manufacturers Do Their Part For Clean Environment?

DEAR READERS:

I seldom give one letter the whole column, but this one is too good to cut. Don't you agree?

DEAR HELEN:

I'm getting a little weary hearing all these instructions about what the common man and uncommon housewife should do to fight pollution. Why must the burden be all on us?

For example, a recent article tells individuals how to deal with ecology problems. Let's break it down and fight back:

1. Avoid water softeners as well as enzymes and purchase only low phosphate detergents.

Why doesn't government tell manufacturers: Stop producing pollution causers? Why must we try to decipher the fine print to see which detergent is most enzyme and phosphate-free? We probably couldn't understand it anyway.

At least, why doesn't government publish a public list of high and low pollutants. Is it afraid of industry? I know such lists are made — but they're not easily available.

2. Buy products that are packaged with as little material as necessary.

Now tell me, if a woman's family doesn't like oatmeal, which comes in a single pasteboard container, but likes some other well-wrapped and wax papered cereal, would she switch to oatmaal just because it had less wrapping?

And if oatmeal can get by with simple cardboard, why not the others?

3. Use plastic ice cream contains for storage of perishable goods.

After discarding all the paper, foil and plastic the goods are wrapped in when they come from the store, I presume.

4. Return egg cartons to the grocery store.

A good idea, but does the grocer want them? Doubtless some lobby representing the egg carton industry would object.

5. Bundle newspapers, separate and flatten aluminum cans, separate and break useless glass containers, and take this material to salvage shops.

How many towns have such salvage centers? How many people are going to maintain three garbage cans, do all that flattening and breaking, then tootle all over the city, delivering junk to places that may have suddenly decided they no longer want it?

6. Insist on white paper.

As long as colored stationery, kitchen towels, toilet tissue, etc., is available, what woman will settle for uninteresting white?

7. Use unleaded gas.

I've read that the olefins and aromatic compounds which must be added to unleaded gas to achieve an acceptable octane, cause more air pollution than leaded gas. They also cause serious eye irritation.

Also, long ago, the gas companies told us leaded gas was more expensive "because they had to add lead." Then they remove the lead — and it gets more expensive yet. Who to believe?

It seems to me that if any real progress is to be made in the throwaway problem, changes must be made at the source. It does no good to put the "problem" items on the shelves and then tell people not to buy them. Manufacturers, packing experts, food processors should find some way to satisfy consumers without adding unnecessarily to the waste.

If cars are the major source of air pollution, then "get the lead out" should be more than an advertising slogan —it must be a command.

Why put Boy Scouts to work dredging cans and bottles out of rivers when industry pours wastes by the ton into our waterways? We forego backyard burning, only to see smoke belching from company smokestacks.

Let's teach ourselves and our children ecology — fine. But we also need laws, applicable from the top to the bottom, not merely suggestions and guidelines. With babies, the best way to enforce a "No, no" is to remove it from reach. Adults too. — MRS. H. S., TEXAS

ANOTHER PANTSUIT

This version of the pantsuit features a tunic top with flared lines. The pants are straight legged. Chunky shoes finish the look. The outfit is made of easy care polyester doubleknit. (UPI telephoto)

Don't Pollute Inside Of Home

NEW YORK (UPI)—When planning to re-do your home, avoid interior environment pollutants. Magdalene Pfister, University of Nebraska Extension home furnishings specialist, lists such pollutants as follows: Poor ventilation, lack of natural light, lack of noise level control, ineffective traffic patterns, crowded claustrophobic conditions, disregard for color and its effects on individuals, and awkward and uncomfortable furnishings.

Parisian Shoes Parade Out Of The 1940s Era

By LUCY KRAUS

PARIS (UPI)—Parisian shoe designers have been seized by a wave of nostalgia.

Is it 1971 or 1941? It's hard to tell while reviewing the wedgies, platform soles, ankle-straps and open toes that make up the spring-summer collections of shoes.

One of the few notes in the Paris shoe parade is the brightly colored cotton cloth boots which designers have adopted unanimously to pull the "hot-pants look" together.

Roger Vivier shows ankle knee and above knee-length boots in rough cotton cloth, zipped right up the front of the leg. The heels on his boots are mostly wooden, chunky and low. The colors are neutral, or very bright tones combined to form a patch-work mosaic. For evening Vivier shows boots in bright colored satin or flowery quilted satin.

Vivier's collection of ankle-strapped sandals, platform shoes and wedgies is straight out of the late 30s and '40s. They come in suede and cotton cloth for day and metallized leather, shiny sequins and colored satin for evening. Heels are a high three and a quarter inches (the standard height this season).

Platform soles are about 3-4 of an inch thick. Red patent leather is making its comeback and Vivier uses it for his square-toed, platform-soled pumps.

Dior limited his collection to a minimum this season, showing a sparse number of ankle and T-strap suede pumps and wide-banded, ankle-strapped sandals with platform soles and open toes. Heel heights at Dior range from two and a quarter to three and a quarter inches.

Leather Appears In New Forms

New looking in the leather furniture field are desks and Parsons tables, not merely leather-inlaid but completely covered in leather.

Leather upholstery combines with woods or metals for distinctive sofas and couches. Then there are wood or metal benches, leather-cushioned.

Upholstery leathers this spring include cowhide, calf, suede, embossed and printed textures, patents and others, in a wide variety of colors.

Ecology Series Starts Thursday Evening At The College Of Marin

"Spaceship Love It Or Leave It," a lecture series sponsored by the College of Marin community services department, Planned Parenthood of Marin, Zero Population Growth of Marin, the Marin Ecology Center and the Marin Conservation League will begin Thursday at 8 p.m. at Olney Hall of the College.

"Contraception for Teenagers," the first lecture will be given by Dr. Harvey Kaplan, director of the Planned Parenthood teen clinic in Alameda County and Dr. Kathryn Kirkman, director of the Marin teen clinic.

The second lecture Feb. 25, at 8:30 p.m. in Olney Hall, "Population and Politics" will be given by Rep. Paul "Pete" McCloskey (R-San Mateo), who will focus on the government's role in population planning.

"An Ecology Center and the Community" will be presented March 11 at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall. The Marin Ecology Center will present a series of short films and discussions, including "Recycling" with David Stebbins and Benjamin Blades; "Alternative Life Styles" with Bruce Benedetti and Jerry Kresy; "The Baldwin Channel — Our Very Own Crisis" with Pat Heffernan.

"A Total Environment — A Total Involvement: Who Can Do, How Can Do, What Can Do"? is scheduled March 25th at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall. Harold Gregg, executive director of the Marin Conservation League, and spokesman for conservation in Marin is the lecturer of the evening.

A SYMPOSIUM on "the Abortion Issue" will be held Wednesday from 4 to 9 p.m. at Guzman Hall of Dominican College. Charles Carroll, chaplain for faculty and students at the University of California Medical Center and executive director of the Center for Human Values in the Health Sciences, will lead a panel and small group discussions.

The evening will include a dinner break at 6 p.m. and other speakers on legal, medical and psychological aspects of abortion.

THE MARIN Chapter of Clipped Wings will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m., at the San Marin home of Mrs. Jon Anderson, 49 Las Tardes Ct., Novato. They will see a film about the 747 jet and some home movies taken at Clipped Wings social events in the past three years.

RAYMOND J. HEBEL, Social Service Supervisor of St. Vincent's School for Boys will be guest speaker at the Marin Country Club Garden Club meeting at 1 p.m. Monday at the country club in Novato.

Each member of the garden club will bring cookies to be distributed to the boys at the school onValentine's Day. Mrs. B. K. Varney and Dr. Geraldine Mendlesohn, chairmen of garden therapy, will deliver the cookies to the school.

Mrs. Kenneth Borchardt is president of the garden club, and hostesses for the meeting are Mmes. Chester MacPhee, Edward Rifkind and Ward Humphries.

MEMBERS OF the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley will stage their annual Jinks party Thursday following a 12:30 p.m. luncheon at the clubhouse.

Mrs. Dale Starkey is chairman for the party, which will follow a "Through the Picture Tube" theme with members in costume and participating in skits inspired by television personalities and events and commercials.

Following a grand march, prizes will be awarded for the best costumes and shows with a special prize offered for "something which has never been done before."

Assisting Mrs. Starkey are Mrs. Harry Smith, stage manager, and Mrs. Jack Shapiro, music director. Preceding the luncheon punch will be served by Mmes. Hyman Krongrad, Robert Morgan and Richard Rider.

Luncheon chairmen are Mmes. William S. Hogan and Rowland Shepardson, assisted by Mmes. James Ballard, Andrew Baxes, Douglas Blackford Mills Calahan, Clare Farrell and Granville S. Keith.

NAN SHENG Lin will be guest speaker at the Officers Wives Club Luncheon at the officers club at Hamilton Air Force Base Thursday. A social hour will be held at noon followed by luncheon at 1 p.m.

Lin will speak on the ideologies of Mao-Tse-Tung. Lin received a B.A. degree from National University , a master's from the University of South Carolina and Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania. He was part-time editor and manager in the New York office of the Pan-America Chinese Press in 1958 and 1959. Now an assistant professor of history at Sonoma State College, he was formerly an instructor in history at the University of California at Davis and Elkins College in West Virginia, University of New Brunswick and the University of British Columbia.

Wives of officers of the 4661st Material will be hostesses. Mrs. Donald Todd is chairman, Mrs. Robert Fromm is in charge of table decorations and prizes and Mrs. A. H. Bledsoe, reservations.

BEGINNING CANOE lessons for adults will be offered by the YWCA starting Thursday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., at the Marin County Civic Center lagoon.

Twenty hours of instruction will be given according to Ann Dwyer, instructor, with a day's trip on the Russian River as the final session. Basic canoeing strokes and the handling of a canoe will be stressed.

Through the co-operation of teh American Red Cross, members may work toward receiving a Red Cross basic canoe card. Enrollment is limited so that participants may receive considerable individual attention. Canoes and paddles will be furnished.

A VALENTINE party is planned by Star of the Sea Institute 97, Yll, of Sausalito following its 8 p.m. meeting Tuesday in the Sausalito Star of the Sea Church's parish hall.

Chairman for the party is Miss Catherine Grinsell.

PRESS GUIDE IS AVAILABLE

A guide for press chairmen of organizations interested in getting news to the Marin Women's Section of the Independent-Journal is available at the San Rafael main office and the Novato, Mill Valley and Southern Sonoma I-J offices.

The booklet, "Getting News Into Your Newspaper," is issued as a service of the Independent-Journal Women's Section to assist press chairmen for women's organizations.

The guide explains policies of coverage, how to prepare news stories and meeting notices, and the special stories and features emphasized by the section.

The booklets at the San Rafael office may be obtained from the switchboard on the main floor.

Lund-Yeats Vows Said In Mill Valley Church

Debbie Yeats became the bride of Mark Alan Lund Sunday at the United Methodist Church in Mill Valley. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Yeats of Corte Madera and his parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clifford S. Lund of San Rafael.

Maid of honor was Mary Louise Yeats of Corte Madera, the bride's sister. Bridesmaids were Patty Erickson of El Cerrito, Mrs. Mary Jo Cretti of Kentfield and Jill Gobershock of Mill Valley.

Steve Lund of San Rafael, the bridegroom's brother was best man. Ushers were Jeffrey of San Rafael, also Mark's brother, Skip Platz of Fort Ord and William Haeling of Sacramento.

A reception was held at Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club and the couple left on a wedding trip to Los Angeles and Mexico and then skiing in the Sierra. They will live in Sacramento where both are students at Sacramento State College.

Debbie is also the sister of Sally Ann Yeats of Corte Madera.

The bridegroom has one sister, Susie Lund of San Rafael. He is a graduate of Terra Linda High School. His local grandmother is Mrs. Leslie P. Lund of San Francisco.

Clever Accessories Can Spark Up A Winter House

Season by season, people may revamp their personal wardrobes to a considerable extent.

But the home's fashion wardrobe isn't changed that often. It wouldn't be sensible — too much expense, too much upheaval.

That's the why of home accessories. Because, even when major furnishings aren't changed, adding accents can create quite a difference.

Take a plump and plushy floor pillow, for instance, or a pedestal table that's an art object in itself. Either or both could help make a room look new.

Ideas for accessorizing the home emphasize contrast between styles — modern, traditional, rustic, provincial and all the other designs for decorating.

For instance, modern lamps and lighting fixtures blend with traditional furniture, just as abstract paintings have often been used to dramatize otherwise traditional settings.

Paintings are joined by prints, statuary and three-dimensional plaques, in wall decor.

Shaped along a curve are many coffee and occasional tables. Elephant-legs tables, for example, add substance and soft lines when used as room accents.

Ornamental pedestal bases are topped by circles or squares of furniture-grade crystal, in table styles to complement traditional, Mediterranean, modern and mixed decorating schemes.

Norris Rawles Claims A Bride

Barbara Phyllis Pieri and Norris Merrill Rawles Jr. were married in Napa Jan. 29.

A reception at the Silverado Country Club in Napa followed the ceremony. The couple left on a skiing trip to Mt. Hood, Ore., They will live in Mill Valley.

The bride is a graduate of St. Vincent's Ferrer High School in Vallejo and Napa Junior College. She is an X-ray technician at St. Mary's Hospital in San Francisco and the sister of Joanne, Susan and Robert Pieri of Napa. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pieri of Napa.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Rawles of San Rafael, is a graduate of San Rafael High School. He attended the college of Marin and is employed by the Marin Municipal Water District. Jeffrey Rawles of Kentfield is his brother.

ON BEING BLACK

How Studying Trigonometry Can Be Relevant To Survival

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

A milk-truck driver once spoke of what he found particularly interesting about his job. His route was in the inner city and in addition to the business acumen he was acquiring, he liked the hustle and bustle of being right in the midst of humanity — of being close to the brother on the street.

Even though he was very observant of what was going on around him, he never failed to check out the skyline. He found that from certain flat-land spots in the city, one could see fantastic horizons — the Golden Gate Bridge, Telegraph Hill or maybe the Pacific Ocean.

On his days off, he often would take his family to these spots or go exploring himself.

I am reminded of the horizons of Mike, the milk-truck driver, when some young blacks insist upon labeling an unfamiliar subject matter irrelevant and using this as an excuse for not examining or learning about it.

Indeed, probably the most used, and, of late, abused words in black circles are relevant and relate. Initially set forth by black scholars to describe a real and honest void in America's educational materials, mass media and as a means of motivating black students, the words have come to be widely misused. They have become substitutes for thought, reason and good, old common sense.

BLACK STUDIES departments have been initiated in an attempt to fill the aforementioned void. (This certainly is not an attack on the importance of these departments.) But black studies must be kept in the proper perspective.

Too many youngsters are using the "I can't relate to that — chemistry or trig" — as a copout. The question is, why not? The answer is simple. All any of us (black or white) are prepared to deal with are relevant things — things we already know about, things we are familiar with. And most blacks have had limited experiences; consequently, what is relevant is limited.

The fact of the matter is, if we limit ourselves to only what is relevant to us, there will be no growth. We will be nurturing a continuation of the restrictions that have been placed upon us for the past four centuries. How can more and more things become relevant to us if we are not exposed to the irrelevant?

Learning is relevant to survival, and there is really no such thing as preconceived relevant or irrelevant material. It is up to the individual to decide what is relevant to him. But before he can make this distinction intelligently, he must be equipped with the tools of reason and exposed to as much as possible. Relevancy is an aftereffect.

IT APPEARS that the real challenge lies in learning to relate to the irrelevant. And young blacks can dare to be adventurous. After all, we're still pioneers; we still have frontiers.

Life for everyone is potentially hazardous, with successes and failures, rewards and penalties.

Ceremony At Scripps

William Kast claimed Rebecca Ann Novak as his bride Saturday at the Senior House at Scripps College in Claremont.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Kast of Greenbrae and a student at California Institute of Technology. He is a graduate of Redwood High School. His grandparents are Mrs. V.K. Swan and Mrs. Gregory Kast of San Francisco.

Becky, as the bride is called, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Novak of Denver, Colo. She was graduated from high school in Denver and from Scripps.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Yosemite after a reception at the Senior House. They will live in Pasadena.

Light-Hearted Band Plans Free Concert

A free public concert by what is probably Marin's most unusual musical aggregation — the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District Non-Marching Band — will be performed Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the San Rafael High School auditorium.

Founded in 1958 under the guidance of its director, Joe Curatilo, head of music for the Dixie School District, the band consists principally of 60 non-professional Marin musicians.

"It turned out to be a band," says Curatilo, "because at the initial meeting no violin players showed up. We had to give it a name and decided our most basic common tie was living at that time in the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District. Non-marching was included in the title since most members had had it up to here with marching."

Occupations of the musicians range from physicians, plumbers and secretaries to astrologers, police inspectors and housewives. They wear long laboratory coats bearing the band's insignia — a crossed mop and plumber's friend in a circle.

"Music played runs the gamut from classical to pops," Curatilo explained, "and occasionally we play a whole program of standard 'turkeys' just for kicks. But don't get the wrong idea. We may sound like a clown band, but we produce some very good music."

For Monday's program the band will play "Sunburst," Osterling; "City Spectrums," Niehaus; "Prelude and Fugue in G Minor," J. S. Bach; "Perpetuum Mobile," Johann Strauss; some marches and selections from Cy Coleman's "Sweet Charity."

Featured will be a clarinet choir playing MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose" and such popular favorites as "Up, Up and Away," and "By the Time I Get to Phoenix" sung by Burke's singers, a group of the musicians who also sing under the direction of Elaine Burke.

"Bring the kids," Curatilo urges.

Opposition To Commune Ordinance

The Mills Valley Youth Commission has adopted a resolution opposing enactment of a proposed anti-commune ordinance by the city council, the second city-appointed body to come out against the measure.

Secretary Mark S. Noguchi reported commissioners voted Wednesday to ask the city council not to amend the city's zoning ordinance to prohibit more than five unrelated persons from living together in a single family zone. The vote was 5-0, with three abstentions.

The city planning commission on Jan. 25 voted 6-1 to ask the council to drop the ordinance, which it called "discriminatory, possibly unconstitutional and difficult to enforce."

Commissioners also voted to try to establish a police ride-along program under which Mill Valley youths would take part in patrols by Mill Valley policemen.

Noguchi said the commission endorsed the program and other such police-community relations programs.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from the California and National Parent-Teacher Association magazines and the Parent's Magazine unless otherwise noted. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael Library.

FAMILY

"Aristocats" — Very clever, delightful musical animated feature in the best Disney tradition about a high society cat who inherits a fortune and the villanous butler and his plans.

"Niok, Orphan Elephant" — Charming story of a baby elephant who is befriended by a native boy. Photography, customs and rituals of Cambodian people adds interest.

"Twelve Chairs" — Slapstick historical comedy about family jewels that were hidden in a chair before the revolution in Russia. Motivated by pure greed the frantic search provides a delightfully entertaining treat. Don't miss it.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Anne of A Thousand Days" — Magnificently staged and cast historical drama of the thousand days of courtship, marriage, trial and beheading of Anne Boleyn.

"Assassination Bureau" — A wittily directed rollicking comedy spoof of international intrigue in the 1900s. Delightful absurd chase through capitols of Europe is inspired by a Jack London story.

"Borsalino" — French gangster film about the 30s shows the violent exterminating practices of eliminating competition. The gory violence is almost continuous. Lavishly detailed sets produces a self conscious campy effect.

"Fools" — Two lonely people, one married, chance to meet and fall in love while exploring San Francisco. An interesting background and script make this romantic film entertaining. Some sex scenes well handled.

"Take The Money and Run" — Woody Allen's fans will love this hilarious farce that pokes fun at a little sad sack and the foibles of the world around him as he tries to climb the crooked ladder to dishonest success.

"You Only Live Twice" — In Japan James Bond does a workman-like job of probing volcanic craters to discover launching pad of a missile that is swallowing up U.S. and Russian space ships. Usual quota of girls, gunfights and gadgets.

"Z" — Remarkable film about a political assassination. A powerful combination of action and suspense providing profound insights into today's troubled politics. English subtitles.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say adults only)

"I Love My Wife" — Satirical comedy about sexual activities of young marrieds. Very well defined characterizations. Not a profound film but pleasantly entertaining. (Motion Picture Herald).

"Lovers and Other Strangers" — Amusing and touching story about what happens to friends and family of two young people when they decide to marry. Some nudity.

"Thunderball" — This time James Bond is underwater in the Bahamas trying to locate a NATO training plane and two atomic bombs. Sex is casual and salacious. Unpalatable cruelty is passed off as "spoof". Many amazing gadgets and much, much violence.

ADULTS ONLY

"Brewster McCloud" — A bawdy black comedy that is part cartoon, partly an essay on modern rudeness and definitely a cinematic circus, with human nature as its major satirical concern. (Motion Picture Daily).

"Five Easy Pieces" — Free-form portrait of an exile from a highbrow musical family who cops out of a routine lower middle class existence. Explicit sex and frank dialogue.

"Joe" — Chilling but excellent tragi-comedy about our troubled society. Two men form an unlikely alliance founded on their envy and hatred of today's youth. Language and sex scenes are shockingly bold and violence of the ending will haunt the viewer.

"Last Summer" — Powerful drama which boldly illustrates the destructive effects of affluent materialistic society on its offspring. Two wealthy cynical teenage boys and two girls spend a summer of fun and sex games on an island that ends on a note of tragedy.

"What Do You Say To A Naked Lady" — Allen Funt brings the situation to the screen of the reactions of unsuspecting passersby to a naked woman. Some moments are humorous but generally it is just smut.

"Where's Poppa" — A vulgar black comedy presents an outragious picture of a monstrous mother and her guilt ridden harassed son. Wild scenes of rape, nudity, heavily sprinkled with gutter talk are unstrained and brutally frank and may prove offensive to some.

Consumer Group Invites Complaints

Consumers with complaints have been invited by the Marin Consumer Association to a meeting of its grievance-action council at 8 p.m. Thursday at Redwood High School, Larkspur.

The council's announcement of the meeting promised it will act on legitimate grievances, which it said now have no voice in Marin.

State Told Ecologists Hitting Basic Concerns

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Conservation campaigners "will not go away, because their basic concerns are legitimate," the state Board of Agriculture was told yesterday.

Robert M. Pratt, Los Angeles, Southern California regional coordinator for the state Department of Agriculture, said the membership of conservationist organizations is "expanding rapidly."

A member of the Sierra Club, Pratt said that group's membership has been growing at a 25 per cent annual rate.

He cautioned the board to remember "that we are using the environmental movement to achieve ends which concern us in agriculture.

"For example, the preservation of prime agricultural land can only be achieved with the support of persons and organizations concerned with open space and the protection of the natural environment."

"I can assure you that the environmental organizations and concerned, active individuals, will not go away, because their basic concerns are legitimate," he said.

Pratt said that while many conservation groups are expert in specific fields, they have lately moved "into the general environment" and "found themselves in areas where they did not have this expertise and they have sometimes been led astray by the loudest advocates who were not necessarily the best informed."

"Meanwhile, I ask you not to judge all environmentalists by the lunatic fringe. Even in the Sierra Club, we admit to our lunatic fringe, and there are strident individuals who are damaging the cause we support."

Officials To Tour Housing

The Corte Madera City Council, Planning Commission and Board of Design tomorrow will tour various residential developments financed by E.C. Harter and Odenthal Investment Co.

The company has proposed a 642-unit residential development on county lands near East Corte Madera and hinted it will ask the land be annexed to the town.

Tomorrow's tour, sponsored by the company, will leave Corte Madera at 9:30 a.m. It will include stops at Peacock Gap. Walnut Creek Oakland and Concord. The group will return at 4:30 p.m.

FEMINIST PROTEST

Feud Grows On Feudal Outlook

By MARY LEYDECKER

It all started 13 months ago with the "jocular" remark, "That's just like a woman."

Although San Rafael attorney Paul Camera would just as soon forget his comments which led to a year-long battle with Women's Liberation activists at Hastings College, he still retains his somewhat feudal outlook toward the feminine half of the population.

Termed a "sexist" by women's libbers, Camera, who teaches one class at the law school, has been the object this week of a protest movement by a group of law students, mostly women, who want him fired.

Camera, a handsome former football player with a ready grin, showed up at the San Francisco law school Tuesday to begin teaching after a semester's absence.

He was greeted by about 100 protestors carrying placards outside the school. This was followed by some 15 persons marching into his class on "domestic relations." Standing firm, however, Camera said he refused to let the militants disrupt his class.

In his San Rafael law office yesterday, Camera traced his feud with the feminists.

It all started last year, he said, "when a young lady left my class precipitously." He said she was angry because he would not call on her in class because he knew she wanted to discuss her "blue book" (examination) with him in front of the 149 other students during class-time.

After she flounced out, Camera felt obliged to make a few remarks to the class which included such statements as, "Women tend to be overemotional."

"That was on a Thursday," he reminisced. "Before that I had never heard of a women's liberation movement. Sunday morning I picked up the paper and read of a demonstration in Berkeley — which was the first time I had heard of the feminist movement."

Ruefully recalling his "wrong timing," Camera then described how he for a second time offended the campus feminists.

"One day," he recalled, "I asked a young man in class to take his hat off." Although the young man politely and quietly complied, the request apparently annoyed a woman student. The woman made a gesture as if to take her blouse off, he said, apparently in protest over the hat command.

This was not what led Camera to throw her out of class, however. It was her "taking me on" verbally during class time, he said.

The young woman, Zona Sage, a 26-year-old second year law student, has apparently not forgotten nor forgiven Camera for her ouster.

Camera feels she "is behind this whole thing," to such an extent that during Tuesday's demonstration in her class Mrs. Sage was accompanied by her little daughter, aged 3 or 4, according to Camera.

"She's certainly indoctrinating her young," he commented about the child.

Mrs. Sage is presumably especially enraged that Camera, who has made such comments as ' 'women don't make good trial lawyers," is teaching domestic relations, instead of the criminal law course he conducted last year.

(The law professor explained that his course covers marriage dissolution laws.)

He also went on to say that he feels the law school administration has ''bent over backwards,'' even going to the extent of offering a class in the same subject taught by a woman professor. A woman, of whom Camera said, "She is very capable."

The former Stanford football player admits, however, that he does not share women's lib views. "I was raised in a patriarchal household," he said, adding that his father and his father before him probably felt even more strongly about women's roles.

"The women were treated well in my family," he said smilingly of his upbringing in a San Francisco North Beach Italian family.

His wife, Barbara, a nurse whom he met when he was hospitalized with a broken jaw received in a football game, "is a wife and a mother," he said firmly.

Although Camera feels the law school's women libbers have "distorted what actually happened," he added, "I didn't know they felt so strongly about this . . ."

SEXTIST? — San Rafael attorney Paul Camera, who teaches one course at Hastings College in San Francisco, has locked horns for over a year with lady law students who claim he is an unreconstructed male chauvinist — and worse. (Independent-Journal photo)

2 Candidates File For College Board

An account executive for a securities firm and the former administrator of Center Medical Hospital in Kentfield filed candidacy papers yesterday for the Marin Junior College District board.

They are Joseph A. Gereghty Jr., account executive with Gardiner, Gries and Co., San Rafael, and Donald C. Barksdale, formerly head of Center Medical Hospital and now president of Intermed Associates of San Rafael.

Meanwhile, college board member Harry J. Moore of Novato announced he wouldn't seek reelection. Moore was previously undecided about his candidacy.

Moore, principal of Hill Junior High School in Novato, will step down after one term, having been elected in 1967. He joins trustee Robert E. Rogers of Tiburon in leaving the board.

Two other incumbents whose terms are expiring, Elizabeth M. Deedy and Charles Gray, have not filed candidacy papers yet, although Gray has indicated he will run again.

Filing for the board Wednesday was William L. Sisk of Novato, district sales manager for an insurance firm.

Gereghty, 33, lives at 3 Laurel Grove Avenue, Kentfield, and Barksdale, also 33, at 5 Upper Oak Drive, San Rafael.

They were the sole candidates to file yesterday for Marin school board seats up at the April 20 election.

Burton Hat In Ring For Councilman

Park and Recreation Commissioner George S. Burton, who lost a bid for San Rafael city councilman two years ago, will run again. He filed yesterday for the April 20 municipal election.

Burton, 42, of 19 Hacienda Court is general manager of San Rafael Sales, a commercial truck dealership.

He is a native of San Rafael and was graduated from the College of Marin and San Francisco State College. He is a member of Greater San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, President of San Rafael American Little League, member of the County Council American Legion Post 37, and the vice president of the executive board of directors of St. Raphael Men's Club.

Burton is the third candidate to file for the two city council seats up for election. Already in the running are incumbent Fred E. Jensen and Planning Commissioner Thomas R. O'Toole. Incumbent John A. Miskimen has picked up nomination papers, but has not yet filed.

Running for mayor is incumbent C. Paul Bettini and Richard A. Raznikov of 241 Union Street, who have filed. Arthur F. Dieters, unsuccessful candidate in the last mayoral race has announced his intention to run but has not filed.

City Clerk Marion A. Grady, City Treasurer Angelina J. Soldavini and City Atty. Fred J. Robbins Jr. have filed for reelection. No other candidates have filed for these positions.

Filings close at noon next Thursday.

Bus Service To Replace An Early Commute Ferry

The 6 a.m. ferry from Sausalito to San Francisco will be replaced Monday with a bus because of poor patronage, the Golden Gate Bridge District announced yesterday.

The bus will leave the Sausalito ferry terminal at 6:08 a.m. and arrive in the financial district at Battery and Sacramento streets at 6: 30 a.m.

Deletion of the dawn ferry run will allow addition of a midday run that had been dropped to give time for maintenance on the ferry. Under the new schedule, the maintenance will be done before the first morning run.

In addition to the changes in ferry schedules Monday, a new commuter feeder bus service to the ferry will begin in Tamalpais Valley at Maple and Marin avenues. It will run along Shoreline Highway.

The following week, on Feb. 16, a second new commuter feeder bus to Sausalito will operate from downtown Mill Valley and along East Blithedale Avenue to Highway 101. It will replace the Mill Valley feeder bus to the Tiburon ferry.

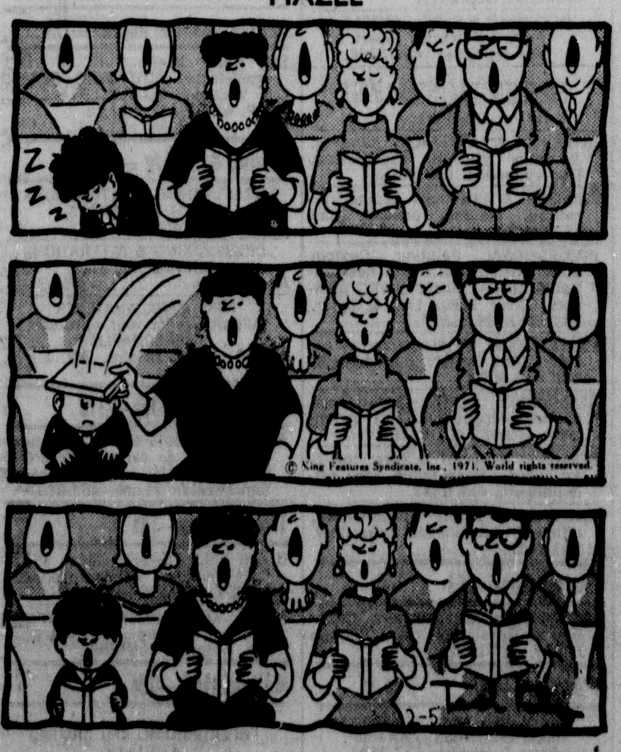
Donald White, transit manager for the bridge district, said the 6 a.m. Sausalito ferry had been carrying only 16 to 20 commuters.

Under the new winter schedule, weekday ferry departures from Sausalito will be at 7:15, 8:25, 9:45, and 11:05 a.m., and 12:25, 2, 3:30, 4:50, 6:05 and 7:20 p.m.

Departures from San Francisco will be at 7:50, 9:05, 10:25, and 11:45 a.m., and 1:15, 2:45, 4:15, 5:30 and 6:45 p.m.

The winter schedule will operate through April. The summer schedule, beginning on May 1, will add two round trips in the evening.

HAZEL



Fogarty Out Of Credence

BERKELEY (UPI) — Tom Fogerty, a member of the Creedence Clearwater Revival, has left the rock group to spend more time with his wife and four children.

"Tom is not retiring," said Jack Rohrer, the group's press officer. "He's just not going to tour anymore. There's no rift. Nobody's mad at anybody."

He added Tom would "go on as a single performer."

In the past 2 1-2 years, the Creedence has sold $86 million worth of records. The other three members — John Fogerty, Doug kgufford and Stu Cook — will continue to cut records and make tours.

CONTROVERSIES AIRED

A Candid Tape Recording

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Returning from a late-hour closed session Wednesday night, the Larkspur City Council discovered itself alone at last, press and public having departed under the impression — the mistaken impression — that no further business was to be conducted.

Councilman Neil R. Brixon, noting the seat occupied earlier by an Independent-Journal reporter, and casting a glance at the city's tape recorder declared: "There's no I-J man here now and I hope they turn that goddamn thing off."

However, the tape continued to record the meeting.

Topics discussed, some hitherto only hinted at, included the city's planning commission and an accusation that it is harrassing developer Niels J. Schultz Jr., the proposed Central Marin ferry terminal and expressions of doubt it would ever be Larkspur's, a move to themselves $150 per month each and support of a fire department policy to bill businessmen and fire alarm makers $150 for false alarm.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst disclosed that the offer from a Corte Madera property owner to give the Golden Gate Bridge District 25 acres for a Central Marin ferry terminal "is giving us trouble and plenty of it."

Of concern to Bathurst, besides losing the ferry terminal to rival Corte Madera, is the traffic problem a terminal on the Domenic Mauzy property would create for Larkspur's Magnolia Avenue.

Brixon, agreeing, detailed a conversation he had had with Louis H. Baar, chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, for whom Brixon had been Larkspur campaign manager three years ago.

Brixon said he had asked Baar if the supervisors plan to take a position on the ferry terminal and was told the county board wouldn't "unless it's forced to."

"This is one I'd just as soon side-step on . . . There's no pressure yet and until such time I'll do nothing," Brixon quoted Baar as saying.

"He asked 'do you people want the site?' " Brixon said adding that Baar commented "Well really the only one making waves on this thing has been (Corte Madera Mayor Edward W.) Colthurst."

Brixon said he told the supervisor that Larkspur wanted the terminal as much as Corte Madera, "but we are not about to bow to blackmail and give away 25 acres of ground."

Bathurst noted that on Wednesday the Bridge District board probably would narrow the number of sites to two and could make a final selection.

The council, riding easily over the objections of Mayor Benton A. Sifford, passed 4-to-1 a resolution of intent to award themselves a $150 monthly salary, beginning July 1.

The motion was made by Councilman Alfred J. Malvino who sought assurances from other councilmen that the intent of the resolution was also to notify the public.

"We are going to let the public know, right?" he asked and received assurances from Councilman Earl J. O'Grady that the resolution represented that intent.

Mayor Sifford objected: "We're so short on taxes now, we are concerned with zoning C-2 to C-1 (higher density retail business) . . . I can not see the council or myself taking $150 per month as salary."

The council also engaged in a lengthy discussion on the fire department's policy of charging owners and dealers of faulty fire alarms $150 for each false alarm.

The discussion ranged to the possibility of an ordinance controlling dealers and possibly charging homeowners for false burglar alarms.

Billing homeowners for police costs involved in answering such alarms was rejected, however, when Police Chief Howard C. Clark stressed that residents should be encouraged to install the alarms.

"You mean the city is going to provide that service free of charge," asked Councilman Malvino. "I disagree, that service is service above and beyond the call of duty."

The council, however, shied away from Malvino's position endorsing only the fire department policy.

The council's final topic was a report of impressions Councilman O'Grady received during a recent meeting of the Planning Commission.

"I heard a lot of things that night," he began. "First, the commission convened at 8:09 p.m. and spend the next hour and eight minutes on the Schultz application (for an apartment building adjacent to Corte Madera Creek.")

He said the commission next spent only 33 minutes on two similar applications, praising one applicant on completeness of his plan.

"This irked me because you're (the commissioners are) degrading one guy and upgrading another," he continued. "This man (Schultz) went through a lot that I would have objected to.

"If they don't like Schultz, they (the commissioners) should tell him to his face . . . and get it out in the open."

(Schultz is the major property owner along Corte Madera Creek and is credited with building much of Larkspur. Development of his creekside properties, as well as those of others, has stirred controversy between the council and commission.)

With the tape recorder continuing to roll, O'Grady concluded: "I want to go on record. If they have anything against the man I want to know what it is.'

The closed session was held by the council to meet with the city attorney to discuss means of avoiding litigation in negotiations with a property owner for a site for a new police station.

The city would like to acquire the property at 426-428 Magnolia Avenue, owned by Lenna Fendler of Jackson, and convert existing medical offices into police quarters.

When the council returned, it found itself alone. It had earlier taken all items on the agenda requiring staff assistance and then released certain staff members declaring other agenda items could be "carried over." The council apparently meant until after the closed session but it was taken by the press and apparently the public to mean another meeting.

Planning Staff Picks 2 Sites For Possible Ferry Terminal

A recommendation that the Central Marin ferry terminal be located either at Larkspur or San Quentin Point will be offered Monday to the Marin County Planning Commission by its staff.

Robert L. Harrison, county transportation study engineer, said yesterday the two sites should be given priority over those offered by Corte Madera because of less impact on the environment and better "operation characteristics."

Four sites have been recommended as possible locations for the terminal. All are now being studied by the Golden Gate Bridge District board which will operate the terminal. The sites are: the Hutchinson Co. quarry property in Larkspur north of Corte Madera Creek, The Heerdt varshland property in Corte Madera south of and adjacent to the creek, the Domenic Mauzy property in Corte Madera south of the Heerdt property, and a site recommended by conservationists on San Quentin Point at the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

Conservation groups have registered strong opposition to the Hutchinson and Heerdt sites, maintaining they will damage vital marshlands and upset feeding cycles for birds.

Harrison said the Hutchinson site will be recommended because it offers the best possibilites from a ferry boat-terminal operations standpoint.

The San Quentin Point site, he continued, will be recommended because it does least damage to the bay's environment.

The Larkspur and San Quentin Point sites "best meet the critera" established by his office, he said, while Corte Madera's south site (Mauzy's) "marginally meets" the criteria and the north site (Heerdt's) is "totally unacceptable."

Other criteria include offshore considerations (ferry boat and terminal operation), access to the sites, development capabilities of surrounding lands, community and environmental impact.

The planners will meet at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center.

Any recommendation reached by the commission will be forwarded to the county board of supervisors which in turn will forward it to the bridge district board.

Louis H. Baar, chairman of the board of supervisors, has been reported as telling a Larkspur city councilman he would just as soon "side-step" the question of where the terminal should go.

Meanwhile, Larkspur officials, worried over bridge district acceptance of an offer of free land in Corte Madera, are studying litigation pending between the property owner, Domenic Mauzy, and the Marin Flood Control District.

Testing Of Transit Plan Asked

When the Golden Gate Bridge District decides on a San Francisco-to-Marin transit system, Marin's City-County Planning Council wants to test the plan for local impact before the selection becomes final.

That was the consensus last night at a council meeting at Redwood High School.

The council would test the plan against studies conducted by the county planning department into future transit needs. Planning officials cautioned last year that land use plans in the distant future would permit a greater population that transit planning could handle.

The bridge district has completed public hearings on five alternate systems and must pick one of those for presentation to the state legislature.

The City-County Planning Council also:

TOURISM — Accepted the $12,500 tourism report from Economic Research Associates of Los Angeles without committing itself on the recommendations made in the report. The study firm recommended a program to build resort centers and encourage overnight visitors.

LARKSPUR — Approved Larkspur's application for a $35,000 federal grant to update its general plan.

MEETING — Set 8 p.m. March 4 in the faculty lounge of Redwood High School for its next session.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

How To Combat Old Age: Smile, Eat Well, Get Plenty Of Rest

Most of us are not aware of the aging process until we reach 50, even though some of us show evidence of mileage sooner than others. Any loss of Physical attractiveness can be offset with personal cleanliness, attention to the teeth and hair, and proper clothing and appropriate cosmetics. Fatigue from too little sleep or dissipation increases the lines in the face and dulls the expression.

Cheerful smiles can take 10 years off the indicudual's chronological age. But to have this effect, a smile must be genuine and come from within. Every age has its compensation so forget the "good old" days and be young with the new ways.

As we get older, the mind, like the body, undergoes changes, too. It is maddening to forget what happened a few hours or days ago, even though we seem to remember things that happened years ago. This is easily corrected by writing it down immediately or doing what you were going to do before it slips your mind.

With increasing age, many people have more and more trouble concentrating on what is being read or on a familiar game or activity. Another tendency is to collect, save, or hide money and sentimental or worthless articles. There also may be a lack of ambition to do things or go places. In some instances, this stems from being too tired. Fatigue may also explain a loss of interest in current events.

Many oldsters become temperamental, impatient, easy to anger, quarrelsome, and have frequent crying spells. Some begin to use bad language which they never used before. When this stage is reached, they neglect personal cleanliness. They repeat the same old story to the same people at the same hour.

The best plan is to remain active, eat a balanced diet, get adequate rest, and see the physician when unusual medical problems arise. Practical vision and hearing should be maintained even though this requires an operation for cataracts or the purchase of a hearing aid.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

FAN-SHAPED MEMBRANE

D.P. writes: Does a pterygium have to be removed by operation?

REPLY

This triangular fold of membrane that grows out from the inner corner of the eye is on the surface. It does no harm unless it extends over the pupil and blocks vision. Surgical treatment is then advised.

GOUT AND PROTEIN

J. K. writes: Is it dangerous for a person suffering from gout to eat proteins?

REPLY

No, but certain proteins (purines) may bring on an attack. Our leaflet on gout can be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

PAR AT 82

A reader writes: My wife is 82 and forgetful — except about past events. She dwells on the past, which I find most annoying. What would cause this type of problem?

REPLY

Poor circulation, At her age, this is par for the course.

INFLAMMED VEIN IN ARM

P. L. writes: Is it possible to develop phlebitis in the arm?

REPLY

Yes, but inflammation of these veins is less common than the veins of the legs.

Deadline For Registration Renewal Today

Today is the deadline for motorists to renew their 1971 vehicle registration, the state Department of Motor Vehicles cautioned.

Mail renewals must be postmarked by midnight tonight. For in-person renewals, state motor vehicle offices at 75 Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera, and at 76 Oak Street, Petaluma, will be open until 5 p.m.

Failure to renew by today will mean a 10 per cent penalty for the first 30 days for passenger vehicles and higher assessments for commercial vehicles.

Renewal instructions from the Department of Motor Vehicles said the deadline was Feb. 4, but that is in error.

12 Youths On Honor List

Twelve Marin youths — three with straight A or 4.0 averages — are on the dean's honor list for the fall quarter at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

Students with straight A averages are: Carol G. Mason of San Rafael, Terry Theiss of Mill Valley, and Michael L. Tierney of Fairfax.

Students with a B plus or 3.5 and better are: Grace E. Fielder of Mill Valley, Leslie F. Gallez of Mill Valley, Stephanie L. Christensen of San Anselmo, Nancy G. Dodd of San Rafael, Linda H. Eastes of San Rafael, Wendy A. Wolterding of Sausalito, Pamela Blair of Terra Linda, Laura J. Brandt of Tiburon, and Timothy G. McLaughlin of Tiburon.

Baltimore Gets Old New York Cabs

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Old New York taxis never die—they move to Baltimore.

A taxi company owner seeking a fare increase told the public service commission Wednesday that about half of the 1,150 licensed taxis in the Baltimore area were bought as hand-me-downs from New York taxi companies to save money.

Ecology Group May Get Funds

The Fairfax Festival Committee may give the proceeds of the next festival to an ecology group in return for labor, according to a committee spokesman.

Mrs. William Beighley said the group last night considered giving all or part of the proceeds from the September fair to three groups: the Marin Ecology Center, the Louise A. Boyd Science Museum and the Fairfax Park and Recreation Commission.

She said a representative of each group told how the money —possibly $2,000 — would be used. No decision was made by the committee pending election of officers Feb. 18, she said.

Tuna Safe, FDA Claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Food and Drug Administration says the problem of mercury contamination in tuna is not as bad as once feared; but swordfish, it said, is still another story.

The agency Thursday declared the U.S. tuna supply free of excess mercury. It said a nationwide survey showed only 3.6 per cent of the canned tuna supply contained mercury in amounts higher than the 0.5 parts per million safety limit.

The FDA said the limit is sufficient to offer "a broad range of safety and is adequate to protect consumers."

TV REVIEW

Another Knock At The '30s

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — For the second week in a row, the non-commercial television network's "NET Playhouse" delivered a roundhouse blow Thursday night to the currently-popular notion that the 1930s were a romantic period.

Last week, "NET Playhouse" offered Arthur Miller's "A Memory of Two Mondays," a study of the bleak lives of blue-collar workers in the 1930s. Thursday night, the presentation was Millard Lampell's "Hard Travelin'," a collection of vignettes about "the exploiters and the exploited" of the depression years.

This was the second of six programs in which "NET Playhouse" is taking a look at the 1930s through the works of playwrights and filmmakers. Next Thursday's scheduled presentation is "Hollywood and Its Movies," an examination of filmtown's growth during the 1930s and its impact on American life. There are planned interviews with persons who were part of that Hollywood scene, including Edward G. Robinson, Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell, producer Hal Wallis, directors Mervyn Leroy and William Wellman, and writers Dalton Trumbo and John Bright.

The Hollywood program next Thursday focuses on the Warner Brothers Studio, and the producer of the broadcast, David Loxton, says:

"Besides portraying the development of the Hollywood industry during the thirties, we want to capture in dramatic terms the feeling of what it was like to be a part of the Hollywood scene in those days. Movies were to people then what television is today, and we want to examine the role they played in the lives of Americans."

As for Lampell's "Hard Travelin'" Thursday night, it had by no means the polish or quality of last week's "A Memory of Two Mondays," but in its fury and passion about the underdogs of the 1930s, and their submission to delusions and dreams of the period, there was an occasional theatrical fire that hit one with impact.

Ralph Meeker, as a hard-sell con man who showed up in various episodes throughout, headed a cast which sometimes indicated more enthusiasm than smooth skill in depicting Lampell's fierce anger through dramatic sketches, satire and songs.

This was polemical drama from the viewpoint of the underside of life, with something of the effect of Brecht in its dramatized cabaret style, and a bit of the tone of Dos Passos' "U.S.A." in its vignette looks at the American dream throughout the sprawling nation.

"Hard Travelin'" was a harsh look at a system in which Lampell saw con men and hustlers move ahead, and believes in spoon-fed dreams and cliches fall by the wayside, defeated. There were film clips of the realities of the day alternating with happy-silly escapist songs that lulled the unknowing and kept them in degrading life styles while pursuing the promises of the pitchmen, political and otherwise.

The program began in the 1920s, before the crash, with Meeker as an almost evangelical symbol of the hard-selling salesmen who advocated stock market plunges as a stairway to paradise for ordinary citizens. And, as the play progressed, there were quotations from some leading public figures of the time, among them Calvin Coolidge, who observed: "The future may be better or worse."

JFK's New Portrait Upsetting To Some

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Artist Aaron Shikler painted President John F. Kennedy in a thoughtful pose —arms folded, head pensively down.

The style of the official portrait bothered some of the 350 members of a women's club who viewed the portrait and a companion portrait of the late President's wife at the White House Thursday.

"It's . . . hideous of him," Mrs. Lois DeVecchio said. "For such a vital man to be shown in such a despairing mood. It's incredible. I don't think the American people want to remember him that way."

The portraits go on display for the general public today in the East Room.

Shikler, a New York artist, said he painted Kennedy with his head bowed "not because I think of him as a martyr, but because I wanted to show him as a president who was a thinker.

"A thinking president is a rare thing. To show him thinking was the highest accolade I could give him."

Other viewers complained the portrait did not show Kennedy's eyes.

"I wanted to see the twinkle in his eyes," said Mrs. Fred Smithdeal of Winston-Salem, N.C.

"Well, everybody goes after the eyes," Shikler said. "All presidential portraits have eyes that look right at you. I wanted to do something with more meaning. I hoped to show a courage that made him humble."

The President's widow, Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, is depicted in her portrait with a wistful, faraway look in her eyes, a bouquet of white peonies behind her head. She wears a floor length champagne gown with peach tones.

Mrs. Kennedy's portrait drew mixed reactions from the women's club members. Mrs. Dilal David said she was "just thrilled with Jackie's" and another woman described it as "excellent." But many said she looked too pale and that the portrait failed to show her vibrancy.

Bistatic Radar Charting Structure Of Moon Crust

STANFORD (BW) — Stanford scientists are playing key roles in the lunar explorations by astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Edgar D. Mitchell on the moon's surface.

Both moon-walk astronauts received special training from Dean Richard H. Jahns of the Stanford School of Earth Sciences to sharpen their observations of the lunar geology.

In addition Shepard and Mitchell are performing an experiment devised by a Stanford geophysicist, Prof. Robert L. Kovach, which is designed to probe beneath the moon's surface. Besides revealing something about the underlying geologic structure, it may tell whether the moon has a "permafrost" containing water.

Finally, Stanford radio scientists H. Taylor Howard and G.Leonard Tyler, together with astronaut Stuart H. Roosa in the moon-orbiting command module, will carry out "bistatic radar" soundings of the moon which could yield radar maps of the lunar crust from its surface to considerable depth.

Dean Jahns described his trainees, Shepard and Mitchell, as "real professionals, dedicated, who want to show what a man on the moon can do that a black box can't."

The big difference between the U.S. and Soviet space programs, Jahns pointed out, is that all Russian landings have depended on instruments or machines for observations and collecting of samples.

"We have trained Shepard and Mitchell to be able to 'see' what they are looking at," he said. "There are many things you find through actual experience that can't be reported by a television picture or any kind of instrument — such things as odd shapes, sizes, or types of material or terrain.

"Only a man on the spot, for instance, can decide which samples look or feel most interesting, or whether a sample 'belongs' or seems somehow out of place."

Jahns was at the Manned Space Control Center in Houston today to help interpret the information coming in from the astronauts after their first "moon traverse." Also present were Stanford geophysicist Kovach, whose experiment was set up by the two astronauts during their first moonwalk.

It consists of three seismometers deployed in the vicinity of the lunar module. Astronaut Mitchell carried a plunger-like "thumper" which fires 22-cal. cartridges for soundings of the lunar soil. These sound waves are expected to penetrate to depths of at least 100 feet, and echoes reflected from the underlying structures, will be picked up by the seismometers and radioed back to earth.

This may tell how deep the moon's bedrock lies, or if it has a bedrock layer. Earth scientists believe the moon has a solid layer of rock beneath its surface layers of soil and rubble. It might also reveal any water frozen in the form of permafrost like that found in arctic regions. The same techniques are used to locate new oil pools on earth.

Finally, the astronauts will leave four specially designed explosive charges behind when they leave, all to be fired approximately six months later. These should give soundings as deep as 1,500 feet, and the echoes will be radioed back to earth.

The bistatic radar experiment directed by Howard consists primarily of a radar transmitter in the Apollo 14 spacecraft. When astronaut Roosa flicks a switch, it will begin sending two radio signals, one high-frequency (2,200 MHZ) and the other low-frequency (260 MHZ).

The signals will be received by two large dish antennas, the 150-foot dish at the Stanford Center for Radar Astronomy where Tyler will be listening, and the 210-foot NASA dish at Goldstone, Calif., where Howard will be stationed.

The Goldstone antenna will receive the high-frequency signals, and Stanford's dish the low-frequency ones, coming both direct from Apollo 14 and after they have bounced off the surface of the moon.

Differences between the signals received directly, and indirectly after bouncing from the moon's surface, should give a sharp picture of the crust.

The high-frequency signal, for instance, should penetrate only a few feet into the lunar soil, while the low-frequency will probe perhaps a hundred feet down. The reflected signals should give considerable information about lunar structure in depth.

Other, smaller frequencies that result from the original signals' reflections from rocks, crater walls, and other formations should give a good picture of the lunar surface itself.

While bistatic radar has been tested in earlier unmanned space probes and lunar orbiters, Howard said the Apollo 14 experiment is the first in which two signals will be transmitted simultaneously.

Since the radar results can be compared with actual photos taken during the flight of Apollo 14, it will provide a definitive test of the bistatic radar technique as well as offering an unprecedented opportunity for improving it.

Corte Madera Man Hurt In Mishap

John D. Friend, 47, of 25 Rocklyn Court, Corte Madera, was treated for multiple cuts at Marin General Hospital yesterday after his auto skidded into the center guardrail northbound on Highway 101 just south of Tamalpais Drive, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Officers said Friend was traveling between 75 and 85 miles an hour in the freeway's slow lane and swerved and braked to avoid a slower auto. They said his vehicle skidded across the highway and struck the rail about 11:45 p.m.

MMWD Hearing On Backflow Prevention

Marin Municipal Water District's public hearing on a proposed backflow prevention ordinance will be on the agenda for the district board's regular meeting Wednesday.

A story in the Jan. 14 edition of the Independent-Journal erroneously gave the hearing date as yesterday.

Inmate Flap Over Coffee

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — Between 25 and 40 inmates at the Oregon state penitentiary staged a four-hour sitdown strike in the prison kitchen Thursday in protest over shortened coffee-break times.

Robert Davis, executive assistant to Gov. Tom McCall, termed the matter "a tempest in a coffeepot," and said at no time was any violence threatened.

The strikers were inmates who normally work in the prison kitchen.

Rep. Dellums Has Some People Uptight

Berkeley Congressman Is Of Diverse Strains

By RAY MOSELEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One minute he sounds like a product of the slums, which he is: "So I start running down these problems and they say, 'Hey man, this dude's right. That's what's happening.' "

A moment later, he is using the argot of the professional social worker, which he also is: "I think there are strategies for bringing fundamental change without any pseudo-masculine effort at problem-solving through violence."

These diverse strains are apparent not only in his speech, but in his appearance: black; modified Afro hair style; thick, drooping mustache, gray at the edges; six feet four; strikingly good looking. And the clothes: wide, mod tie, dark blue shirt, Edwardian jacket, bell-bottomed trousers.

What he does not look, or sound, like is a $42,500-a-year congressman, but he is—and that has some people up tight.

He's Rep. Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif., described during the 1970 congressional campaign by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as "a radical extremist, an enthusiastic supporter of the Black Panther Party."

Some of his colleagues see him as the most radical of the new congressmen, and he doesn't take issue with that.

"It might be true," said Dellums when the subject was broached recently in an interview with UPI. "It depends on what you think of as radical.

"But I don't think the high office of vice president gives anyone the right to castigate without knowledge, to make attacks without any real awareness of who I am as a human being.

"I am not going to back away from being called a radical. If being an advocate of peace, justice and humanity toward all human beings is radical, then I'm glad to be called a radical. And if it is radical to oppose the use of 70 per cent of federal monies for destruction and war, then I am a radical."

(He speaks in the liquid accents of the ghetto, and the tempo of his speech is furious, the words tumbling out without pause for minutes at a stretch.)

"Because of Agnew, some people think I am an advocate of violence. That is patently absurd. I am opposed to violence as a method of solving disputes whether they are international or in the streets of America.

"I am an advocate of peace and nonviolence, and I don't think that's a cop-out. I think there are strategies for bringing fundamental change without any pseudo-masculine effort at problem solving through violence."

But Dellums will not renounce the Black Panthers.

"Agnew was using them as scapegoats and a way of avoiding critical problems," he said. "I see my responsibility as the protection of civil liberties of all people, and I am not going to fight just for the civil liberties of groups that have the mantle of respectability. The Panthers are not the problem in the country, they are not the issue."

Dellums, 35, represents California 7th District, which has been called the most diverse district in America. It includes the slums of west Oakland and the academic community at the University of California in Berkeley. Thirty-five per cent of the population is black, 5 per cent chicano and there also are some Orientals and Indians.

Dellums formed a coalition of all these groups to defeat one of the most liberal Democrats in Congress, Rep. Jeffery Cohelan, in the primary, then won easily over a Republican in the general election.

He says he does not intend to be like other congressmen. One measure of that is the fact that a few doors down from his outer office (newly painted in bright yellow and orange), a group of mostly long-haired, mustachioed Vietnam veterans has set up shop in office space provided by Dellums. They hope to persuade other congressmen to get behind a resolution Dellums plans to introduce, calling for a congressional inquiry into alleged U.S. war crimes in Vietnam.

Another measure of his difference is his philosophical approach to the job:

"I didn't come here to deal. I came out of a sense of idealism. The people of my district are too sophisticated to be manipulated by the notion that I can pass extraordinary legislation. But I must assume the risk of advocating bold new ideas, and I am not going to compromise my integrity or sell myself to get projects for my district."

REP. RONALD V. DELLUMS

"Somebody said the way to get along here is to go along," he said, quoting the late House Speaker Sam Rayburn. "Well, if we go along with what is happening in Washington we will never solve our problems and we will strangle ourselves in our own self-aggrandizement. I must find a way of not being perceived as some kind of sophisticated minstrel man, some kind of clown or a joke.

"I am not on a personal ego trip. But I like to think we can have a society that is a great deal better than the one we have, and hope to demonstrate that even if they beat me, they won't break me."

To some, Dellums brings to mind the young Adam Clayton Powell Jr., who came to Congress in 1945 as a fiery orator, civil rights militant and hero of the black community, but Dellums said he's too young to remember that.

He lists the great influences in his life as Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Malcolm X, Rep. Shirley Chisholm, the black congresswoman from Brooklyn, and Cesar Chavez, leader of the California farm workers Union.

Dellums' father is a former Pullman porter and now is a longshoreman. His mother is a clerical worker in a federal office. He went into the Marines in 1954 because he couldn't find a job, and later went to college on the G.I. Bill, earning bachelor's and master's degrees in social work.

"I was going to get a Ph.D. at Brandeis in social policy, but I got talked into going to a meeting to tell people why I didn't want to be a city council candidate in Berkeley, and wound up being the canddate, and won, and now I'm in Congress," he said.

He has been a social worker, a university lecturer and a private manpower consultant working with a large number of federal agencies.

"I've worked in 35 states, in almost every federal program — Model Cities, manpower, poverty programs at every level. I helped write guidelines. I am one congressman who knows how these programs work."

Because of this experience, he is contemptuous of what he calls "expedient liberalism" and condemns programs that he says only give the appearance of meeting problems.

"We develop programs to keep young people employed from July through September, as though they don't need jobs all year, just so we won't have embarrassing problems from them in the summer."

Dellums will work for more financing for such programs, but his main concern is to help end divisions in American society and try to awaken the public to what he sees as the need for change.

"We cannot talk about black people's problems, or Chicanos, or women, or youth, and separate them from the problem of the mentality that guides our decision-making process," he said.

"The silent majority is the most programmed group in America. They are programmed as to who the scapegoats are, who the enemies are, but they are not told what the real problems are.

"The blue collar people are screaming, and they are perfectly correct. They are the working poor, and we are not doing anything about it. I have talked to them, about their low incomes and meager raises; about how they are frozen into meaningless jobs because they can't transfer retirement benefits; about how their children can't go to college.

"So I start running down these problems, and they say, 'Hey man, this dude's right. That's what's happening.'"

Agnew said that Dellums "advocates bringing the walls down."

"I do advocate that," Dellums said. "I said we live in a society where the walls are very high and thick between classes, races and even sexes. We cannot achieve the society we want until we bring down the walls of racism, fear, mistrust and ignorance. When we bring them down, we will find a lot of human beings on the same plateau, with their own suffering and misery.

"But if we keep the silent majority pitted against blacks, the poor against poor, we are keeping people who desperately need to come together fighting each other. And who benefits?

"We must keep struggling to change society, to get blacks and whites working together. And I think we can do it. I hope, and I wouldn't be here if I didn't hope."

Contractor Wins Marin City Support

A Marin City contractor's plan to build 20 low and moderate income apartments in the community has won the endorsement of the Marin City Homeowners Improvement Association, secretary Flossie Berry reported.

Mrs. Berry said the association on Wednesday voted to support the proposal of contractor Alvis Allen and sons to construct the units on property owned by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Drake Avenue.

The plan has already received approval of the Marin City Council, according to chairman Samuel L. Banks. It will be presented to the Marin City Community Services District Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Manzanita Center.

The homeowners group also announced it will sponsor a slide show by Vonda Riley, a 16-year-old Marin City girl who spent last summer as an exchange student in Norway.

Mrs. Berry said the show and talk by Miss Riley will be Feb. 14 at 3 p.m. in St. Andrew's Church.

Grant To Festival

The Marin County Shakespeare Festival has received a $500 grant from the Renaissance Center in Los Angeles to help replace costumes and materials destroyed in a fire last August and for the festival's scholarship program.

THE FANS JUST LOVE IT

Buffalo hockey fans expressed delight when Eddie Shack of the Buffalo Braves (23) battled Gilles Marotte (4) and Bob Berry (18) of the Los Angeles Kings for the puck last night. Shack, known around the National Hockey League as "the entertainer," scored three goals as the Braves won, 5-2.

Zwahlen Heading To Oilers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Most football teams talk in terms of shoring up player position weaknesses, but the San Francisco Forty Niners have come up with a unique situation. They have to rebuild their offensive coaching staff for the 1971-72 season.

The Forty Niners, the highest scoring machine in the National Football League last season, lost the second half of the offensive coaching complement Thursday when Ernie Zwahlen joined Ed Hughes and the Houston Oilers.

During the 1970-71 campaign, Hughes, who left the San Francisco staff two weeks ago, handled the overall offense of the Forty Niners and Zwahlen the offensive line.

After learning of Zwahlen's decision, Forty Niner head man Dick Nolan said, resignedly, "They were good friends and worked together a long time. This kind of thing is going to happen. People are going to seek their coaches from winning teams."

Warriors Push Win Streak To 5 Games

Invade Portland Tonight

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—The San Francisco Warriors, riding high on a five-game winning streak, continue their chase tonight in the National Basketball Association Pacific Division.

The Warriors, who trail Los Angeles by two games, meet the Portland Trail Blazers — who are on a mini-streak of their own.

San Francisco picked up a half game Thursday night on idle Los Angeles by whipping Phoenix on its home court, 117-105.

Meanwhile, the expansion Trail Blazers throttled Pete Maravich and the Atlanta Hawks, 137-23, for their second straight game over an established NBA club.

Center Nate Thurmond played one of his better game against the Suns, dumping in 30 points with 12 of 22 from the floor. Joe Ellis and Jerry Lucas each scored 24 and Jeff Mullins added 23.

The Warriors face a tough weekend schedule, returning home after tonight's game to meet the Milwaukee Bucks Saturday in the Oakland Coliseum and then traveling to Los Angeles Sunday to battle the Lakers.

Cagers To Begin The Final Round

The Redwood High School Giants may not have absolutely clear sailing during the second half of the Marin County Athletic League basketball season, but don't bet against them tonight.

The Larkspur team, which ran up a 7-0 record in the first round robin, starts the second by hosting the Novato Hornets, who will be playing without the man who has lately become their offensive salvation. Marty Moroski has a broken wrist, and will be lost to the team for the rest of the season.

In other games tonight, San Marin hosts Tamlapis, Terra Linda entertains Drake, and San Rafael is at home against Marin Catholic. All varsity games start at 8 o'clock.

In their first meeting, Redwood rolled past Novato unchallenged after the first period, and tonight's game may be even more onesided. The Hornets' lone offensive hope, with Moroski out of the lineup, is guard Joe DeMaestri, and he has been having his troubles. After starting the season with several 20-plus performances, he has been held to around 10 points per game.

Moroski's left wrist had been bothering him for more than a week before he finally went to see a doctor who confirmed a fracture.

The wrist has been placed in a cast, where it will remain for at least a month. The junior forward had improved steadily all season, and was eighth among the league's scorers with a 13.9 per game average.

The Giants, conversely, are healthy as horses, and have what could be unstoppable momentum. Their MCAL winning streak over the last three seasons is 33, including victories last week over San Marin and Tamalpais.

Those two teams meet tonight in another MCAL feature. The Mustangs of Novato, at 3-4, have nothing to lose, but the Indians of Mill Valley are still fighting for survival and the championship. In fact, at 5-2 they are the only team with a reasonable chance to catch Redwood.

But San Marin remembers their previous encounter this season, when Tam made them look silly. Look for the Mustangs to let loose the reins and try for what would be a sweet upset.

The other games should be one sided, but upsets are not out of the question. San Rafael, which last Friday surprised Novato, could turn back Marin Catholic, if the Wildcats are suffering from one of their depressive moods. It was during just such a mood that the Kentfield team lost to Drake.

And Drake tonight meets Terra Linda, a team that has lost two games in a row to drop practically out of contention at 4-3.

Raiders Lose 2nd Assistant

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders coaching staff is shrinking, but for widely opposing reasons.

On Thursday, the American Football Conference division champions lost their second assistant in two days when Dick Wood, who worked with the receivers, resigned to take a post at the University of Mississippi.

His departure was on a friendly note. "There's no bad feeling in my leaving," said Wood, a native of Alabama. "I'm taking the Mississippi job because it's closer to home."

A day earlier, Richie McCabe, defensive backfield coach, left in a huff. For his parting shot, McCabe said he was kept under wraps as a coach and added he was "disgusted" with the Raiders' lack of defensive flexibility.

Wood, who played his collegiate ball at Auburn and coached at Georgia before joining the Oakland staff, will work under newly appointed head coach Billy Kinard, who was also on the same Georgia staff.

"He (Kinard) told me I would be quarterback and receiver coach," Wood said of a conversation with kinard several days ago.

Wood, who joined the Raiders under John Madden in 1969, was a quarterback in the American Football league for seven seasons during which time he saw action with six different clubs.

SCHLEE IN FRONT

Near-Perfect Golf In Hawaii

HONOLULU (UPI) — John Schlee was happy about what he didn't do in the first round of the $200,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

And what golfer wouldn't be? Schlee didn't have a single bogey, he didn't three-putt and he didn't miss a green.

Schlee's steady and cool play earned him a six-under-par 66 and a one-stroke lead in the race for $40,000 first prize money.

On his heels at 67 going into today's second round on the level, seaside Wailalae Country Club course were Arnold Palmer and Cesar Sanudo.

Schlee's scorecard showed six birdies. It didn't show that he missed four other birdie opportunities from inside 15 feet.

"No complaints about my round," the 6-foot-2 belter from Coral Springs, Fla., said. "Except for number five—that one I regretted."

Five, a 461-yarder sliced by a couple of dangerously located ditches, left Schlee open-mouthed when his 18-inch birdie putt failed to drop. Other golfers came in mumbling about No. 5 after taking double and triple bogeys there.

Schlee's earnings so far this year are $6,675 and his best finish in a half-decade on the pro tour was a 1966 second place check in the St. Paul Open.

Palmer, as popular here as he is everywhere else, led three-fourths of the day's gallery of thousands around the 7,122-yard course and gave his fans something to yell about with his putting.

He knocked in a 35 footer and a couple of 15 footers for birdies and had two shots at eagles but didn't quite make them. Afterwards, he said his putting was more consistent than it had been this year.

Sanudo, a little known pro from San Diego, Calif., said as far as he was concerned his 67 was his "greatest round." That's because, he explained, "I never look behind ... today's round is what counts."

Lee Trevino, the 1968 Hawaiian Open champ, was in a group at 68. Defending champion Bruce Crampton shot 69 and last year's runnerup, Jack Nicklaus, and two-time runnerup Billy Casper were in a big crowd at 70.

HE HITS HOMERS, TOO— Chicago Cubs first baseman Ernie Banks sank a short putt yesterday during the pro-am phase of the American Airlines Astrojet golf tournament at Litchfield Park, Ariz. Regular play in the 54-hold tourney began today. (UPI Telephoto)

Laver Rides Again

NEW YORK (UPI)—Australia's Rod Laver, enjoying one of sport's more profitable winning streaks, may soon be able to paper one of the walls in his California home with $10,000 checks.

Laver already has won $80,000 since Jan. 2 by capturing the first eight matches in the $210,000 Tennis Champions Classic, and he can pick up another $10,000 check by beating Tom Okker of the Netherlands Saturday afternoon in Madison Square Garden.

In a previous meeting between the two, Okker gave Laver his biggest scare of the Classic by winning the first two sets in sudden death before Laver captured the next three.

"I'm in much better condition now than I was for the Detroit match (Jan. 23)," Okker said today. "I came in cold for that one while Laver had been playing regularly in the Classic. I just physically got tired at the end and I couldn't keep up. It was my first match in almost two months.

"There's another thing in my favor. People don't expect me to win so the pressure is off. I've been playing well lately and I just might be able to upset him."

Okker, who was runnerup to Arthur Ashe in the first U.S. Open a few years ago, earned another shot at Laver by beating Wimbledon champion John Newcombe in four sets in the losers' bracket.

In the losers' bracket Saturday, Roy Emerson will meet Roger Taylor for another chance at a $10,000 purse.

The Laver-Okker winner will meet Dennis Ralston in New York Feb. 17 in another $10,000 winner-take-all match, with the Emerson-Taylor survivor going against that winner in the last of the $10,000 contests on Feb. 19 in New Haven, Conn.

The four men with the best overall records in Classic play enter the semi-finals on Feb. 22 in New York. Each winner will receive $15,000 with a $60,000 final scheduled for March 18, also in New York.

Terra Linda Wrestlers Win Crown

Reggie, Jeff and Rich Grant all won to set the pace last night as the Terra Linda High School wrestling team finished its perfect Marin County Athletic League championship season with a perfect victory. The Trojans shutout San Marin High of Novato, 53-0.

Two of the Grant brothers, Jeff at 127 pounds and Rich at 154, won their matches by falls, while Reggie, at 120, won by decision. Altogether, Terra Linda wrestlers won 13 matches.

The Trojans thus completed their MCAL season with a 5-0 record, a half game ahead of San Rafael High, which came from behind yesterday to defeat Novato, 31-19 in the last dual Marin County Athletic League meet of the season for both teams.

Varsity winners (All Terra Linda):

Golf Tourney Draws Baseball, Grid Stars

LITHFIELD PARK, Ariz. (UPI)—Two stars of Baltimore's world champions in baseball and football, Brooks Robinson and John Unitas, headed an array of top names in professional sports teeing off today in the American Airlines Astrojet Golf Classic.

The Orioles' third baseman and Colts' quarterback were one of 33 teams, each comprised of one baseball and one football star, competing for the $10,000 first prize.

Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs and George Andrie of the Dallas Cowboys returned to defend their 1970 title, won over the same two course at the Goodyear Golf and Country Club course. The field also included Paul Krause of the Minnesota Vikings and Bill Mazeroski of tha Pittsburgh Pirates, winners of the first two Astrojets, and 1969 victors Jerry Kramer, former Green Bay Great, and Willie Davis of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The entrants eclipsed 24 years of baseball history from Hall of Famers Joe Dimaggio and Jackie Robinson and retired Yankees Yogi Berra and Mickey Mantle to young catchers Johnny Bench of Cincinnati, the National League's most valuable player and Thurman Munson of the Yankees, the American League's top rookie.

In the grid contingent, National Football League Rookie of the year Dennis Shaw of Buffalo and veteran quarterback Joe Kapp of the Boston Patriots made their first Astrojet appearances. Lance Alworth of San Diego, Deacon Jones of Los Angeles and bill Nelson of Cleveland were among footballers making another try for the title.

The 54-hole, best-ball tourney, using full handicaps of both players, concludes Sunday.

In Thursday's pro-Am, Chicago White Sox pitcher Joel Horlen and St. Louis Cardinal placekicker Jim Bakken turned in the best scores. Horlen, a six-handicapper, carded a two-over par 74 on the gold course. Bakken, with a seven-handicap, had a three-over par 73 on the shorter blue course.

Seals Need Health, Not New Faces

OAKLAND (UPI)—It seems there's a trading flurry in the National Hockey League, but the California Seals don't need new faces—they need healthy bodies.

The Seals, who are still struggling in last place in the NHL West Division, try to break a three-game losing streak tonight when they entertain the Montreal Canadiens in the Coliseum Arena.

The four teams above the Seals in the standings have made recent trades, but Seals manager-coach Fred Glover says he's not looking for new people.

"We've got so many guys hurt that we have no flexibility," Glover said. "We'll make a trade to help our hockey club, but not just to change faces."

The Seals lost Wednesday night in Pittsburgh when rookie Rod Zainek scored twice to lead the Penguins to a 6-1 victory.

Lombardi Award Blanda's Latest

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—While picking up an array of awards for his football heroics, George Blanda, at age 43, is getting to see a good part of the country.

Blanda, whose passing and kicking helped the Oakland Raiders to the division title in the American Football Conference last season, Thursday was named winner of the Vince Lombardi Award for dedication to pro football.

Women's Lib Movement Hits Preps

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Women's lib may have a new torch-bearer in 17-year-old Johnell Haas—golfer, cheerleader, all-round athlete and champion of women's rights.

Her problem at the moment is to get on the varsity golf team at Riley High School.

A rule of the Indiana High School Athletic Association, which govern's the state's high school sports program, prohibits girls from playing on school teams. "We're suing the state," said Mrs. Joseph Haas, Johnell's mother. "Johnell could make that team. The coach said so himself. But the rule is keeping her off the team."

Johnell's older brothers, Kevin, 22, and Tom, 19, have starred on Riley teams. Riley's golfers have an outstanding prep record and won state titles in 1962 and 1965 and runnerup honors in 1964.

"Johnell wants to make that team to pave the way for other girls," her mother said. "She feels it would be an honor to make the squad besides helping open things up for other girls. some of her friends are good tennis players and swimmers, but they can't try out for the teams, either."

"She started hitting the ball when she was eight," said brother Tom. "She liked it, and she saw Kevin and I play a lot, so the interest was always around our house."

"She's a pretty steady 80s shooter" said Tom.

Johnell won the state driving contest last year at Frankfort during the Indiana Junior Girls Golf Championships.

Brodie Honored In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Everything must be up-to-date in Kansas City because they've accepted John Brodie, an outsider from the West Coast, as its National Football Conference offensive Player of the Year.

Brodie, quarterback of the San Francisco Forty Niners, was selected Thursday, along with Minnesota defensive stalwart Alan Page, by the 101 Committee of the Kansas City Chiefs' Boosters Club.

Both Brodie and Page will be honored Feb. 15 at the 101 Banquet, billed as Kansas City's annual salute to professional football.

A's Sign Four; 19 Now In Fold

OAKLAND (UPI)—The number of satisfied players on the Oakland Athletics' roster now totals 19.

The A's signed four more players Thursday, including relievers Jim Roland and Marcel Lachemann. Also agreeing to terms were rookies Jim Panther, a pitcher, and outfielder George Mendrick.

Last year, both Rcland and Lachemann compiled 3-3 won-loss records with 2.49 and 2.75 earned run averages, respectively.

The A's also announced that two non-roster players, pitcher Darrell Osteen and catcher Bill Fitzgerald, have been invited to train with the club at Mesa, Ariz.

FISH AND GAME

Time To Answer Some Letters

By AL GIDDINGS

In the correspondence department I received a nice note from Ann Williams of Kentfield saying that she enjoys the put-on and the kidding in this column, even though she's never caught a fish or shot a gun!

She should have been along a few days ago when I caught a 40-inch sturgeon, but Sam Knoles measured it and threw it over the side before I got a good look. We had a bet on, so Sam said it only measured 39 inches (the legal minimum size is 40 inches). Sam always says, "A penny saved is a penny earned!"

I also received a note from Terry Moyles of San Rafael asking if the county or the state had bought the six acre parcel along the tidewaters of Papermill Creek (the White House Pool area) at Point Reyes Station. I talked to Waldo Giacomini, the owner, about this. He says no reasonable offer has been made yet!

YOUNG MR. Moyles wonders what he and his friends can do to save this salmon and steelhead fishing spot for the future and the public. One good idea might be to join the Marin Rod and Gun Club, form a committee for a look-in at the project, and take it from there. Another approach might be letters to the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department, or possibly to the Board of Supervisors. Monies from the wildlife Conservation Board are also used for the acquisition of hunting and fishing lands.

Recently, I received a copy of the Sport Fishing Institute Bulletin from Washington D.C. The topic: a report on "Fish Kills Caused by Pollution," written in 1969 by the Federal Water Quality Administration. It is now available from the Supt. of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. In the report, an estimated 41 million fish in 45 states were killed by water pollution in 1969 — up 170 per cent over 1968.

THE LARGEST single pollution-caused fish kill in 1969 — 26.5 million fish — occurred in Lake Thonotosassa at Plant City, Fla. Effluent from industrial and municipal sewage treatment operations have been entering the lake untreated for some 15 years. Nutrients in this wastes reduced the oxygen in January 1969 to a level in which fish could not survive.

A breakdown of the fish kills reads: Warrior River, Ala., 751,000 fish by poisons; Gila River, Ariz., 327,518, by mining operations; Arroyo Colorado, Tex., 5,000,000 by poisons; Lewis and Clark Lake, 158,000 by manure fcainage; Lake Thonotosassa, Fla., 26,526,690, by sewage effluent; and there are others!

MY COMMENTS: Slowly, but surely, we in Marin County are making some progress in combating pollution generally by education and cooperation. Poisons, manure drainage, mining, and most of all, sewage effluent, have taken tolls of the fish in Marin County. The Water Quality Control Board of California is recognizing and attempting to control effluent releases, especially in our local bays. It may be that the effluents daily deposited around the Marin Rod and Gun Club Pier from the outfalls of the nearby towns and cities will someday be stopped completely. Most sewage disposal plants have effluent disposal systems into the bay. Other methods of disposal are difficult and expensive, but let's save what we have! In fact, let's improve our bay every chance that we have.

The Golden Gate Sportfishers Inc. are having their annual installation of officers, on Saturday at the Golden Gate Yacht Club, at the foot of Scott Street, Marina Yacht Harbor, San Francisco. No host cocktails at 6:30, dinner at 8 p.m. Hank Schramm is being installed as the 1971 President. With the salmon season opening in the San Francisco-Sausalito areas, on Feb. 13, you might want to renew acquaintences with your favorite party boat skipper. They will all be there.

IN THE FEB. 5 issue of Life Magazine, pages 36, 37, and 38, there are pictures of my son Andy, Pete Sutton and Debbie Celle cleaning up the oil from our troubled waters at the Bolinas Beach area. The pictures clearly show masses of oil soaked hay drifting with the tide near the Golden Gate Bridge. They also show the extremely difficult task that many, many young people took on. Oil covered birds, crabs, and the beaches themselves are also clearly visual in the pictures. Take a look!

SOMEBODY'S TELLING JOKES

The Touchdown Club of Columbus, Ohio, will hold its 16th annual awards dinner tonight honoring top athletes from all sports. Among those present will be (left to right), Kansas City Chiefs running back Jim Otis, All American tackle Dan Dierdorf from Michigan and All American guard Chip Kell from the University of Tennessee, photographed at a pre-dinner session last night.

Four More All-Stars Announced

One player for the East and three more for the West, including 1968 All-American Bruce Sloan from Kansas State, were announced yesterday for Monday night's first East-West College All-Star Basketball Classic at Terra Linda High School.

Gametime for the clash is 8 o'clock. Marin County Athletic preliminary games between the San Rafael and Terra Linda Class B teams (5 o'clock) and the schools' frosh teams (6:30) are scheduled.

In addition to Sloan, Coach Hal Fischer of the defending AAU champion Army cagers announced that Jim Fox, an all-Midwest Conference forward for Drake in 1969 and Ron Crenshaw, a starting guard for USC in 1969 and 1970, would join the West forces.

James Brown, a little All-American selection from Morris Brown College, was added to the East roster.

About 1300 tickets at $1.50 each went on sale early this week at three Marin locations: Taveggia-Brusati Sports Shop in San Rafael, Sportsland in Terra Linda's Northgate Shopping Center and Terra Linda High School.

U.S. Figure Skaters In Command

PETERBOROUGH, Ont.. (UPI) —United States athletes were solidly in command in three of four events as the North America figure skating championships opened here Thursday.

John Misha Petkevich, 21, a Harvard pre-medical student from Great Falls, Mont., rang up such a hefty margin in the compulsory school figures that he can't avoid winning the men's title in Friday's free skating finals.

Judy Schwomeyer of Detroit, Mich., and Jim Sladky of Rochester, N.Y., took a commanding margin after the mandatory stage of the ice dance.

In the pairs, Jojo Starbuck and Ken Shelley of Downey, Calif., took a giant step toward the continental title by winning first place votes from six of the seven judges who viewed the compulsory routines.

Kuenn To Coach Brewers' Hitters

MILWAUKEE (UPI) —The Milwaukee Brewers have added a one-time San Francisco Giant hero to its staff.

Frank Lane, director of baseball operations for the Brewers, announced Thursday that Harvey Kuenn, a 15-year major league veteran, will serve as a special hitting instructor.

During his career, Kuenn, who also saw action with Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia, compiled a .303 batting average and led the American League in 1959 with a .353 mark.

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce. United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate).

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depts are always additive to the chart in depts unless preceded by a (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Lightface type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

Three-Year Fight; Soccer Team Quits

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—After three years of heavy financial losses, the Kansas City Spurs disbanded Thursday.

The Spurs withdrew from the North American Soccer League (NASL) after selling only 1,511 season tickets for 1971.

In announcing their disbandment, the Spurs said the decision "was based on the outlook of a six-figure loss in 1971 if the club continued to operate."

Tennis

SEWANEE, Tenn. (UPI)—Top-seeded Billie Jean King won an easy first round match Thursday night in the Virginia Slims tennis invitational.

Miss King defeated Ceci Martinez 6-3, 6-2.

Baseball

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Los Angeles Dodgers shortstop Maury Wills, functioning as a minor league manager for the first time in his career, has been voted the manager of the year in the Mexican Pacific League, the Dodgers reported today.

Wills, who has played in the major league for a dozen years, led the Hermosillo team to first place in the second part of a split season.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds, the National League's most valuable player in 1970, has been named to the athletic committee of the Youth Development Foundation, Inc.

Auto Racing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The pole position for Saturday's ARCA 300 stock car race was won by Ramo Stott in a 1971 Plymouth Thursday in time trials marred by an accident that injured driver Bill Kimmel of Clarksville.Ind.

Kimmel was listed in serious condition at a local hospital today after his 1971 Chevelle flipped in time trials at the Daytona International Speedway. He suffered a broke arm and serious head and spinal injuries.

Golf

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI)—Gene Torres and Rick Rhoads carried a one-stroke lead into today's second round of the $25,000 United Air Lines Ontario Open after they tied for first Thursday with four under par 67s.

General

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UPI)—The Northern California horse racing fraternity Thursday mourned the loss of two popular and prominent members—Clarence Hansen and George D. Murphy.

Both died Wednesday, Hansen suddenly and Murphy after a long illness. Hansen was 75 and Murphy was 81. Funeral arrangements for both are pending.

Hansen, a native of Salt Lake City, had been an owner, trainer, breeder and driver of harness horses while Murphy, a native of San Francisco, served as a racing official at all Northern California tracks until his retirement three years ago.

Petrie Outshines Maravich

By U. P. NERNATIONAL

Pete Maravich got all the money and publicity but Geoff Petrie still may be the best rookie guard in the National Basketball Association.

The two rookies met in head-to-head competition Thursday nightq and Petrie was the clear winner as he helped the Portland Trail Blazers record a 137-123 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

Petrie, a Princeton graduate who's been hitting better than 22 points a game this season, tossed in 24 points and held Maravich, the all-tine college scoring champ from Louisiana State to just 13. Petrie hit 11-of-20 shots while Maravich, who signed for close to $2 million, connected on only 6-of-18.

Leroy Ellis had 27 points and 17 rebounds to lead the Blazers, who now had back-to-back victories over the Milwaukee Bucks and the Hawks. Gary Gregory had 25 for Portland, which scored 14 consecutive points early in the fourth quarter to put the game away.

Walt Bellamy led Atlanta with 32 points and 19 rebounds.

Rec Basketball

Cal's Steakhouse defeated the Kennel Extraordinaire, 60-51, Harding Gophers downed Pinky's Pizza, 39-30, Dornbach Painting beat Don Rumpf's Golf Shop, 61-59 and the Centaurs knocked off Southern Marin Towing, 47-42 in San Rafael Recreation Department adult basketball league games last night.

All-Lefty Finals In Bowling

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—The $75,000 Ebonite Open Bowling Tournament moves into its semifinal phase today and for the first time in the history of pro bowling competition, there won't be a right-hander among the 16 survivors of an original starting field of 128.

Leading the all-southpaw brigade into the match game segment --16 games divided into two sessions—is an unknown from nearby Belmont, Calif., named Dan Baudoin, who won a mini-tournament to qualify for one of the two open amateur spots in the field. Baudoin, 20, spilled 1450 pins Thursday night in the fourth and final six-game qualifying block to vault into first place, 18 pins in front of old pro Dave Davis, Miami, Fla., the defending champion here.

Davis turned in a 1361 in the fourth round, giving him a 24-game total of 5439, compared to Baudoin's 5457. Next in line came Larry Lichstein, Windsor Locks, Conn., 21, who was 1970's Rookie of the Year. Lichstein did the best shooting of the day, turning in blocks of 1414 and 1400 for an overall average of 234. Baudoin has averaged 226 since play began last Wednesday.

Rounding out the top five are Ed Dolfay, Everett, Wash., and Johnny Petraglia, Brooklyn, N.Y. Their respective fourth round efforts were 1293 and 1280, putting them 56 and 96 behind the leader.

In the semi-final phase, in which each man faces each other one time, the winner of the game has a 50 pin bonus tacked on to his actual score. The high five scorers after the tournament's first 40 games gain Saturday's nationally televised finals, in which $10,000 will be the winner's prize.

WCAC Still Scrambled; Traditionals In Pac-8

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The West Coast Athletic Conference race is still as scrambled as your breakfast egg, but Loyola and UOP would seem to be on the road to the top.

Loyola, which didn't look that good in the early going, refuses to fold.

The Lions are now 5-1 for the League and 10-7 for the season after disposing of St. Mary's 82-66 at Moraga Thursday in a strong show.

The third contender is Santa Clara, now 4-2 after taking Nevada Reno 93-76. Bruce Winkler had 17 for the Broncos, who have not looked as inpressive as the Lions and Tigers to date.

USF took a 3-1 record into the meat-grinder at Las Vegas and fell 76-64 to Nevada Las Vegas, a team which wins at home and flops on the road. The losers, now 3-3, got 28 points from Booker Washington.

Things might get a bit untangled, but probably won't, when Santa Clara heads for Nevada Las Vegas, Pepperdine plays at St. Mary's, USF is at Nevada Reno, and the Tigers and Lions stage a real jungle fight in the UOP gym.

Elsewhere, Thursday, one team trying to get national honors won a big one and one lost one.

The winner was Long Beach State, which hasn't quite lived up to its pre-season raves. But the 49ers still are 15-4 after looking sharp at Centenary, Louisiana, in a 74-56 romp. Big George Trapp had 28 for the winners.

But Hawaii ran into heartbreak at San Diego where the San Diego State Aztecs hit a school record 62 per cent of their shots to take the 107-95 win. That left the Rainbows at 16-3.

Tonight's major tussles find old rivals Stanford and California meeting at Berkeley while Oregon State calls on Oregon in another traditional struggle.

Saturday's action is highlighted by the great USC-UCLA clash for the championship of Los Angeles Oh, yeah. They'llbe playing for the number one ranking in the nation, too.

JACK HANLEY

Dietz Expecting A Big Pay Hike

Dick Dietz never represented himself as a defensive genius but not since Walker Cooper hit .305 in 1947 has a regular Giant catcher hit like Dietz who wound up with .300 last year.

It was Dietz' bat, not his glove, that got him the No. 1 catching job of the Giants last season. Prior to 1970, Dietz never was sure of his precise status with the Giants.

He thought in 1966-67 that he would be the logical successor of Tom Haller. Hadn't he hit .347 at Phoenix before calling up near the close of the '66 season? When Haller was traded to the Dodgers for Ron Junt just before the 1968 season started, Dietz believed the catching job was his.

BUT IN 1968 Dietz caught less than 100 games. The remaining games on the 162-game schedule were divided between Jack Hiatt and Bob Barton. Had it not been for an ankle injury in July '68 and a bruised right hand in August that kept him out almost a month, Dietz undoubtedly would have caught more than the 98 games he did in 1968 when he hit .272.

In 1969 Dietz caught only 79 games and he was so depressed that he hit only .230, his lowest season average since the Giants signed him to a big bonus in 1960. Once again, the catching job was shared by Dietz, Hiatt and Barton.

In 1970 Dietz finally got the job. Barton was traded to the Padres in the winter of '69 with a couple of other players for Frank Reberger. And just as the Giants were winding up their 1970 spring training, Hiatt was traded to the Red Sox for Russ Gibson.

EVEN BEFORE Hiatt was traded, Dietz knew the job was his because Horace Stoneham got fed up with the way Dietz was being platooned. The president of the ball club called Dietz aside in spring training last year and told him "You are my catcher."

With that knowledge, Dietz relaxed and enjoyed a great spring. His first Cactus League hit last spring was a grand slam home run. Through the first 10 games of the regular major league season he hit .436, including four homers. He also had four passed balls in those opening games.

"I believe any team that expects to go any place must have a regular catcher with a respectable bat," said Dietz. "I can hit .300 and I can catch 130 games."

DIETZ' EVEN .300 last year fulfilled his confidence in his bat that produced 36 doubles, two triples, 22 homers, including a grand slam, and 107 RBIs.

By catching 148 games, Dietz proved he was even more durable than he thought.

Naturally, Dietz doesn't look with any pride at his passed ball record but it's something he's lived with since he was a raw rookie in 1960. His 25 passed balls last season isn't a record for him.

IN 1960 he led the Sophomore League at Artesia with 46 passed balls. In 1961 he led the same league with 45. In 1962 he tied the Northwest League record for most passed balls in a season (37) and on two occasions tied the league record for most passed balls in a game (4).

But when it comes to negotiating his 1971 baseball contract, Dietz understandably will be accentuating the positive in his record, not the negative. And he is going to be quite emphatic about his bat contributions to the Giants. He wants a whopping salary increase to $50,000, double his $25,000 pay in 1970.

Ryun Probable For Athens Meet

OAKLAND (UPI) — Oregon star SKTEVE Prefontaine is set and Jim Ryun, attempting a comeback, is a probable, according to officials of the Athens Invitational Track and Field Meet.

Prefontaine, the NCAA two-mile champion and America's top hope in the distance events in the 1972 Olympics, filed Thursday for the Feb. 13 meet at the Oakland Arena.

His chief opposition will come from Chuck Labenz and Russia's Rashid Sharafetdinov.

Meet director Dave Maggard said there is a "good chance" that Ryun, who made his comeback debut at the All-America Games in San Francisco two weeks ago, may participate in the mile event.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Patience Needed On Apache Issue

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q - I hold 1900 shares of Apache Corp., bought over the past eight years at an average cost of $24. I am discouraged about this issue. Should I wait it out? Other holdings include blue chip stocks, mutual funds and Federal Agency bonds. — W.W.

A - Apache's sluggish market action may be largely attributed to the firm's uninspiring 1970 earnings performance and the company's conglomerate image. Revenues for the first nine months of 1970 were reported at $66.8 million compared with $50.6 million in the like 1969 period. Net income amounted to $2.85 million, or $1.00 per share — down 15 per cent year-to-year.

Profit margins of many of Apache's divisions were adversely affected by lagging demand, while the GM strike reduced profitability in the metals division. Apache has become well diversified in recent years with interests in oil/gas exploration and development programs, industrial services and a materials supply operation (major segment).

Prospects are basically favorable for the industrial group; and oil and gas revenues should rise, reflecting recent drilling successes. Although near-term economic problems cloud Apache's outlook, long-term holdings should work out.

Q - We hold American Investors and Stein, Roe & Farnham Stock mutual funds for the education of our 11 and 13-year old sons. My husband wants to add to these; I am opposed and would rather put it in the bank at 5¼ per cent interest. What is your opinion? — E. S.

A - Although it may not alter your opinion, savings interest rates may also be modified as a result of the drop in the prime rate charged on bank loans. American Investors, the more speculative of your investments, had on Sept. 30, 1970, a good concentration of quality issues in its portfolio.

Stein, Roe at that time had about 10 per cent of its assets invested in building supply stocks where recovery potential is above-average. A compromise solution, whereby one-third of your savings dollar was earmarked for each fund and one-third for your savings account, would be sensible.

ANTI-CORROSIVE BREAKTHROUGH

After seven years of research, Krupp Steel Co. scientists in West Germany have succeeded in putting an anti-corrosive surface of titanium metal on the insides of steel vats used to "cook" the chemicals that go into synthetic fibers. The scientists used explosives to "blast" the costly first time. The picture shows the bottom of one of the vats which hold thousands of gallons of petroleum products used in making synthetic fibers.

Oil Gas Industry Looking For $1.4 Billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American oil gas industry wants back the $700 million it says it lost by a change in the depletion allowance, plus another $700 million for good measure, a high-ranking industry spokesman said.

Robert E. Mead, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, said at the conclusion of IPAA's executive committee meeting the domestic industry is in a bad way and needs help — either higher prices or a better tax break.

The last Congress reduced the depletion allowance, a tax charge-off that lowers oil companies' tax bill on grounds oil is a depletable resource. Mead estimated, "The cut in depletion took $700 million a year out of our industry."

He contended, "To get the job done in developing energy supplies in this country, I think we would have to have double what we lost in depletion."

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

Interest Payments Are Taxable, Except For Specific Exemptions

Unless specificially exempt under the tax rules, all interest you receive is taxable income.

Interest from the following sources is not taxed: Obligations of a state or a political subdivision of a state (i.e., a county, etc.). Obligations of the District of Columbia.

Other interest is fully taxable, including interest on your savings account, deposits in a credit union, interest on money you loaned, and interest on U.S. Savings Bonds.

Before February 28, 1971, the payor of interest may send you a Form 1099 Information Return, showing the interest credited to you in 1970.

Such interest must be reported even if you don't draw the money out of the account.

Do not send Form 1099 in with your tax returns. Keep it along with your copy of the tax return.

If you don't receive a Form 1099 from the payor, you must still report the interest you earned, no matter how small.

If you buy U.S. Bonds Series E, F or J, you have a choice of how to report the interest.

You can report the interest earned (increase in value) each year or you can wait till you cash the bond and report the total in the year cashed.

If you now hold bonds on which you have reported no interest and you would like to start reporting the interest each year, you can do so by reporting this year all the increase in value so far. Then in future years you would report the yearly increase in value. Once you start doing this you must continue to do this for all E, F or J bonds you own unless you get special permission from the IRS to change back.

U.S. Bonds are a good way to have interest income without paying tax on it now.

Later, after you retire, you can cash them in and pay the tax at a lower rate, or maybe even no tax, depending on your lower income, increased exemptions, the retirement income credit, etc.

Interest income is entered on line 14 of form 1040 and if it is over $100 then you must also list this income in detail on Schedule B, part II, and here you must divide it between Savings and Loan Associations and Credit Unions and other interest such as bank deposits, bonds, tax refunds, etc.

If there is not sufficient room for reporting your interest income on Schedule B, then you should make a detailed listing on a separate piece of paper and attach this listing to Schedule B. The totals, however, should be entered on the proper lines on Schedule B and the total interest income should be brought forward to line 14 of form 1040.

Ticker Orders

NEW YORK (UPI) — Trans-Lux Corp. has announced receipt of four contracts totaling $3.5 million covering leasing of electronic stock ticker displays by Merril Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., Reynolds & Co., F.I. Dupont, Glore Forgan & Co., and Harris, Upham & Co., Inc. The contracts involve more than 700 display units.

Savings Bond Sales Exceed Redemptions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Savings bond sales exceeded redemptions by $9 million in January, the fourth straight month in which savers added to their bond holdings, the Treasury reported.

Cash sales of Series E and H. bonds totaled $430 million during the month while redemptions totaled $421 million. A year earlier, redemptions exceeded sales by $140 million. Savings bonds totaling $52.6 billion were outstanding at the end of January.

More Knitting

WEST POINT, Ga. (UPI) — West Point-Pepperell, Inc. announced plans to expand its Alamac Knitting Divisions facilities in North Carolina at a cost of about $8 million. The expansion is intended to double the division's sales of knitted fabrics in the next four years.

Mixed Day For Prices On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) —Prices were mixed in heavy turnover on the New York Stock Exchange Friday.

After almost two hours, advances were leading declines by more than 150 issues. But the Dow Jones Industrial Average, the blue chip barometer, was off.

Prices were steady in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Gainers topped losers, 386 to 315.

Union American Mortgage Warrants, the most active Amex issue, was up fractionally on a volume of more than 136,000 shares.

On the big board, heavily traded issues included Occidental Petroleum up 1, Lockheed off 1-8, International Telephone 1-4 higher, Skyline up 1 3-4, and Denny's Restaurants up 3-4.

Less active Walt Disney climbed 4, while McDonnell Douglas added 2 1-4. Up a point or so were Merck & Co. and IBM.

Steels generally tacked on fractions, while motors, chemicals and rails traded in narrowly mixed fashion.

KLM dropped 2 in the otherwise fractionally lower airlines.

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS

Hexcel Acquires Permalastic, Ltd.

Hexcel, the Dublin, Calif.-based manufacturer of adhesives and resin products, has acquired the assets of Permalastic Products of Canada, Ltd., Toronto-based manufacturer, also producing industrial adhesives, for cash.

The transaction gives Hexcel a base in Canada for marketing its products to the telecommunications, tooling, construction and furniture industries there.

A wholly-owned subsidiary, Hexcel of Canada, Ltd., has been established, and Permalastic will be a division.

NUCLEAR ENGINEERING CO., INC., Walnut Creek directors have approved in principle its acquisition by United Nuclear Corp. in exchange for common stock. The exchange is subject to a definitive agreement, approval of directors of both companies, Nuclear Engineering shareholders and compliance with legal requirements.

CUTTER LABORATORIES, INC., Berkeley sales of $70.3 million for 1970 were the highest in the company's history, increasing 18 per cent from $59.4 in 1969. Earnings amounted to $2,640,000 or $1.28 per share, compared with $2,314,000 or $1.12 per share earned in 1969.

CITIZENS FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION'S proposal for conversion from a mutual to a capital stock structure has been approved by a vote of its members. Before the plan can be put into effect it must be approved by the Federal Home Loan Bank. Conversion and stock distribution will not affect savings deposits, deposit insurance or the loans of members.

DUN AND BRADSTREET, INC. marketing services division has begun a national survey to determine what steps are under way to control industrial pollution. Interviewers will gather primary research data from 2,000 plants throughout the United States on a random sample basis. Completion of the project will result in a detailed report next May.

AMERICAN EXPRESS has reported record high consolidated net earnings of $25.2 million for 1970 — 14.4 per cent above the $74.4 million earned in 1969. Earnings per common share were $3.58, compared to $3.13 for the previous year.

KAISER STEEL CORP. had consolidated net earnings of $19.7 million in 1970. In 1969 the company earned $25.7 million. Earnings per share amounted to $2.66 in 1970, compared with $3.58 in 1969. Sales of $393.2 million in 1970 compared with $420.8 million in 1969.

SEARS, ROEBUCK AND CO. sales for the four weeks ended Jan. 30 were 5.1 per cent higher than last year. Gross sales totaled $643 million, compared to $612 million in 1970. Sears volume for the 52 weeks ended Jan. 30 totaled more than $10 billion — the first time in the company's history it passed this mark. It represented an increase of 4.6 per cent over gross sales in the corresponding period of last year.

SYSTRON-DONNER CORP., Concord has announced the election of Dr. Philip G. Leigh as president of its subsidiary John E. Lindberg, Inc., manufacturer of pressure switches, thermal switches and aircraft fire detection devices. He has been general manager of Lindberg.

UNION PACIFIC CO. reported slightly eased earnings in 1970, with net per share off 3.8 per cent. Net income for the year was $75.1 million, or $3.56 per share, compared with $78.2 million, or $3.70 per share for 1969. Gross revenues and sales amounted to $923,9 million — an increase of $243.6 million over 1969.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC net earnings for 1970 were $76.8 million or $2.86 per share, compared with $91.6 million or $3.41 per share for 1969. Fourth quarter net income was $16.9 million — down from $20.5 million a year ago.

AT&T Reports Dip In 1970 Earnings

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. has announced slightly lower earnings for 1970.

The company reported net income for the year was $2.189 billion or $3.99 cents a share, down from the $2.199 billion net or $4.00 a share earned in 1969. The company said total revenue of $17 billion in 1970 represented an 8.1 per cent increase over the 1969 figure of $15.7 billion.

Boise Cascade Has 52% Earnings Drop

BOISE, Idaho (BW) — Boise Cascade Corp.'s 1970 earnings from operations are estimated to be approximately $1.16 per share, compared with $2.40 per share on a restated basis for 1969, a decrease of 52 per cent, it was announced.

In addition, the company expects earnings of 4 cents per share in 1970 from gains in its marketable securities portfolio, compared with 26 cents in 1969.

United Announces More Furloughs

CHICAGO (UPI) — United Air Lines announced it will furlough 100 stewardesses as of March 2. The airline also said it will put another 134 pilots on furlough in the January to July period in addition to the 260 announced earlier.

United said recently announced schedule reductions have made the furloughs necessary. The airline said it may recall the stewardesses about mid-May.

Cable-Ferryboats In Marin's Future?

A cable-drawn ferry system can lick the Marin to San Francisco rapid transit problem at a fraction of the cost of any one of five transit systems devised by Kaiser Engineers for the Golden Gate Bridge District.

That is the contention of Capt. George G. Roberts of Woodside, who says that after three years and $200,000 worth of studies and tests, he and his partners are convinced that the cable ferry would be safe, economical and effective.

On Dec. 1, Marin County Board of Supervisors took a quick look at the cable ferry proposal and asked the Golden Gate Bridge District to consider its possibilities. Last Thursday, the Streets and Transportation Committee of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors took a similar position and referred Roberts' brainchild to the bridge district. The district's transportation committee will consider a staff report criticising the proposal at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Of the five transit plans developed by Kaiser Engineers, the least expensive is a $495 million bus rapid transit plan that would bring buses on exclusive, fixed lanes over the Golden Gate Bridge into Marin County. Roberts declared his cable ferry system could handle the same capacity as the Kaiser bus plan at a cost of about $35 million.

CABLE-DRAWN FERRY — A double-ended ferry, designed to ply the commute lanes between Fisherman's Wharf and Tiburon in 20 minutes, is the brainchild of Capt. George G. Roberts of Woodside. The fiberglass catamaran, large enought to carry 3,000 passengers, would be pulled by an underwater cable powered by a shore-based engine. The Golden Gate Bridge District staff has been asked to examine the system to see if it has merit.

Engineer Steven Millerheim, one of Roberts' partners, envisages two large ferryboats designed as catamarans (two hulls), each carrying 3,000 passengers or 30 to 40 buses. They would shuttle between Tiburon and San Francisco, attached to underwater cables powered by shore based engines.

The cables, one attached to each ferry, will be 50 feet below the surface and present no hazard to navigation, said Roberts. (The bridge district staff report, however, said that the system would need an 80-foot deep channel costing $10 million to $14 million to dredge — costs not in Robert's estimates.

The ferry, about 350 feet long and 100 feet wide, would slide up to floating platforms at each end where buses, trucks or passengers could get on and off in two or three minutes, explained Roberts.

"The beauty of the catamaran ferry is that the two hulls on each end would prevent it from listing even if one side or the other were overloaded with buses," said Roberts. "They could pour into or off the ferry in two minutes."

"The optimum bus system would be integrated with the cable-drawn ferry to provide an alternate Highway 101. It would be the water link of the Bay Area's rapid transit systems. It could take trains, BART cars, buses and foot passengers."

Roberts said a commuter using both the bus system and the integrated cable-ferry could commute from Novato for about 80 cents for a one-way fare to San Francisco, 70 cents from San Rafael and 60 cents from Mill Valley.

He listed these advantages over a conventional ferry:

Even in fog, there would be little chance of collision because the ferries would be on fixed cables. Since power would be shore-based, the ferries would be free of water, air and noise pollution.

Whereas the alternate proposals under consideration by the Golden Gate Bridge District would all operate at deficit, Roberts said his cable-ferry system, integrated with the bus system, could operate at an annual profit of $1.5 million.

Roberts said he is now trying to get San Francisco or the Golden Gate Bridge District to apply to the U.S. Department of Transportation for a grant to finance a prototype cable-ferry to run between Tiburon and Angel Island or Fisherman's Wharf and Alcatraz. This would cost about $1.5 million, with about 75 per cent in federal grants and the rest from private enterprise, said Roberts.

Captain Roberts is former ferry boat operator who set up the British Columbia Ferries north of Vancouver. His family, he reports, has been in the ferryboat business for nearly 100 years.

Athlete Elected School's Queen

HILO, Hawaii (UPI)—The newly-elected homecoming queen at Hilo High School is a shot-putter on the track squad and an end for the football team.

Norman Wessel, a 17-year-old senior, entered the competition as a joke with the backing of some of his friends.

But the tall athlete's campaign caught fire and he swept by five female contenders for the title.

Wessel said students are tired of the same old thing every year.

Judge Named

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican Attorney Thomas J. Dandurand, 37, San Francisco, was named by Gov. Ronald Reagan Thursday to fill a newly created San Francisco Municipal Court Judgeship. The post pays $30,724 a year.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of the U.S. Senate have not quite decided whether they should allow page girls in their chamber; but if they do, they've decided how they want them to dress:

The Senate Rules Committee agonized for 90 minutes Thursday over whether to approve the nominations of page girls which have been submitted by three senators. They postponed a decision and set up a subcommittee to study the matter.
